Congress comes to bat on economy

Joint committee calls for new emergency measures

By AL EISELE
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The top economic advisory committee of Congress, declaring that recession is a greater danger than inflation, called Saturday for an emergency economic recovery program to stimulate the economy, starting with a tax cut of up to $35 billion.

The Joint Economic Committee said in its annual report to Congress that the emergency measures are necessary to "arrest the continuing deterioration of the economy and return the nation to the path of economic growth and full employment."

The report, which was prepared before last week's Senate passage of an emergency tax-cut bill, said "there is virtually no disagreement among economists as to the need for strong stimulus to the econo-

Conferees try to hammer out compromise tax cut

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final efforts to enact the largest tax cut in the nation's history got under way Saturday with both houses of Congress assigning conferees to work out a compromise.

Key House members predicted the final cut will be closer to the $19.9-billion version they approved than the $33.1 billion approved by the Senate, with extraneous changes in the tax code weeded out.

Meanwhile, President Ford was relaying word to members of the House-Senate conference committee Saturday that he may veto the tax-cut bill unless it is stripped of what he considers extraneous amendments.

White House officials, repeating Ford's goal of a "clean tax-cut bill," left open the possibility of a veto. "I wouldn't close the door,"

Hinshaw linked to bribe case

County probers search Va. home

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Orange County investigators armed with a search warrant entered the Alexandria, Va., apartment of Rep. Andrew J. Hinshaw, R-Orange, and seized evidence in connection with a probe of alleged bribery in the assessor's office, a district attorney's spokesman said Saturday.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael R. Capizzi and district attorney's investigator Jack Coleman flew to Washington, D.C., Thursday to seek the evidence. They got it Friday under authority of a search warrant issued by an Alexandria magistrate.

They plan to return Monday with the evidence and lay it before the Orange County Grand Jury Tuesday or Thursday, the days the jurors consider criminal matters, the district attorney's spokesman said.

Evidence collected by Capizzi and Coleman is a follow-up Capizzi promised after the grand jury indicted the assessor's chief deputy, George Upton, on bribery charges and accused James Buxton, southwest regional manager of the Tandy Corp.'s Radio Shack stores, with giving bribes.

Both men were in Santa Ana Superior Court's criminal division Friday and were ordered to make their pleas April 8.

Capizzi said Thursday that "today's indictment will not end the grand jury's inquiry, as other aspects of this and related irregularities...have yet to be resolved."

It could not be learned what evidence was secured at Hinshaw's apartment.

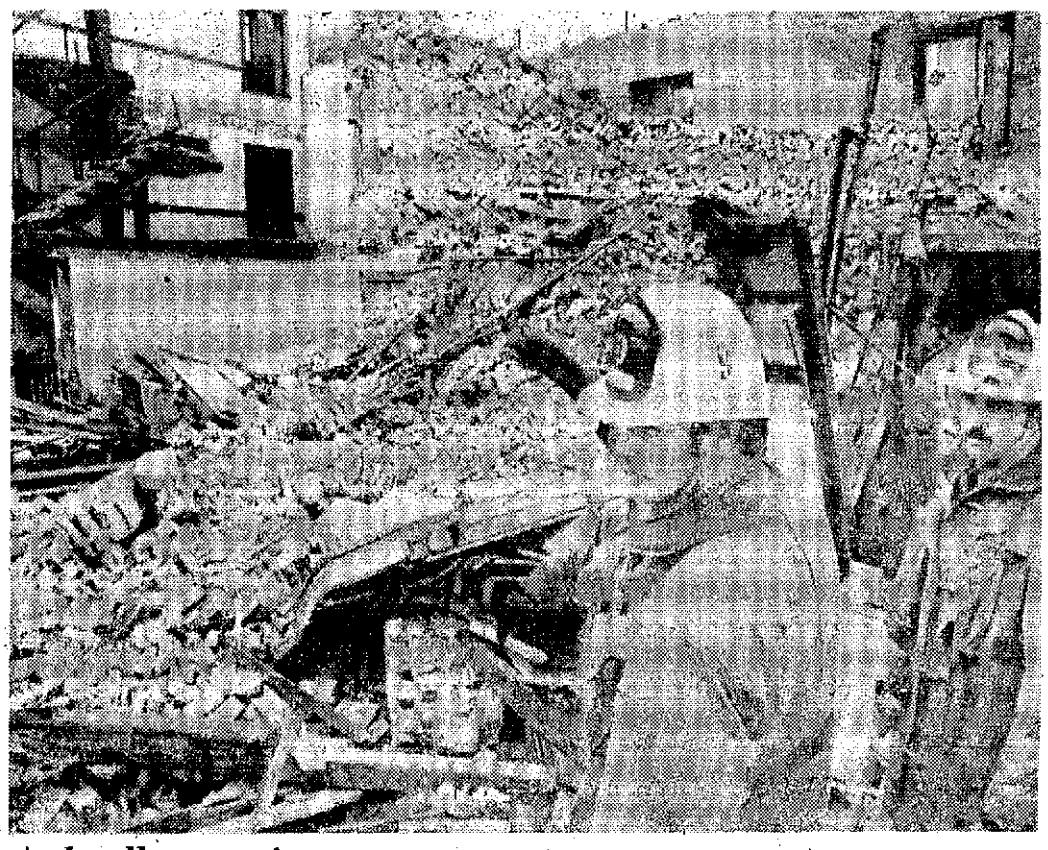

Hinshaw was in his apartment, described as a well-furnished, comfortable "bachelor's pad" (Hinshaw is estranged from his wife), when Capizzi, Coleman and an Alexandria police officer arrived for the search.

Nol is 'ready to flee'

Combined News Services

PHNOM PENH— President Lon Nol, whose removal has been urged both here and in Washington as a step toward ending the war, has packed his belongings and obtained passports for himself and his family, reliable sources at the presidential palace reported Saturday.

The sources said Lon Nol had told his aides that his departure "will depend on the situation."

Despite the deteriorating military situation and the possibility of an arms cutoff from the United States, he has apparently made no final decision, though he has evidently prepared for any eventuality.

The Americans have tried unsuccessfully in the past to ease Lon Nol aside, and it has been assumed that he will not leave voluntarily. The questions being asked now are who will give Lon Nol the necessary push and whether it will be too late to make any difference.

Most observers, including the Americans, regard the Phnom Penh government's position as virtually hopeless and believe that the best possible result that can be arranged is to negotiate an orderly and humane surrender to the Communist-led insurgents.

Lon Nol, who took power five years ago as a result of the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, is regarded as an obstacle to contacts with the insurgents.

The insurgents, who are nominally led by Sihanouk from his exile headquarters in Peking, have branded him and six other Phnom Penh leaders as traitors and marked them for execution.

Meanwhile, the U.S. airlift of vital supplies to Phnom Penh was suspended Saturday after insurgent rockets damaged two American cargo planes. Northeast of the airfield, Communist-led rebels overran a government position, and field reports said 20 Cambodian soldiers were dead or missing.

U.S. sources said more than a half-dozen rebel rockets slammed

Kissinger fails in Middle East

Will report to Ford today

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East peace mission failed Saturday. He is returning home today to report to President Ford and Congress.

After 17 days during which Kissinger shuttled back-and-forth four times between Egypt and Israel, U.S. spokesman Robert Anderson admitted, "Unfortunately the differences on a number of key issues have proved irreconcilable."

The chief stumbling block was Israel's demand — and Egypt's refusal — that Egypt "renounce the state of war" in return for a proposed Israeli withdrawal from the key Midi and Gitla passes and the Abu Rudeis oil field in the Sinai desert.

Anderson left a ray of hope by talking of "suspending" the negotiations and stated the need for "a period of reassessment," but Egypt declared bluntly that Kissinger's step-by-step approach to a peace settlement "is dead."

Egypt called for an immediate reconvening of the full-scale peace conference at Geneva, Switzerland, where the Soviet Union would have a say as cochairman of the conference with the U.S.

Egypt said Israel's demand for a renunciation of the state of war was out of line for a purely "military" agreement and Israel's bringing it up was bargaining "in bad faith."

An Israeli spokesman said, "From the early stages of the negotiations Israel stated its readiness to evacuate the passes and oil fields in return for a renunciation of the state of war by Egypt. Egypt refused to renounce the state of war and insisted it continue."

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Israel had presented several "impossible and impractical" proposals, including

40 MPH WINDS CUT POWER IN SOUTHLAND

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Winds that swept across the Southland Saturday and lashed Long Beach with 40-mile-per-hour gusts will be followed today by milder, sunny weather, forecasters said.

No serious damage was attributed to Saturday's gusts, but the winds hampered flying at the Long Beach Kite Festival (Pictures on Page B-1) and held the high to 62 degrees.

An officer at the Long Beach Marine Safety Department said winds at the marina were gauged at a steady 30 miles per hour, with occasional gusts up to 40.

About a dozen minor power outages in Long Beach were caused by the winds, Edison Co. District Manager George Hanawalt said.

The largest of the blackouts hit 200 customers in northeast Long Beach about 7:45 a.m., and lasted half an hour.

Most of the blackouts resulted from tree branches striking power lines or lines rubbing together in the wind, Hanawalt said.

$2,000 reward offered for slayer of woman

Bernadine Lewis, 30, of Anaheim was last seen alive at 4 p.m., Jan. 30., when she left Salty's Bar, 2299 E. Anaheim St. in Long Beach, with a dark-haired, neatly dressed man about 35.

Her nude, battered body was found in a trash can in Venice three days later. Three weeks after that, her car was found in Long Beach.

Long Beach and Los Angeles investigators are seeking the man who left the bar with the victim.

He is described as white, about 5 feet, 10 inches, 180 pounds, with dark, curly hair. He speaks French as a second language and is believed to be from Canada. He was wearing white trousers and a red blazer.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of Mrs. Lewis's slayer.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2526 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Or write: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Haldeman discloses talk to destroy tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman said Saturday Richard M. Nixon considered destroying his White House tapes as the Watergate crisis developed. Haldeman said he mistakenly advised against it.

Haldeman said in a television interview he had failed to anticipate the "enormous damage" the tapes would cause.

"And I never — stupidly — didn't really think the thing through to the point of realizing that," Haldeman said. "Nor did I think through the enormous damage that would be done to me and to Richard Nixon and to all the other participants..."

Haldeman said Nixon never directed either removal of the taping system or destruction of the tapes, but said:

"The President raised the question (of destroying the tapes), 'shouldn't it be done?' and I advised no."

"But at the time I — it was a very honest opinion," Haldeman said. "I thought it was a good idea to keep them for the historical value. And beyond that, because at that time Watergate was developing, I thought they would be valuable to the President in knowing — what had actually been said at various meetings in his office."

The tapes were not destroyed and eventually played a large part in driving Nixon from office and convicting Haldeman in the recent

Baby Brother — he's in jail first time

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Baby Brother started stealing at 11.

He's 19 now and in jail—for the first time.

But there were at least 65 other times, he admits with a shrug, that he could have ended up behind some kind of bars but didn't.

"I'd just tell them I was sorry...or I didn't do it and I didn't know who did it...and that I wanted out because I wanted to go back to school."

And, he says, it worked every time he faced a judge—and even he couldn't remember how many times that was.

Police have arrested the tall, slender youth 65 times—on charges ranging from curfew violation to robbery. In an earlier story, police indicated he had been arrested and convicted 65 times. However, police now say that the number of times he was convicted is not definitely known because records are incomplete. Court records show him appearing in court seven times; police records indicate 12 appearances. Though incomplete, both do show that he spent little, if any, time in jail or juvenile hall.

He admits to being confined in juvenile facilities "altogether...maybe a couple of months" as a result of the 65 arrests. But, he says, he could have been arrested, legitimately, at least twice that many times and wasn't.

"This is my first time behind bars...and my last," he says. "Jail and I don't go together."

Born in Birmingham, Ala., the youth was brought to Southwest Los Angeles when he was seven, and in four short years mastered the ways of the street.

His first "crime" he finds hard to remember.

"It's been a long time...I maybe ripped off a couple of bikes...I don't know."

What he does remember is the first time he was picked up by police.

"A friend asked if I wanted to help him rip off somebody's pad. I said 'yes' and went with him. They caught me because he told on me."

And here is where he learned of court procedures, he says.

"They held my partner...he pleaded guilty...but they let me go because it was my first time."

His second time in court he can't even recall:

"THERE were a whole lot of second times. Fighting the beast, I kept coming in and out, but I'd give them the same pitch—and they fell for it every time. I never met a judge I couldn't con."

MUSK OX calf, like ones in U.S.-Soviet deal, is shown at San Francisco Zoo. —AP Wirephoto

U.S., Russia aid dying species

WASHINGTON (AP)—A million years after their ancestors evolved in north-central Asia, 40 arctic musk oxen from Alaska will head back to Siberia aboard Soviet cargo planes as part of a U.S.-Soviet exchange of endangered animal species.

Soviet scientists are to arrive today in New York and then fly on to Alaska to join their American counterparts in overseeing capture and shipment of the hulking shaggy animals, which are now extinct in Siberia.

Eskimos piloting snowmobiles will catch the musk oxen — whose forebears migrated from Asia across a land bridge — on Nunivak Island, a national wildlife refuge off the western Alaska coast.

The 700-pound animals will then be loaded into Soviet Ilyushin 14 transport aircraft and flown across the Bering Sea to the northern fringes of Siberia, where the Soviets intend to re-establish oxen herds.

In return, U.S. scientists hope to receive later this year a shipment of Siberian polecats, to help augment a comparable species which could face extinction on this continent.

The animal exchange program, formulated under a 1972 U.S.-Soviet agreement on environmental protection, aims to demonstrate the scientific, nonpolitical benefits of detente.

However, the Interior Department has been reluctant to release full details on the musk oxen project because of concern that it might exacerbate anti-Soviet sentiment in Alaska.

As one Interior Department official explained, "the American commercial fisheries hate the Russians. And if they knew a Russian was coming into town, all hell could break loose at the Anchorage airport. So the Russian team is just going to zip in and zip out of Anchorage."

Also, the Interior Department has sought to minimize possible federal-state friction through advance briefings and coordination with Alaska officials.

"Alaska is acutely sensitive to the federal presence up there," said the Interior Department official. "In effect, they resent it because the federal government is not present in any other state to the degree that it is in Alaska.

To help insure state cooperation, E.U. Curtis Bohlen, an Interior deputy assistant secretary, flew to Alaska to confer with Gov. Jay Hammond.

Heading the American team in the oxen roundup on Nunivak will be Ron Skoog, an Interior Department biologist in charge of a broader project to study the ecological impact of man in the Arctic.

Soviet scientists working with him will be Savva Uspensky, a specialist on Arctic birds and polar bears, and Mikhail Tarkov, head of a reindeer conservation program in Siberia's Magadon region.

Celebrities roasted at Gridiron

Combined News Services

President Ford gritted his teeth and practiced grinning at such song lines as "Jerry's skiing while King Faisal counts his earnings" for the Gridiron Club's 90th anniversary dinner and roasting of Washington celebrities Saturday.

The event marked two firsts for the club: the first woman member —White House reporter Helen Thomas of United Press International—was initiated, and the wives of the President and vice president were among the guests at the once all-male white-tie affair.

Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller helped initiate new members who, in addition to Miss Thomas, included Godfrey Sperling of the Christian Science Monitor, Dan Thomasson of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and Carroll Kilpatrick of the Washington Post.

Skits lampooned Ford, Rockefeller ("If I were a poor man"), Secretary of State Henry Kissinger ("Wheeling and dealing with three kings of Orient"), women liberationists ("Give me a hen who's a stout-hearted hen"), Congress ("Ford can't balk us, we'll rule by caucus"), presidential candidates ("We've got a loverly bunch of coconuts), the economy ("Hoover Days are Here Again" and "Trickle down, Winsocki, trickle down"), and others.

In a school gymnasium across town, meantime, the Journalists for Professional Equality held their second "counter-Gridiron," with some 500 guests who were told "blue jeans optional," and who paid $12.50 each for hotdogs and beer, bingo called by Lorne Green and several senators, dart games with pictures of various villains, telephone calls with Martha Mitchell, and a new energy game called Candlepower played with Treasury Secretary William Simon.

The counter-Gridiron was begun last year as a protest against the Gridiron's exclusion of women. When Miss Thomas was voted in, the JPE invitations were already mailed, so the protest was converted to a celebration.

Pacino

Actor Al Pacino is accused of breach of contract in a $50,000 Superior Court lawsuit filed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc., in Los Angeles.

MGM also is seeking an injunction prohibiting Pacino from participating in any threatrical production between now and Aug. 30. MGM alleges in the suit that Pacino violated an agreement he signed with the studio in March 1971 by refusing last January to accept a role in an upcoming production.

Candidate

Former Sen. Fred R. Harris Saturday announced he will enter the 1976 Massachusetts Democratic Presidential Primary and linked his campaign to the economy and open government.

The Oklahoma Democrat made the expected move at Boston's historic Fanueil Hall, the red-brick building considered the "cradle of liberty" because of the numerous meetings held there which led to the American Revolution. Harris stressed high unemployment and inflation in his speech.

Better

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 82, should be released from the intensive care unit of UCLA Medical Center "within the next several days," an Army spokesman said Saturday.

The spokesman said the nation's only living five-star general is expected to recover completely without residual effects from the stroke he suffered last Monday at his home in nearby Beverly Hills.

Bradley was reported to be resting comfortably and continuing to improve daily.

Differences

The wife of comedian Jack Carter is seeking to end the couple's four-year marriage, citing irreconcilable differences.

Roxanne Carter, 38, is seeking alimony from the 52-year-old nightclub entertainer and a property settlement which would include the couple's Beverly Hills home and their luxury foreign-made automobile, court records showed in Los Angeles.

Private

Retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate is determined his first meeting with the daughter born of a Soviet love affair will be private, giving them both time "to get to know each other," a family friend said Saturday in Orange Pak, Fla.

"The admiral is an admiral and he has some pretty firm ideas. He doesn't want this thing turned into a circus," said Ron Gillam, a friend who said he was acting as a spokesman because the admiral is not in good health.

Tate, serving as a naval attache in Russia during World War II, was ordered out of the country when Stalin found out about his love affair with actress Zoya Fyodorova. Tate did not learn he had a daughter, Victoria, until 1963.

After a four-month campaign to obtain a visa, Victoria Fyodorova, herself a Russian film actress, received official permission last week to visit her ailing father.

May amount to $120 million

Jackie's inheritance won't be taxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jacqeline Onassis may move into a higher tax bracket as the result of her inheritance from her late husband, but she won't have to pay any tax on the inheritance itself.

The U.S. government does not have an inheritance tax, although it does have an estate tax which would apply to property in the United States owned by her late husband, Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

But whatever the estate tax due, it would be paid by the Onassis estate from the wealth of the estate. Mrs. Onassis would pay no tax on her inheritance. And Athens officials said she would be free from Greek inheritance taxes since she is not a Greek citizen or resident.

The inheritance Mrs. Onassis may receive from the estate may be close to $120 million, family sources say, which would make her one of the richest women in the U.S.

A trust fund of $15 million each has been arranged for the two children of Mrs. Onassis, John Kennedy Jr. and Caroline, whom she had by her first husband, the late President John F. Kennedy.

The main inheritor of the Onassis fortune, estimated at $600 million, apparently will be Onassis' daughter, Christina, 24, which would make her one of the world's wealthiest women. The wealth is primarily in three shipping companies and substantial real estate, including the Greek island of Scorpios.

Mrs. Onassis would not be required to pay any tax on the $120 million she receives from the estate, if, indeed, that is the true amount.

However, if some of that inheritance is in the form of income-producing property, she would have to pay taxes on the income she receives. For example, if she inherits stock that pays dividends, she would be taxed at normal rates on the dividends.

Similarly, trusts received by the Kennedy children probably would not be subject to tax, but income received from the trusts would be.

The extent of the Onassis holdings in this country is not publicly known. But one of the most conspicuous investments is the 52-story Olympic Towers office-apartment building being built in New York.

Part of the Onassis art collection that is said to be in Mrs. Onassis' New York City apartment might also be included.

The U.S. estate tax for estates of foreigners allows an exemption of at least $30,000 before the tax is computed.

If the taxable U.S. estate of a foreigner totals $1 million, the tax would be $120,000. For an estate of $2 million, the tax is $320,000, and it is 25 per cent of anything over $2 million.

The situation is the same for New York State, where Mrs. Onassis has lived. A spokesman for the state tax department said the state inheritance tax is levied on the estates of taxable residents, not on the heir.

He said that since Onassis was not a taxable resident, the inheritance would not be taxed there.

Spends 60% of donations on self

Guru keeps 'mission' deep in debt

DENVER (UPI)—Beneath the spiritual bliss of the Guru Maharaj Ji's Denver-based Divine Light Mission lie more than $300,000 in unpaid bills and a never ending fund drive, according to the guru's former financial analyst.

"The material wishes of the guru, which take out 60 per cent of the income, are the most important thing in the Mission," said Michael D. Garson, 35. "And nobody much worries about the unpaid bills."

Garson became a devotee in May 1974 and took over as financial director in August. He resigned in February "because I could not tolerate the contradictions."

Garson said there is a continuing $300,000 debt caused by declining revenues and the demands of the recently married 17-year-old Divine Master.

"When the Guru wants something, be it a $30,000 car or a new house, he gets it," according to Garson. So far it includes eight sports cars, mansions in Denver and Los Angeles, an assortment of stereo gear and expensive watches and clothes.

Meanwhile, other mission bills go unpaid. For example, Millenium '73, the mission's huge festival at the Astrodome, was paid for only after mission equipment and files were repossessed.

Garson said many fiscal problems are due to a lack of business understanding.

"They say they are a spiritual group and not a business organization," he said. "They just don't understand that it is the law of the land that you have to pay for things by the date promised."

Another part of the problem, according to Garson, is the economic status of the followers.

"Most of them cannot hold a job that pays more than $2 an hour and then there are those in the Ashrams—those who work for the guru alone—who total 572 and are totally supported by the mission," he said.

It is understandable that a recent tithing program proved fruitless.

Garson said one method used to balance the budget is asking rich premies—those who have recently become devotees—for donations, preferably their entire savings.

He said one woman, Darby McNeal of Canada and her $400,000 trust fund, is a good example of that.

"Bob Mishler, the mission's executive director, talked Darby into signing over power of attorney shortly after she joined," said Garson, who says he was instructed to collect the money for the mission.

According to Garson, the mission has been given several trust funds, and several families, including Miss McNeal's, are contesting the action.

He said donations, averaging $100,000 a month at the height of the guru's 1973 recruitment, now struggle to reach $40,000. The deficit, according to Garson, has resulted in a form of check kiting where checks are written on funds not necessarily available at the time.

Garson said he plans to write a book on the inside workings of the mission, and he said he hopes the organization manages to avoid bankruptcy.

"There are some people that are trying to get the mission on the right track," he said. "But it takes a lot of money to keep a guru."

Warrant withdrawn for figure in Hearst case

BURLINGAME (AP) — Authorities here said Saturday they have withdrawn an arrest warrant against Jack Scott, sought by the FBI for questioning in the Patricia Hearst case.

Scott, 33, had been named in an auto embezzlement warrant after he failed to return a car he rented Feb. 27 to the agency by the March 1 due date.

San Mateo County Asst. Dist. Atty. Aram Serverian said police withdrew the warrant on Friday "because further investigation showed we didn't have sufficient evidence to prove him guilty."

Scott, a radical critic of the sports establishment, and his wife, Micki, have been mentioned in news reports as having rented a Pennsylvania farmhouse used last summer as a hideout for Miss Hearst and three fellow fugitives.

Scott, who now is not charged by any jurisdiction with any criminal violations, has not been seen publicly for more than two weeks.

Meantime, the Chicago Sun-times reported reported that an unnamed "young athletic type" with ties to basketball star Bill Walton was cooperating with the FBI in their search for Miss Hearst.

Bill rekindles marijuana debate

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

With the passage last week of the State Senate bill intended to minimize the criminal penalties for possession of marijuana, the long-smoldering debate over the issue has been rekindled.

But this time, the tables are slightly turned.

Similar legislation had twice passed both houses of the Legislature and been forwarded to former Gov. Ronald Reagan for his signature. Both were vetoed over the objections of the bills' proponents, who argued that marijuana has not been proved harmful and is widely used despite existing penalties.

However, the current bill's backers appear certain it will be passed by the Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Brown, who has indicated hewould approve the legislation.

AND THIS time, it's the law-enforcement officials who are marshaling a series of arguments regarding the proposed law.

Led by State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, who Friday critized the bill as "unrealistic, cumbersome and expensive," law-enforcement officials say they are strongly opposed to the legislation.

The bill, which squeaked through the Senate Thursday on a 21-to-16 vote, calls for the reduction of criminal penalties levied against marijuana users.

Currently, a person arrested for possessing a small amount of marijuana may be convicted of a misdemeanor or a felony depending on the discretion of the court. Felony convictions usually are reserved for habitual offenders, and most persons arrested on a first offense are either "diverted" (let go without any penalty) or fined $125, according to police officials. Defendants, however, are often left with felony arrest records.

AS WRITTEN, the new bill would drastically reduce those penalties, according to the bill's author, Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco.

The most controversial portion of the bill would reduce possession of up to one ounce of marijuana (enough to roll 20 to 60 cigarettes, depending on the grade) to a minor misdemeanor. Violators of the law would be issued a traffic ticket-like citation, and the offense would be punishable by a maximum fine of $100. There would be no limit to the amount of citations a person could receive.

Existing felony penalties for persons convicted of cultivating, selling, transporting or providing marijuana to minors would not be changed.

"IT'S A ridiculous law," says Long Beach police narcotics Lt. James Miller. "There are just a lot of practical problems with it."

Miller, who has argued his case before legislative committees, contends that the law will allow just about anyone to have as much marijuana as he or she wishes—with only minor inconvenience.

"Really, what the whole thing boils down to is that you can have as much 'pot' as you want," Miller says. "You can have an ounce at 5 o'clock today, you can have another ounce at 6 o'clock, another one at 7 and so on.

"And that 'ounce' figure is insulting the public's intelligence," Miller adds. He says most Americans think an ounce is a small amount, when, in fact, it's a month's supply for the average user.

"Who would want more than a month's supply of beer at one time?" he asks.

ASIDE from the logistics of enforcing the proposed law—which could cause officers to run to the station with a person and his marijuana to weigh it or to carry scales around in their patrol cars—Miller says the minimized penalties would also make it more difficult for police to stop the flow of marijuana into the country.

"This bill would make it almost legal to possess the drug, while it's still a felony to sell it," Miller explains. "The general public seems to believe that drugs are distributed by big money men who drive around in Cadillacs. Well, that's just what you see on TV. Ninety-nine per cent of the action (sales) occur in small amounts—somebody selling to a friend. If you're going to do anything about the distribution system, you've got to do it amongst the users," the lieutenant says.

MILLER claims the bill, if signed into law, "will put law enforcement officers in an impossible position.

"You're going to increase the demand while expecting us (police) to stop the supply," Miller reasons. "It's crazy. I'm sure those sellers in Mexico and Jamaica are sitting back, wringing their hands and saying, 'Hot dog. Were going to make a mint.'"

Miller contends the law, as it now exists, is "flexible, congenial and compatible." He points to statistics that he says show most persons arrested under existing laws for marijuana use never really go to jail

"A RESEARCH poll taken a year ago showed that 51 per cent of adult Californians favored easing the penalties for using marijuana," Miller says. "But," he claims, "the general public doesn't really understand the existing laws. Those people who were polled thought marijuana users went to jail, and that's just not true. The average fine now is $125 for a misdemeanor conviction. And 60 per cent of the first-time users are let go through the diversion program without getting a criminal record.

"What this new law would do," Miller continues, "is cause a lot more people to use a very harmful drug. There will be more people driving under the influence and more accidents because of it."

Los Angeles County Sheriff's Capt. Jerry Harper, commander of the Sheriff's Information Bureau, agrees with Miller.

"MAYBE in three to five years, the scientific community will have a better grip on the physical and mental effects of smoking marijuana," he says. "But right now, there's no reason to practically legalize another social ill."

Harper also says that there can by no valid comparison between the proposed California law and the existing liberalized law in Oregon, which took effect 18 months ago.

"You have to remember that Oregon is a rural state," Harper says. "We sit a lot closer to the Mexican border, and marijuana is a much larger problem here."

(Surveys taken in Oregon—where marijuana users are given traffic ticket-type citations—show marijuana use has not significantly increased since the law took effect.)

THOUGH proponents of the Moscone bill contend that easing penalties for marijuana use would free police manpower for other duties and help eliminate the logjam in the courts, Harper says that isn't so.

"Studies show that most of the people arrested for marijuana offenses would have come to the attention of law-enforcement officals for some other crime anyway," Harper explains. "If we didn't arrest them for marijuana use, we'd just have to arrest them for drunken or reckless driving, assault and battery, etc."

Marijuana users, who for years have been practicing what they believe is freedom of expression and personal choice in an almost cloak-and-dagger manner, applaud the Moscone bill as a chance to "come out in the open."

"I THINK it's great (the Moscone bill). "I've been waiting for it for a long time," says a 21-year-old record store clerk. "The fine wouldn't stop me from smoking, but I don't think the lesser penalties will encourage me to smoke more, either," she says candidly.

"I've smoked for about five years, and I don't think it's hurt me. I try to get my work done, if I have something to do, before I sit down and relax with a joint. Being an alcoholic would be worse than smoking pot to me. Pot is easier to get off of—you don't get strung out like you do on alcohol."

Another marijuana user, a 26-year-old electrician, sees the situation in much the same light.

"The point is whether it's a fair law. I definitely think it's an improvement over the way things have been. The way things sit right now, it (the law) is more of a crime than smoking marijuana.

"I HAVE a friend in an Ohio jail who is serving a 10- to 20-year sentence for possessing a certain amount of pot. It's ridiculous," he adds.

"There's no great threat to anybody through the use of marijuana. It's not hurting anybody else if somebody wants to smoke pot."

The electrician, a former college stueent, calls the Moscone bill "more realistic than the existing law. It makes the law fit the 'crime' and you don't have to worry about having a criminal record for something so silly as a law that restricts personal freedom."

He adds that Harper's assessment of marijuana users "is a very limited view.

"MOST people I know smoke pot, and they're not criminals," he says. "I think you have to realize that most of the people who get busted for it probably don't have their heads very straight. Most people who smoke are discreet about it; they don't want to get busted.

Heavy rescue duty

Police and firemen work to free Dino Downs, 16, of 1970-2 19th St., from beneath the concrete light standard that pins him Saturday after the car he was driving went out of control on Baltic Avenue near Hill Street. Police said they were hampered by live wires and rainy weather at the 4:30 a.m. accident. Downs was taken to Pacific Hospital where doctors used three stitches to close a cut under his chin and then released him. Police said the 1963 car was destroyed. —Photo by BOB McDONALD

No sentencing of felons faulted

Police agencies throughout the state have criticized the lack of sentencing of convicted felons and blame, for the most part, the state's plan of paying probation agencies for keeping convicted criminals out of prison and allowing them to remain on probation.

They cite county-wide statistics showing that, in 1962, 53.2 per cent of those convicted of both felonies and misdemeanors went to correctional agencies, compared with only 30.6 in 1972.

Probation figures in 1962 showed 33.3 per cent were placed on probation, compared with 60.5 per cent 10 years later.

In 1973, the statistics show, only one out of every 20 convicted burglars went to prison.

At times, he said, his mother would help:

"My momma would do a lot of talking too...she's pretty good at talking."

But all her talking couldn't keep him out of trouble on the street—his face bears the scars of several obviously serious knife fights.

And she couldn't keep him out of trouble with the law, he admits.

"She tried to tell me not to do it...to stay in the house...not go out, but I didn't listen. And, I'd never show her the things that I stole.

"I WANTED money. That money is what did it. If I needed money I'd go out and steal. But I never really got all I needed.

I felt I could do anything I wanted to do and never do any jail time. I was never afraid of doing any time. If the police were around, I'd just wait until they left.

"I stole a whole lot of things...then I'd walk up and down the street and sell them...panhandle...but you got to sell the stuff cheap, so you got to steal a lot."

Although his police record shows more than theft arrests, and includes one arrest for narcotics possession, he claims he's not a "user" and only tried marijuana once—for which he was arrested. He recalls being released on a technicality.

AN ADMITTED "loner," he claims to belong to no street gang. However, he says, he has been the target—at least once—of an attempted gangland execution because of mistaken identity. Although he walks slowly with slumped shoulders and his head bowed, he claims he got away because he has "fast feet."

"Man, I can run fast when I have to...But those guys got their own thing," he says in talking about the street gangs that have been keeping police busy, "and as long as they don't bother me everything is cool."

However, on the street he had trouble with the police constantly, he says:

"THEY jacked me a whole lot of times...whomped me around. They were coming to my pad every day looking for me but they never caught me. And, they picked me up a lot of times—a couple of times for something I didn't do."

But, he says, in court he always pleaded innocent—until now. He currently is serving a year in the minimum security section of the County's Wayside Honor Rancho near Castaic.

"Most of my partners would cop to something and go to jail for a short time. What they'd do is plead guilty and I'd plead not guilty. A lot of them know what I know and don't plead guilty. Many of them are doing time now because they copped to a little county time, rather than fight to the end."

WHY DID he change his strategy?

"They had me on robbery and GTA (grand theft auto) and that meant hard time, so I copped (pleaded guilty) to attempted burglary and got the other dropped. I got a year. (He is scheduled to be released after serving eight months.)

A dropout from Fremont High School in Los Angeles, he maintains his pitch about going back to school has saved him from many a jail sentence.

BUT THAT, he says, is what he intends to do when he gets out of jail this time.

Flashing a smile that shows a gold front tooth and the personality that has kept him free for 18½ years, he says, "I don't intend to do anything wrong again.

"I think I'll go back to school."

Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks said he has been in telephone contact with his two subordinates, but all he would say was that the evidence was deposited with the police department in Alexandria for safekeeping until Capizzi and Coleman fly home.

Hicks refused to elaborate on the amount or type of evidence found, but did say it is considered important enough to put before the grand jury.

Upton, No. 2 man in the department since Jack P. Vallerga became assessor after Hinshaw was elected to Congress in 1972, was one of nine assessor's officials indicted on assorted charges of defrauding the county when they worked as volunteers on Hinshaw's first election drive.

Upton, 54, was charged with three counts of grand theft and making false claims. He was also indicted on three bribery counts incident to alleged acceptance of about $900 worth of electronics and radio gear from the Radio Shack for use aboard his 38-foot boat at Newport Harbor.

The Tandy Corp.'s Radio Shack division allegedly was under-assessed on its regional warehouse in Garden Grove, which supplies Radio Shack stores in the Southland.

Meanwhile, Vallerga said Saturday that he will suspend Upton from his duties in the office until the charges against him are resolved.

Vallerga said the latest charges deal with fidelity of the office itself. He did not move against Upton after the first accusation because he considered it "political in nature."

Highway deaths, mileage up

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Deaths and mileage are up on the state's highways, the California Highway Patrol said Saturday.

Kent Milton, the CHP information officer, said: "With both deaths and mileage increased, we can draw a pretty logical conclusion that they are related."

Milton said, however, that the 1975 death rate is below that of 1973 due the 55-mph speed limit, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1974.

In January, February and March of this year, Milton said, gas sales were up about 7 per cent over the same months in 1974, when the energy crisis was in full force.

The CHP said that in January and February of this year there were 581 deaths on California roads, compared with 468 in 1974. In that period in 1973 there were 668 deaths.

The number of motorists on the highways has climbed to more than 16 million this year from about 15 million last year, Milton said.

"But whether it's more motorists or the same guys driving more miles, what's the diference?" Milton asked.

Milton added that the CHP's previous commissioner, Walter Pudinski, said in the past that when people were trying to figure out why the highway death toll was dropping "they overlooked reduced traffic."

City ills blamed on cars

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal officials have harmed cities by favoring private automobiles over mass-transit systems, San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto charged Saturday.

"We need to quit treating public transportation like an orphan," Alioto told a regional meeting of the National Conference of Democratic Mayors.

The meeting is the third of seven to be conducted around the country on various urban issues.

Alioto said federal highways, freeways and interstate systems had benefited autos and called for a similar boost for mass transit.

DWP 'clean fuel oil' costs to triple

Associated Press

The Department of Water and Power will be paying nearly three times as much for low-sulfur fuel oil as it was under its old contract, but increases probably won't be passed to consumers "until November," officials said Saturday.

Under a new contract with Atlantic Richfield Co. approved by the city Friday, the DWP will pay ARCO $15.53 per barrel of fuel oil for 500,000 barrels a month from July 1, 1975 to March 31, 1977. DWP now pays $5.40 per barrel under a contract signed in November 1972.

"The fuel adjustment charge to consumers is computed according to the amount of energy used, anything over 3.5 mills per kilowatt hours," said Ed Freudenburg, public affairs representative for the utility. "The contract starts in July. It takes about four months from the time we start using the oil for those costs to start reaching the consumer so these increases won't be passed along, probably until November."

He said the amount of the rate increases would depend on the amount of energy used, and it would change from month to month.

City Councilman Robert C. Farrell earlier asked DWP official Carl Osborn if the $15.53 was "the best we can get at DWP."

"It's a good offer for a two-year contract," said Osborn. "We negotiated long and intensely with ARCO...and for a long-term contract for nonsulfur oil, this is the price we would expect to pay."

The ARCO contract will provide about one-third of DWP's average monthly requirement, and the department is obligated to buy at least $162.7 million worth of oil.

An escalation clause that provides for an increase in the price if the base crude oil price goes up is included in the contract.

Chairman Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said the 10 Senators and 10 House members on the committee agreed on four basic areas in which Congress must act to "combat the most grave economic emergency in the postwar era."

In addition to the tax cut to stimulate the economy, Humphrey said Democrats and Republicans agree that Congress should create a major public-service jobs program, expand existing unemployment compensation benefits and relax monetary policies to bring down interest rates, expand consumer credit and boost home building.

However, the eight Republican members of the committee issued a minority statement in which they disagreed with many of the specific recommendations in the report.

"We do not accept the magnitude of the spending programs urged on us by the majority," Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, the ranking Republican on the panel, told a briefing at which the report was released.

In addition to the emergency measures the committee called for, it proposed a long-range economic recovery program that included proposals for tax reform, energy conservation, a national food policy, aid to state and local governments and international trade.

The 136-page report, which was strongly critical of the Ford administration's economic-recovery programs, cited testimony taken over the past two months from some 35 witnesses representing the administration, the business and financial community and organized labor.

"Inflation fears are no longer credible reasons for inadequate counter-recession policies," the committee said.

Asserting that the U.S. economy "is in worse condition today than it has been at any time" since the end of World War II, the committee said President Ford's economic recovery program would do little to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

In addition, it said Ford's energy conservation proposals will cause even more inflation by driving up the cost of petroleum and petroleum products.

"In its concern with inflation, the administration has consistently ignored this threat," the report stated. "Now, belatedly, it is proposing inadequate remedies."

The report predicted that if the administration's economic recovery program is followed, unemployment will rise to 9.2 or 9.5 per cent by the end of 1976 and real national output will significantly decline.

Humphrey said the committee's proposals would reduce unemployment to about 6.5 to 6.8 per cent by the end of 1976.

Specifically, the report urged the following steps to bring about "a quick and sustainable economic recovery":

— Quick enactment of personal and business tax reductions totaling $32 billion to $35 billion, including $12 billion to $15 billion in personal tax cuts;

— Cost-of-living adjustments in federal income support programs;

— Antirecession grants to state and local governments, at a rate determined by the level of unemployment; — Expansion of existing emergency state and local public-service jobs programs to create a minimum of new jobs at the rate of 500,000 at 6 per cent unemployment and a maximum of one million jobs at 8 per cent unemployment.

— A federally administered public-service employment program triggered to start at 8 per cent unemployment and providing 500,000 jobs at the 8 per cent level and an additional 500,000 jobs for each percentage point of unemployment above that level;

— A federal reserve policy to reduce both short and long-term interest rates and keep them low through 1975, combined with a temporary mortgage subsidy program for low- and moderate-income families;

— A strengthened Council on Wage and Price Stability and the creation of an economic planning agency to assess future economic trends.

Disputing the argument of administration spokesmen that "more expansionary policies threaten to rekindle inflation," the committee report declared:

"A strong recovery this year and next should have a favorable impact on prices because gains in productivity will help hold down cost increases.

"So long as the economy is running far below its optimum level with productive resources lying idle, an expansionary strategy will not add to inflationary pressures."

However, the report conceded that as unemployment declines, "such pressures can emerge in specific sectors of the economy."

said one official.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen repeated what he had said previously — that Ford would delay his planned Easter holiday in Palm Springs, Calif., until Congress completes action on the tax-cut measure.

By the time the Senate passed the bill early Saturday, it provided, among other things, that most individual taxpayers would get rebates of $120 to $240 on their 1974 taxes and a $40 cut in 1975 taxes.

AN OPTIONAL tax credit would help familes with less than $20,000 income who itemize deductions. A special "work bonus" up to $400 would apply to low-income working families. Each Social Security benefit recipient would get a onetime $100 bonus. The vote on the bill was 60 to 29.

The House bill provides a smaller 1974 rebate and a special tax break for single persons and couples too poor to pay income taxes.

STAFF specialists for the tax-cut conferees Saturday began analyzing the numerous amendments the Senate made to the House bill. The conferees themselves go to work Monday morning. They will try to produce a version on which both chambers can vote by Wednesday, the target day for beginning the Easter recess. Leaders in both chambers said they think the deadline will be met.

With little debate, the House voted, 281 to 18, Saturday to set up the conference, already requested by the Senate.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chief House conferee, said he thinks agreement will be reached, but added, "It will be a rough conference ..."

ULLMAN, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said there is no doubt that the controversial oil-depletion allowance will be repealed, since both versions provide for ending it, though on different terms. Still to be settled, he said, is whether the Senate's exemption allowing smaller producers to retain the allowance will be kept and on what schedule the repeal may be phased in.

Ullman said, however, that other changes affecting overseas business operations "introduce tremendous complications ... These are the kinds of things that need hearings and full committee consideration."

He said there are at least 15 controversial differences between the bills, including five or six Senate provisions that the House, under the stricter rules restricting bills to relevant subject matter, could not have been attached.

HOUSE Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said he thinks agreement will be reached and the final figure will be closer to the House than the Senate version.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., also said he thinks there is a good chance of agreement this week.

The 1974 tax rebates in the Senate bill were estimated to cost the Treasury $10 billion, the optional $200-a-person tax credit — more valuable than the $750 exemption for many taxpayers — $6.1 billion, the reduction in 1975 taxes $2.3 billion and the $100 Social Security payments $3.4 billion.

The "Work Bonus" providing a maximum $400 tax cut for working families with less than $8,000 income, a sort of offset for Social Security tax, would cost $1.5 billion.

A provision for a reduction of up to $2,000 in taxes for persons purchasing new homes between March 13 and Dec. 31 would cost $1 billion.

Other Senate provisions and their cost include:

—Extra emergency aid for persons out of work for a year, 150 million to $200 million.

—Tax cuts for the cost of baby sitters for working parents, up to $600 each, $800 million.

—Tax benefits for persons installing insulation and similar energy-saving equipment and those buying solar heating or cooling devices, $500 million.

—Special tax relief for financially ailing businesses such as Chrysler Corp., $500 million.

—Additional business tax relief, especially liberalized tax credits for purchase of new equipment, $7 billion.

Transit accord; strike goes on

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both sides in the eight-day transit strike here endorsed a tentative contract Saturday, but an immediate end to the walkout remained unlikely.

Officials of the Transport Workers Union (TWU) said they would recommend acceptance of the 21 per cent pay increase in the contract, approved by the city transit authority only after intervention of federal Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr.

ASPIRIN TOPS CODEINE IN STUDY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Simple aspirin and its most common substitute fight the pain of wisdom tooth removal more effectively than codeine, a Georgetown University study said Saturday.

Both aspirin and its substitute, acetaminophen — marketed under such names as Tylenol, Nebs and Tempra — are cheaper than codeine and available without prescription. The report said they have none of the known side effects of codeine, so a patient can function better immediately after surgery.

Dr. Stephen A. Cooper of GU's School of Medicine and Dentistry, gave both codeine and acetaminophen to 160 persons who had wisdom teeth removed. An earlier experiment with aspirin showed similar results.

Acetaminophen, unlike aspirin, does not cause stomach upset, which is particularly important to ulcer patients. Nor does it interfere with blood clotting, an important consideration for patients prone to bleeding problems, the study said.

Both aspirin and its substitute act directly on the center of pain and help prevent swelling. Codeine, which affects the body more generally, often causes drowsiness and nausea, the report said.

Cooper said aspirin and acetaminophen may be used more in the future to treat dental pain "rather than ... potent narcotics which carry more dangerous side effects."

Scientists reveal new treatments for cancer

By RICHARD SALTUS

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Nobel Prize-winning researcher is testing a new way of killing cancer cells by studying their diets, then slipping potent anticancer drugs into the foods they like best.

Another scientist investigating cancer at the cell level reported that sperm cells may invade cells in the male prostate and, following sexual intercourse, the female cervix, causing them to turn cancerous.

Although she said she was not advocating "a surgeon general's warning against sex," the New York scientist said sperm cells may be part of the reason for such cancer.

BOTH studies were presented at an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers. Some 50 leading cancer researchers have gathered here to tell the press what's new in the fight against the killer disease.

Dr. Christian de Duve, 1974 Nobel Prize recipient for physiology and medicine, said his experimental cancer treatment is designed to deliver lethal doses of drugs to cancer cells without harming normal tissues.

He said he and a group of Belgian scientists are testing a method analagous to poisoning someone at a party — "You find out what he likes to drink and put the poison in the olive for his martini."

SOME kinds of cancer cells are "greedy" for nutrients, said De Duve, adding these can be knocked off by attaching the anticancer drug to an innocuous substance which the cell would devour. In the Belgian research, leukemia cells were attacked by attaching drugs called daunorubicin and adrianycin to DNA, the genetic substance present in all cells.

De Duve, professor at the Rockefeller University of New York, said the hungry cancer cells gobble up the DNA along with the poisonous drugs and are killed off. Normal cells have pickier appetites and aren't harmed, he said.

THE researcher said his way of selectively attacking cancer cells has been tried on leukemia in mice, but is in a primitive phase.

Dr. Ellen Borenfreund of the Sloan-Kettering Institute told the seminar Friday of her work with spermatazoa, the male sex cells that drive their pointed heads into female eggs following intercourse.

It had not been known that these same sperm cells may also pierce their way into normal body cells in the cervix or the male prostate gland. But when she and her colleagues mixed sperm and normal cells in the laboratory, they found that this did happen. The result was that the normal cells and their offspring showed abnormalities resembling cancer, said Dr. Borenfreund.

"THIS FITS in with the evidence that there is a high incidence of prostate and cervical cancer in people who have intercourse, but celebates and eunuchs don't get these kinds of cancer," she said.

She said it might be that the sperm cells transmitted a message to the cervix or prostate cells that transformed them into cancer cells. Or, she speculated, it might be that the sperms carried viruses that infected the normal cells.

The search has not yet been done on human cells in the body — only in the laboratory, she said.

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita, director of the division of cancer treatment at the National Cancer Institute, said there is a growing acceptance of anticancer drugs among physicians away from major cancer centers.

BUT HE said many cancer victims still are not getting the chemical therapy that might be able to save their lives or at least prolong them.

"It's like any profession. When you've learned one thing one way, it's hard to turn it around," DeVita said, "it's a slow process."

Thirty years ago malignant lumps were considered isolated and were treated either by the surgeon's knife or a radiation beam, he said. Survival figures rose and then leveled off.

"The reason was obvious. What appeared to be a regional disease often wasn't. Tumors recurred and patients died with advanced disease."

DEVITA said the answer to that state of affairs was to treat the whole body system with chemicals that kill cancer cells wherever they may be.

Power poll

We are interested in buying a new home, preferably a townhouse, but we have found that the majority of them are all-electric. After reading stories about the rising costs of electricity and the shortages, we'd like to know if we would be wise to stick with gas and electricity or would it be safe to take a chance on an all-electric home? E.H., Long Beach.

Although experts currently view a combination natural gas and electricity system as the most economical plan, electricity most likely will be around much longer than gas, which is a finite resource. Also, gas prices are expected to rise sharply, soon. There have been shortages of steam-generated electricity in some areas because heating oil, which is in short supply, is used to power the turbines that produce the steam, but there are other ways to generate electricity, such as with nuclear power plants and hydroelectric (water powered) systems, which aren't affected by the petroleum crisis. Experiments in producing electricity with giant windmills and even laser beams also have been performed. In this area, the natural gas supply is expected to last for a considerable length of time—at least through the end of the century—and research is being conducted to develop methods of converting organic wastes to methane gas as an alternative source. But since the natural gas reserves are dwindling, the price is expected to increase dramatically in the near future and it is unclear just how long the combination system may be the most economical plan.

Play back

In September I sent copies of two of my plays to the MET Theatre in Los Angeles, responding to its advertisement in an entertainment trade magazine soliciting manuscripts. I've written letters inquiring about my plays ever since but have not received the courtesy of a response. Can you help me get my scripts back? D.E.K., Long Beach.

By now the MET Theatre has contacted you and agreed to pay the cost of making new copies of the two plays from your original manuscripts. The scripts were taken to San Francisco by an actor who was participating in the theatre's workshop program and not returned, according to Tim Scott, part-owner of the theatre. The intent of the workshop was to have professional actors try out material by new playwrights in an attempt to aid the financially troubled theatre, but it wasn't successful, Scott added.

Flight pattern

Is it dangerous or unhealthy to let a parakeet fly around the room? M.F., Long Beach.

There should be no health problems for members of the household if the bird is healthy, but the bird may be in danger if it tries to fly through a too-clean window and breaks its neck or escapes through an open door and perishes in the hostile outside environment. If the bird shows signs of ill health or respiratory disease, it could have Psittacosis, a viral disease readily transmitted to humans, according to a Los Alamitos veterinarian. The danger then would be present whether the bird remains in the cage or flies about the house. The disease in humans can exhibit no symptoms or it can be similar to pneumonia. The disease is not too common and birds raised in a healthy environment should be free of it, the doctor said. To keep your uncaged parakeet from escaping, Bob Busenbark, owner of the Palos Verdes Bird Farm in Torrance and author of five books on birds, suggests you have some of the feathers clipped from one wing. If done properly, he said, it will not show. The bird will fly in a semicircle and downward, thus making it easy to catch. He said most pet shops will clip the wing and show the bird owner how to do it himself.

Loose at seams

The wallpaper in my bathroom is coming loose at the seams probably because of the steam and the heat. The paper is expensive and beautiful and I would prefer not to replace it. Is there anything I can do to save it? J.W., Long Beach.

You can reseal the seams with a product called Stanfix, a steam and moisture resistant glue which should solve the problem, according to a spokesman for Fine Decor Wall Coverings, 1965 E. 21st St. You can buy Stanfix at most stores that carry wallpaper. When selecting a wall covering for a bathroom, you should pick a canvas-backed pure vinyl because it can withstand the damaging effects of moisture better than paper, the spokesman said. The foil vinyls are especially durable on bathroom walls, she added.

Watergate cover-up trial.

Haldeman's remarks were made during a lengthy interview by Mike Wallace of CBS News. The first portion will be broadcast tonight and the second half next Sunday.

There were few revelations in the first segment, for which CBS paid $25,000. Haldeman denied that the Nixon White House was guilty of "arrogance of power," denied that he and Nixon were cruel — "I'd use the word 'tough'" — and said the entire Watergate scandal has been characterized with "verbal excess."

Haldeman said the spying activities of former White House aide Anthony Ulasewicz "was a purely political activity that in retrospect I don't think anybody is really proud of." The White House "plumbers" break-in at the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was, he said, "totally inexplicable to me."

Haldeman, whose association with Nixon goes back to the early 1960s, said the former President was "probably one of the least understood, most complex, most confusing men who has ever sat in the White House."

He said sections of "the other 99.99 per cent of the tapes" will show the American people "the great things that Richard Nixon did, the great strong, incisive and decisive leader that he was 90 per cent of the time."

Lon Nol said set to flee Cambodia into the Pochentong Airport unloading area within five minutes in the early morning, rupturing the steering on a Bird Air C130 airship and setting the wing of a Trans International DC8 on fire.

No Americans were injured, but at least 17 Cambodians were wounded by the salvo, airport sources said. On Friday, five Cambodian rice handlers were reported killed and 18 wounded in the same area.

An American source said the damaged cargo planes could not be repaired until insurgents were pushed out of rocket range of the airfield.

Near Tuol Leap, about six miles northeast of the airfield, a rapid insurgent attack forced government troops to abandon a small position, field reports said. Twenty government troops were dead or missing and 19 were wounded, they said.

In Vietnam, Communist-led troops using the biggest guns in their arsenal wrested their ninth province from South Vietnam Saturday, solidifying their control of the Central Highlands and putting them in a position to cut the country in two.

The fall of Quang Duc gave the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong command a huge swath of territory from Kontum in the northern highlands 200 miles southward through Phuoc Long province and to within 50 miles of Saigon.

From this springboard they could launch a drive eastward to the South China Sea, a decades-old strategy, slicing South Vietnam in half.

Field reports said civil servants were evacuated from Quang Duc before the final assault, but Saigon command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said the fate of 36,000 civilians in the province was not known.

Legions of other refugees continued their trek toward coastal havens from other fallen provinces in the western Central Highlands. (Related stories on Pages A-11, 12).

To the north of Quang Duc, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces closed in from three sides on the old capital of Hue. The Saigon command said two infantry positions manned by 300 government troops were overrun.

Military sources said the Communist-led troops were preparing for a massive drive on Hue. Most of its 200,000 inhabitants have fled south and official sources say the government intends to cede the onetime imperial capital to Hanoi.

Winds disrupt power; sunny day forecast

Portions of Los Angeles and the San Fernando Valley were blacked out temporarily when high winds caused power outages, the Department of Water and Power said.

About 4,000 customers were affected by a series of power losses shortly after 7 p.m. in the Hollywood Hills, Eagle Rock, El Sereno and Mt. Washington. The blackouts lasted from an 1 to 1½ hours and hit mainly residential areas.

Another outage hit Van Nuys and Panorama City about 8:30 p.m., affecting about 800 customers.

The blustery weather came on the back of a gentle storm that dropped .31 inches of light rain on Long Beach Saturday morning.

As the winds die today warmer weather is expected, and a high temperature of 66 is forecast.

Offshore, west to northwest winds of 15 to 25 miles per hour will buffet Sunday sailors, forecasters said, and pleasure craft will bob along on 3- to 4-foot seas.

Forecasters also warned of the chance of local blowing snow in mountain areas and blowing dust and sand in the desert.

More serious weather problems hit Northern California, where stranded skiers and snowbound Sierra residents began to dig out from the latest storm.

Winds and snow kept U.S. Highway 50 closed over Echo Summit, and traffic congestion and snowfall forced reclosure of Interstate 80.

Winds of a different color plagued Midwest and Southern states Saturday, as a tornado preceded by a "strange blue light" destroyed trailers in Jackson, Tenn. Another twister in Bird's Corner, Mo., trapped a young couple in the wreckage of their trailer.

Jackson police said it was only luck that the Tennessee twister caused injuries to only 17 persons and no deaths.

Kissinger fails in Middle East

an eight-year duration for the agreement, open bridges between the two countries, joint exploitation of the oil fields, and joint military patrols.

In Washington, President Ford expressed regret at the failure but said the United States would continue its efforts to assist in achieving a "just and lasting peace" in the Middle East.

The breakdown in the talks came as Israeli troops maintained a heightened state of alert on the frontiers, in effect for the past two weeks. But Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told the Israeli people on television: "Israel remains a country with its face turned toward peaceful settlement."

While Kissinger has pressed his step-by-step diplomacy, Russia has campaigned for a return to the Geneva conference, which now appears inevitable. However, the Arabs have demanded the Palestine Liberation Organization also sit at the conference table and Israel has insisted it never will negotiate with the PLO.

Newsmen with Kissinger were informed that before leaving for Washington today, with a refueling stop in London, he will meet Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and former Prime Minister Golda Meir again.

Saturday afternoon, Kissinger lounged by the swimming pool with his wife Nancy before seeing Rabin again. After their first hour and 45 minutes together, reports began that the end had come.

Kissinger's announcement said, "Both sides have made a serious effort to reach a successful outcome. Unfortunately, the differences on a number of key issues have proved irreconcilable.

"We, therefore, believe a period of reassessment is needed so that all concerned can consider how best to proceed toward a just and lasting peace."

Kissinger said he had informed the parties he is suspending his present efforts and returning to Washington to report to President Ford and Congress. He said he will "remain in close touch with the parties and the cochairman of the Geneva conference (the Soviet Union) during the period ahead."

Does U.S. credibility rest on Indochina?

ADM. J. DENTON
Would 'raise ante'
—AP Wirephoto

BRUSSELS (UPI) — "Only a madman would keep on fighting in Indochina," said Vienna housewife Rosa Reincke. "It reminds me of the Nazis fighting on and on until all Europe was in ruins."

To British Brig. Sir Robert Thompson, who once advised Richard M. Nixon on Indochina battle strategy, the current situation has a different meaning.

"We are about to see the strategic surrender of the United States," he said. "I also do not see America standing by Israel. The American withdrawal from Indochina is the greatest retreat the world has seen since Napoleon himself retreated from Moscow."

In Europe and the Middle East, criticism of U.S. involvement in Indochina was widespread and bitter at the height of the war.

A UPI survey showed opinion is sharply divided on whether the United States should increase aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia and on whether failure to do so will, as the Ford administration warns, undercut American credibility in other areas.

The Arab press has quoted Syrian president Hafez Assad as telling Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that American failure to back up South Vietnam and Cambodia means the U.S. commitment to Israel also is in doubt.

Ahmed Al Sabeh, a Beirut office worker, said the Communist gains in Indochina show that "any country with the United States as its ally is not invincible, and this is an important lesson for us in the Arab world."

In Israel, the Jerusalem Post cautiously expressed concern over American policy: "The issue for the future is how the event in Indochina are going to affect America's understanding of its world role. As the dominoes fall, will the U.S.... realize anew that a great power must also assume the moral responsibility of inaction, which also shapes events?"

The view that American credibility is at stake was voiced by the London Daily Express, which commented, "The Israelis are going to draw bitter conclusions from the events in Southeast Asia... Great nations cannot conduct foreign policy on the vote-getting basis of catching the public mood."

But there is much support in Europe for the opposing view.

Ex-POW sees Indo aid vital

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Rear Adm. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr., the former POW who said "God bless America," to the nation when he landed in the Philippines in 1973, said Saturday the United States will lose its influence in Southeast Asia unless it provides emergency aid.

"We didn't start that poker game but if we once fail to call and leave the table we will have lost more than table stakes," Denton said. "We will have lost our whole wad because we will have proved our inability to call or to raise and every bet we make will be recognized as a bluff.

"We won't be able to win in any other game in town."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger says a loss of Southeast Asia to the Communists would not shift the world's military balance against the United States, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin. Schlesinger calls the impact of losing Vietnam and other Southeast Asia nations a "very slight weight indeed."

Denton, now commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, was the first POW to speak to the American people on Feb. 12, 1973, when freed prisoners began arriving at Clark Air Force Base. He was a prisoner of war for more than seven and a half years after his plane was shot down on a bombing run south of Hanoi in 1965.

President Ford asked Congress for $222 million in military aid to Cambodia and $300 million in emergency military aid to South Vietnam. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee cut the Cambodia aid figure to $82.5 million, attaching a cutoff date of June 30 but the full Senate has not acted on it.

A HOUSE committee rejected a plan to give Cambodia $60 million through June 30.

Neither body has taken any action on the request for aid to South Vietnam.

"I don't hate the North Vietnamese," Denton said, "but I know that they will continue to try to enmesh the South Vietnamese in the same system of tyranny to which the North turned in the desperation of hunger — unless the United States continues to demonstrate its resolve to help the South Vietnamese retain their freedom and then provide the promised economic help to both sides."

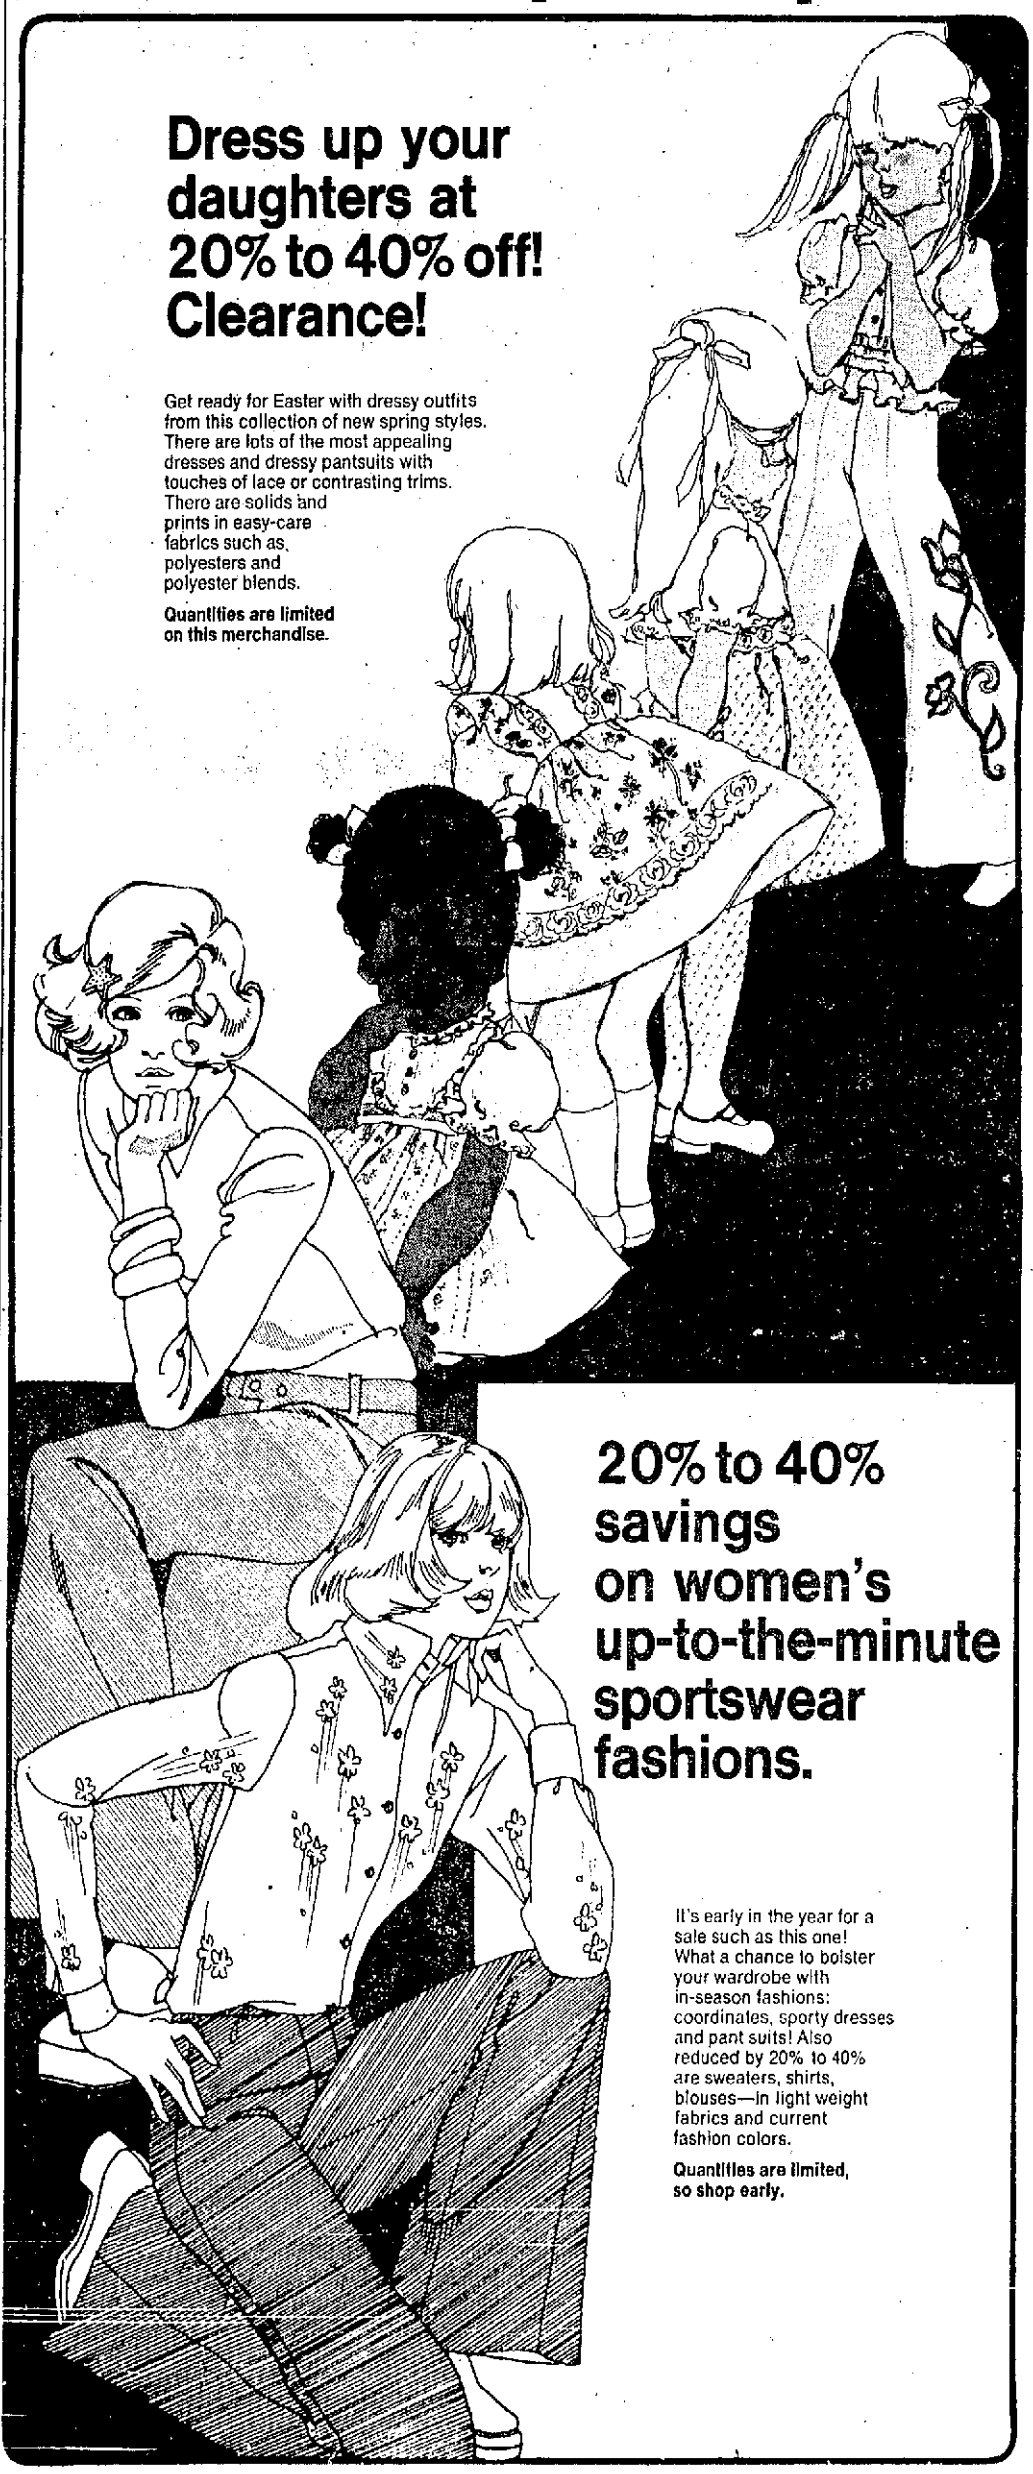

Pope deplores wartorn world

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI voiced anguish over Indochina and the future of Portugal on Saturday on the eve of Holy Week celebrations leading up to Easter.

"With pain we look at the manifold conflicts which are currently under way in the world," the 77-year-old pontiff said in an address to members of the Vatican Justice and Peace Commission.

The Pope's message came on the eve of Palm Sunday when he will bless palm leaves and olive branches and hand them out in a solemn ceremony ushering in the Holy Week.

Exodus: Everyone for himself

TUY HOA, South Vietnam (AP) — The helicopters spill out weeping women, children limping on bare feet and soldiers in blood-caked camouflage fatigues.

Some carry satchels and straw baskets, some have nothing but their lives.

The refugees, part of the biggest exodus of the Vietnam war, are flown to this coastal province headquarters, about 240 miles northeast of Saigon, from a column stalled 15 miles away.

An old woman drops down on the grass near the helicopter pad. "Now I know I am alive!" she says. She has been on the road a week.

Two children arrive alone. Their father put them aboard a helicopter thinking their pregnant mother was on board. But she was not.

'We have no car, but we are alive...'

A schoolteacher says his family walked through the jungle to avoid North Vietnamese shellfire and thought their luck had changed when they were able to climb aboard a truck. But later they realized that their 5-year-old child was missing in the scramble.

"It was everyone for himself," said a woman whose family ran a popular restaurant in Kontum. "We started with a car along with other people and we bought gasoline from straggling soldiers.

"Then when our car broke down we marched by day and night through the jungle trails. We bought water from Montagnard villagers.

"We were near death several times. Once the military police had a battle with the rangers. There were many deaths, but I don't know how many."

Military sources said the fight broke out after jostling for position in the long column of refugees streaming from the central highlands.

"We are very happy to be here," the woman said. "We have no car, but we are alive and can work to buy another car."

An army major, hoping his family has made the 150-mile trek from Pleiku, watches each incoming chopper intently.

"I was going to school in Dalat and my family was in Pleiku," said the major, a gentle, gray-haired man. "If you hear anything about them, please let me know."

Relatives are lined up outside the province headquarters and around the hospital, where nearly 300 wounded have been brought.

"It was such misery I cannot describe it," says a mother after frantically searching for and finally finding all 10 of her children. "I haven't seen my husband since we were separated during the first shelling."

She was taken to one of the refugee reception centers set up by the army and by police.

Flying from Tuy Hoa toward the column, the reason the refugees cannot move becomes apparent. In the first evidence of Viet Cong shelling, six miles from the city, a blackened armored vehicle sits in the road beside a flattened, burned-out hamlet. Relatives of the refugees walk and bicycle as close as they dare to this point, hoping to meet their loved ones.

Farther on is a fire-blackened hill with a small triangular fortress on top. It is a former South Korean outpost with deep-dug tunnels and bunkers. On the road under the hill lie what look like abandoned motorbikes and perhaps bodies. A Viet Cong unit with mortars is holed up around the position.

Then comes the military convoy, scores of dark green armored personnel carriers and trucks. The retreating soldiers at the head of the column have set up several camps beside the road. Farther on are clustered civilian cars, trucks and buses like a traffic jam in the middle of nowhere.

Other vehicles are backed up at a half-completed sand bridge across a river. Viet Cong shells have been hitting near the river crossing point, killing and wounding many persons, the refugees say.

Earlier in the week, they say, more than 100 persons, mostly civilians, were killed by shellfire near Cung Son, 10 miles back.

The column trails out of sight into the foothills, where a cloud of gray smoke rises. Officers say there are about 35,000 refugees near the river and another 30,000 stretching back to Cung Son, where a ranger group, harassed by North Vietnamese fire, brings up the rear.

How many hundreds are left behind along the rest of the more than 150 miles to the abandoned central highlands capitals of Pleiku and Kontum no one knows.

More than 1,000 refugees have been flown into Tuy Hoa. At the start the helicopter evacuation was disorderly, with people crowding on, making it difficult for the helicopters to maneuver and pick up passengers. At first, each helicopter was taking out 30 or more people, but later the rangers on the ground organized the evacuation, lining people up in groups of 15 to 20 for each flight.

Those flown into Tuy Hoa so far seem more prosperous than those who have fled in many of South Vietnam's other exoduses.

Many are businessmen and their families and dependents of soldiers. Some say they do not know exactly why they fled, but simply joined up when they saw many other people leaving.

PATRICK HENRY

Patrick Henry, Revolution's orator

Bicentennial of 'Liberty' speech

By RICHARD NEWCOMBE

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — For a decade the rumblings of revolution grew. Then on March 23, 1775, with the crisis at flash-point, a young backwoods lawyer with his blood up supplied the watchword of American patriots: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

The plea made 200 years ago today by Patrick Henry that the colonists take up arms soon reached fruition. Less than a month later the American Revolution began.

Henry, born not far from Richmond in Hanover County, already was known as the most eloquent orator in the Colonies before his famed speech. For a decade he had fought the authority of Great Britain.

Now, speaking at St. John's Church, he told the Second Virginia Convention it was time to take up arms against the mother country.

"They tell us sir, that we are weak—unable to cope with so formidable an adversary," Henry said. "But when shall we be stronger? Will it be the next week or the next year? Will it be when we are totally disarmed, and when a British guard shall be stationed in every house?"

'Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery?'

Henry's fervor took hold and he became even more strident.

"The war is inevitable—and let it come! I repeat it, sir, let it come! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery?

"Forbid it, almighty God—I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death."

Less than a month later British Gen. Thomas Gage, governor of Massachusetts, sent a detachment of troops from Boston to Concord to seize an arms cache.

Early on April 19, confronted by Minutemen at Lexington, the troops killed eight and wounded 10, marched on to Concord and destroyed the munitions. Then the British began a bloody trek back to Boston, losing 273 casualties to hidden marksmen.

The fight for "liberty or death" had begun.

Henry spoke without a text. It was not until after his death that historian William Wirt began reconstructing his speech with the help of eyewitnesses, including Thomas Jefferson, a close friend of Henry's in his early life although the two later became bitter enemies.

Even before his election to the House of Burgesses at the age of 28 in 1765, he had become the spokesman and leader of Virginia's frontiersmen. He had won fame in Hanover County Court two years earlier, in what became known as the Parson's Cause, with an attack on the established church.

Through his oratory Patrick convinced a jury to award an aggrieved clergyman only one cent in damages although his claim to a far more substantial amount was supported by a royal edict and a court ruling.

Jefferson, 16 when he met Henry who was 7 years older, slipped away from his law studies in Williamsburg to watch his sometime house guest make his first speech in the colonial legislature in support of five radical resolutions he had aimed at the detested Stamp Act.

But conservatives in the House were not so happy with Henry.

"Caesar had his Brutus; Charles the First his Cromwell, and George the Third," Henry said, interrupted by numerous cries of "Treason!" Then he finished: "May profit by their example.

"If this be treason, make the most of it."

Henry's greatest speech on the eve of revolution is being marked today by Virginians with a reenactment at St. John's Church for invited guests only. Later today 10,000 are expected to watch in the Richmond Coliseum as a group of amateur theater players dramatize the convention scene of 200 years ago.

There will be a concert, costumed battle drill, reproductions of flags from Revolutionary War army units, a performance by a fife and drum corps.

"The eloquence of 200 years ago will, I'm sure, be repeated...." said Gov. Mills Godwin.

Patriot's life seen as enigma

United Press International

In a less turbulent time Patrick Henry's oratory would have labeled him demagogue. He boycotted the Philadelphia Constitutional Convention of 1787 because he "smelt a rat." While still admiring his speeches, Thomas Jefferson came to hate and fear the man he once called friend.

Patrick Henry's life sometimes seems an enigma.

But his speeches helped set off the floodtide of revolution and provided the rallying cries for a people in rebellion against their masters.

IN URGING at the Second Virginia Convention March 23, 1775, that colonists arm against the British, Henry, a member of the Continental Congress, spoke the grievances of the colonists: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

A full decade earlier when revolution was but an occasional thought of many men later to gain fame as patriots, Henry railed against King George III and the detested Stamp Act in his first speech to the House of Burgesses.

OUTSIDE the chamber door watching the 28-year-old orator was Thomas Jefferson, a law student six years younger who listened to his occasional houseguest in the colonial capital of Williamsburg dare the accusation of treason.

Nearly five decades later Jefferson recalled that speech of 1765 for historian William Wirt.

"Mr. Henry certainly gave the first impulse to the ball of the Revolution," he said.

HENRY was a storekeeper for a time. He once boasted to Jefferson that he had spent "not more than six weeks" studying law. George Wythe, a prominent Virginia attorney who had as pupils many of its most talented men including Jefferson, refused to sign his law license for that reason.

Speaking to Wirt and Daniel Webster, again years later, Jefferson described Henry as he was in 1759.

"His manners had something of the coarseness of the society he had frequented; his passion was fiddling, dancing and pleasantry," said Jefferson. "He excelled at the last and it attached everyone to him."

Although he oppposed ratification of the Constitution initially, he worked successfully for the addition of the Bill of Rights.

His life was tinged with personal sadness. His wife became psychotic and was kept confined in a basement room—her arms secured in a straitjacket—and had to be fed like a child. Less than a year after the beginning of the Revolution she died.

Henry died in 1799.

Should cyclist wear helmet?

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

Motorcycle safety statistics are as stinging as bare flesh dragged along highway pavement.

But the statistics are like the weather — a lot of people talk about them but no one does anything.

In Long Beach last year, 83 per cent of motorcycle accidents were classified as injury accidents — 9 were fatal. This is compared with 29 per cent of auto accidents classified as injury accidents, with 27 fatalities.

"HEAD injuries are the single largest cause of fatal accidents on motorcycles," according to statistics compiled by Dr. Charles Hartman, director of the Motor Cycle Safety Foundation in Baltimore.

The foundation is supported by the five leading motorcycle manufacturers — including Honda, Kawasaki and Harley Davidson.

A bill to require motorcyclists to wear helmets — the third such bill introduced in California in the past five years — was scrapped soon after it was introduced in the Assembly in February. It was referred to the Transportation Committee for further consideration. The consensus is that it will die there.

CALIFORNIA is one of three states, according to Hartman, without a mandatory motorcycle helmet law. The others are Illinois and Iowa. California also leads the nation in the number of registered motorcycles.

Hartman is quick to point out that the Motorcycle Safety Foundation does not endorse or oppose a mandatory helmet law — it just have statistics.

According to Hartman, a year-long study conducted by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and completed in March 1974 compared motorcycle accidents in Michigan and Illinois (Michigan has a helmet law, Illinois does not). It was found that "compulsory helmet usage in Michigan reduced fatal or serious head injury by 63 per cent and head injuries of all types by 54 per cent."

"TO PUT IT another way," Hartman said, "motorcycle accidents in Illinois resulted in almost three times more fatal or serious head injury and more than twice as many head injuries of all types compared to similar accidents in Michigan."

Assemblyman Paul D. Carpenter, D-Garden Grove, author of the recent mandatory-helmet bill in California, no longer supports his bill because he feels the helmet design is inferior.

"They contribute to minor and major neck injuries. Also, the design of the helmet interferes with peripheral vision and sound perception so that the motorcycle rider can't localize sound."

Dr. George Snively, the director of the Snell Foundation in Sacramento and a recognized pioneer in motorcycle safety and head injuries, disagrees.

"THERE are no scientific data to say that helmets cause neck injuries," he said. His laboratory tests helmets for the Highway Patrol.

The Snell Foundation is a nonprofit research organization that has been investigating head injuries and their prevention since 1957.

Snively also dismisses the charge that wearing a helmet impairs hearing and vision.

"A motorcycle is a noisy machine, and our tests have shown a helmet doesn't have a great effect in the rider's ability to pinpoint the source of a sound.

"A motorcycle rider had better be using other things to guide him besides his hearing. Also, none of the helmets on the market today even approach the peripheral vision danger point," Snively said.

THE ANSWER?

HE POINTED out that the mandatory peripheral visibility on motorcycle helmets is 120 degrees — 30 more degrees than helmets worn by most test pilots.

"I'm not in the business of selling helmets," Snively said. "I have no vested interests in their sale. I'm a physician. My business is saving lives, and I believe motorcycle helmets can save lives."

There are three motorcycle-helmet safety standards recognized in the United States — including one designed by Snively. There are also two similar guidelines from the American National Institute of Standards and a federal standard.

The Engineering Section of the California Highway Patrol reviews and tests all approval requests for motorcycle helmets sold in the state.

"WE HAVE no evidence that a person was ever injured because of a helmet," said Robert Shepard, assistant engineer for the department.

"While a helmet does not protect you in a head-on collision, it's going to help you if you're knocked off the bike and are sliding around on the ground," he said.

Shepard, who rides a motorcycle, said he agrees it's difficult to tell one noise from another while wearing a helmet, but adds "...not enough to stop from driving efficiently."

He takes issue with Assemblyman Carpenter's belief that helmets impair peripheral vision.

WHILE Carpenter didn't say where he found his statistics on motorcycle helmets causing neck injuries in accidents, he said he changed his mind about supporting a mandatory law "after being visited by some members of a few motorcycle clubs."

Of 15,933,822 registered motor vehicles in the state, 665,273 are motorcycles, according to 1974 statistics from the Dpartment of Motor Vehicles.

Los Angeles County, with 199,733 registered motorcycles, and Orange County, with 62,007, lead California's 58 counties in total motorcycle registration. In fact, there are only five states in the nation with more registered motorcycles than Los Angeles County alone.

CLEARLY, as Assemblyman Carpenter points out, there is a need for better training programs for new motorcycle riders, which National Safety Council statistics show have an accident rate double that of experienced riders.

There are two classes in motorcycle safety taught by police officers through Long Beach City College. Also, since 1968, the DMV has issued special licenses to motorcycle drivers after they pass a special vehicle-handling test.

Statistics show that drivers of automobiles and other four-wheel vehicles are responsible for mose than 70 per cent of the accidents involving motorcycles. The Safety Council currently has a program to make motorists more aware of two-wheel vehicles.

THERE is also the question of a mandatory helmet law being an infringement on one's personal freedom — a question Snively sums up by turning the tables.

"I think," he said, "that when a motorcycle rider who was not wearing a helmet suffers a severe head injury and has to be hospitalized — perhaps for the rest of his life — he is infringing on the personal freedom of other individuals who have to take care of him because he failed to wear a helmet."

Body of stowaway recovered

MIAMI (UPI) — The body of a Colombian teenager who apparently wanted to go to New York to launch a career in music was found in Biscayne Bay Saturday where it had fallen 1,500 feet from the landing gear housing of a jetliner Thursday.

A fingerprint check identified the body as that of Luis Alberto Fula Camacho, 18, of Condimamarca, Colombia, a suburb of Bogota.

He had apparently stowed away in the wheel well of a Avianca jetliner in Bogota and fell out when the landing gear was lowered on approach to Miami International Airport.

Police had searched since Thursday for the body and feared that several sharks sighted in the area between Key Biscayne and Miami might have disposed of the remains.

CAMACHO was seen falling from the Boeing 707 Thursday afternoon by boaters on the bay, who reported it to the Coast Guard. A search was begun, but at first only a plastic bag containing papers belonging to the youth were found.

The papers included a passport application denied two weeks ago because of a lack of money, a South American songbook, a picture showing him carrying a guitar, a map with a line drawn from Bogota to New York and a piece of paper with a barely legible New York address written on it.

Police speculated that Camacho had wanted to come to New York to be a musician.

The big jet, bound for New York via Miami, was searched after the falling body was seen, and a large amount of blood was found in the wheel well, along with an identifiable palm print.

The palm print, the fingerprints on the body and Camacho's prints all matched Saturday.

An autopsy revealed that Camacho died of a crushed head, "possibly by the landing gear of the aircraft when it was closed upon takeoff."

The youth was seen dashing toward the left wheel well just before takeoff in Bogota, but the plane was airborne before the pilot could be notified.

Tax makes the difference

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Residents of Reno cannot expect to see a big cargo ship steaming up the Truckee River and residents of Las Vegas can not expect to welcome a super ship sailing across the desert into town, but the two landlocked communities are competing with the Ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles.

The inland cities are luring shippers away from the two Southland ports with the promise that goods arriving in the Nevada cities will not be subject to taxation as they are in Los Angeles and several other California counties.

The City of North Las Vegas woos shippers to serve their western markets "from a Southern Nevada tax haven." And some shippers, particularly those whose goods arrive in the large van-like containers, have happily taken advantage of promises of no inventory tax, no container tax, no franchise tax, no corporate income taxes, no inheritance tax, no personal income taxes, and low property and sales and use taxes.

The free port and international port of entry is centered in a 13.5-million-square-foot industrial center.

Many shippers claim they find it cheaper to load their cargo-filled container onto a truck chassis after they have arrived in Long Beach or Los Angeles Harbors, then truck the containers to Las Vegas or Reno where they are opened and the goods trucked back into many western markets.

Another reason some shippers are finding it advantageous to ship their imported goods to the two Nevada cities is because they can get low favorable return truck rates. Nearly all of the material needs of the two cities has to be trucked in houses, San Francisco's famous sourdough bread, and many, many other commodities.

But there is little merchandise, goods, or cargoes shipped out of the two gaming centers. The result is the trucks returning back to California are frequently "deadheading," hauling empty trailers. Rather than deadhead, several trucking lines are offering low rates to bring goods into the state that were shipped to the ports of entry in Reno and Las Vegas.

All this is happening because county assessors and members of the shipping industry violently disagree as to the definition of what constitutes an "original package."

Wearing the black hat (he's the bad guy) in Los Angeles County is Assessor Philip Watson. He contends the container constitutes the original package, and when it is opened the contents are subject to an ad valorem tax, a tax based on a partial value of the goods.

"Not so," say the shippers. They claim the cargo containers are a tool of transportation, an extension of the ship's gear

The shippers point out a descrepancy in the method of levying the ad valorem tax, which they claim is discriminatory against those shippers whose merchandise arrives in this country in containers. They point out that goods arriving in a container are subject to the tax when the container is opened but that the same identical goods arriving in break bulk form (not containerized) or stacked on wooden pallets are not subject to the tax until they are delivered to the consignee and opened at his place of business, which in many cases is out of Los Angles County.

Watson has little personal sympathy for the tax-paying importers and claims he is duty bound by law to levy the tax.

As the situation stands, assessors in some California counties interpret the "original package" concept one way while others interpret it in an entirely different manner. Some counties don't assess the inbound goods at all. This has left the shipping industry in a quandry and much confused.

In February 1974 the Long Beach Board of Harbor Commissioners asked the Supreme Court to hear and determine as soon as possible whether containerized goods have lost their import immunity. Under the U. S. Constitution, goods from a foreign country may not be taxed by the states as long as the goods remain unsold and in the original unbroken package.

The Supreme Court denied the petition to hear the case and sent it back down to the lower courts to work its way up towards a possible hearing before the state's highest court.

Watson contends the containers are the original packages and bases his opinion on the decision of Volkswagen Pacific, Inc. vs the City of Los Angeles. The Supreme Court implied the containers loaded with automotive spare parts were the original package. It is still vague as to what counties in the state are today assessing and taxing imported goods, and it is even harder to determine when the federal constitutional immunity of imports ends and the county's and state's right to tax begins.

Bid to pass bill on tax failed

In August 1973 State Senator Ralph C. Dills, a Democrat then representing the San Pedro harbor area, attempted to get a bill passed exempting the containers from the ad valorem tax. The bill failed because senators from inland counties contended the state, and ultimately the taxpayers, would have to reemburse the amount they would lose by not imposing the tax.

Watson has stated that even if legislation were passed exempting the containers from the ad valorem tax he would not enforce it. The assessor claims abolishment of the tax would be unfair to domestic manufacturers whose goods would be subject to a tax while the same product manufactured by a foreign maker would be exempt.

The California council for International Trade has estimated there are more than 300 lawsuits pending against Los Angeles and other counties levying the ad valorem tax. Of seven counties reporting taxes collected on inbound goods Los Angeles reported collecting $9 million. The pending litigation may take years to resolve and in the meantime some shippers are moving their warehouse activities to Las Vegas, Reno, and to ports in Oregon and Washington as well as to the free port outside Salt Lake City and another at the former Walker Air Force Base at Hoswell, New Mexico.

"Once a company moves its operation to another state there is very little chance we will ever get them back," notes Thomas J. Thorley, general manager of the Long Beach Harbor Department.

Just how much cargo is actually being diverted to ports outside of California is not really known, However, the Long Beach and Los Angeles Harbor Departments have estimated the two ports are losing approximately the equivalent of 64,000 20-foot containers per month to ports outside California.

In January the Los Angeles Harbor Commission claimed that Los Angeles County was losing an estimated $176 million annually in trade to out-of-state harbors and inland free ports. The commisson asked the City Council to support legislation that would eliminate the controversial tax.

Aparently there are no accurate figures as to the number of longshoremen's and teamster's jobs lost in the two Southland ports to due to the diversion of containers to other ports.

In an attempt to determine the economic impact on California ports that the drifting of containers to other ports might have, the Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles has undertaken a "California International Trade Study." Under the direc-

New career for Islander

Maritime Editor

The former San Pedro-Terminal Island "nickle grabber"— the ferryboat, Islander, which was converted to a fishing barge and which burned to the waterline in a spectacular fire Christmas Eve— is about to embark on another career.

What remains of the fire-gutted craft (not much more than her sturdy double-planked hull) will be used as a barge to haul scrap steel. The steel will be cut off the rusty hulk of the SS Chickasaw, a 495-foot freighter that went aground on a reef on the west side of Santa Rosa Island in February 1962.

The Islander's hull was purchased by Al Kidman, a Los Angeles Harbor ship salvager, after ship underwriters declared it a total loss.

During the time the vessel was operated as a fishing barge off the east end of the Long Beach breakwater, the boat owner, Capt. Fred Austin, was asked by the Smithsonian Institution to donate the craft's engine, a six-cylinder Atlas diesel bearing the serial No. 1, to the institute because of its historical significance. However, since without an engine the craft would be considered personal property by the County Tax Assessor and therefore subject to taxation, Capt. Austin declined to give the engine to the institute.

After Kidman bought the engine he sold it to the National Metal and Steel Corp. for scrap.

In-port-ant people

John Calloway, who in 22 years as a chauffer worked for such famous visitors to Long Beach Harbor as Emperor Haile Selasi, Dwight D. Eisenhower and the former Japanese Prime Minister, Kakuei Tanaka, joined the department's trade development section last October.

After a tight race for members of the Board of Directors of the Harbor Transportation Club, Calloway was among four elected.

Installed as president was Keith Collins of the Santa Fe Railway Co., operating out of Long Beach. Others elected to the board include Harley Peck, Los Angeles Harbor Department; Thomas Flescher, Southern Pacific Railroad, Long Beach; and Joe Norwood, American President Lines, Los Angeles.

Bridge to be fenced

Because objects tossed off the Gerald Desmond Bridge pose a serious threat to workers beneath the span, the Long Beach Harbor Department will spend $32,000 to install an 8-foot-high chain-link fence on the north side of the bridge. The fence will be built on the east approach to the bridge over the department's new maintenance yard.

Glass bottles thrown from the high bridge hit the ground with explosive force, sending glass fragments flying in all directions like an exploding hand grenade.

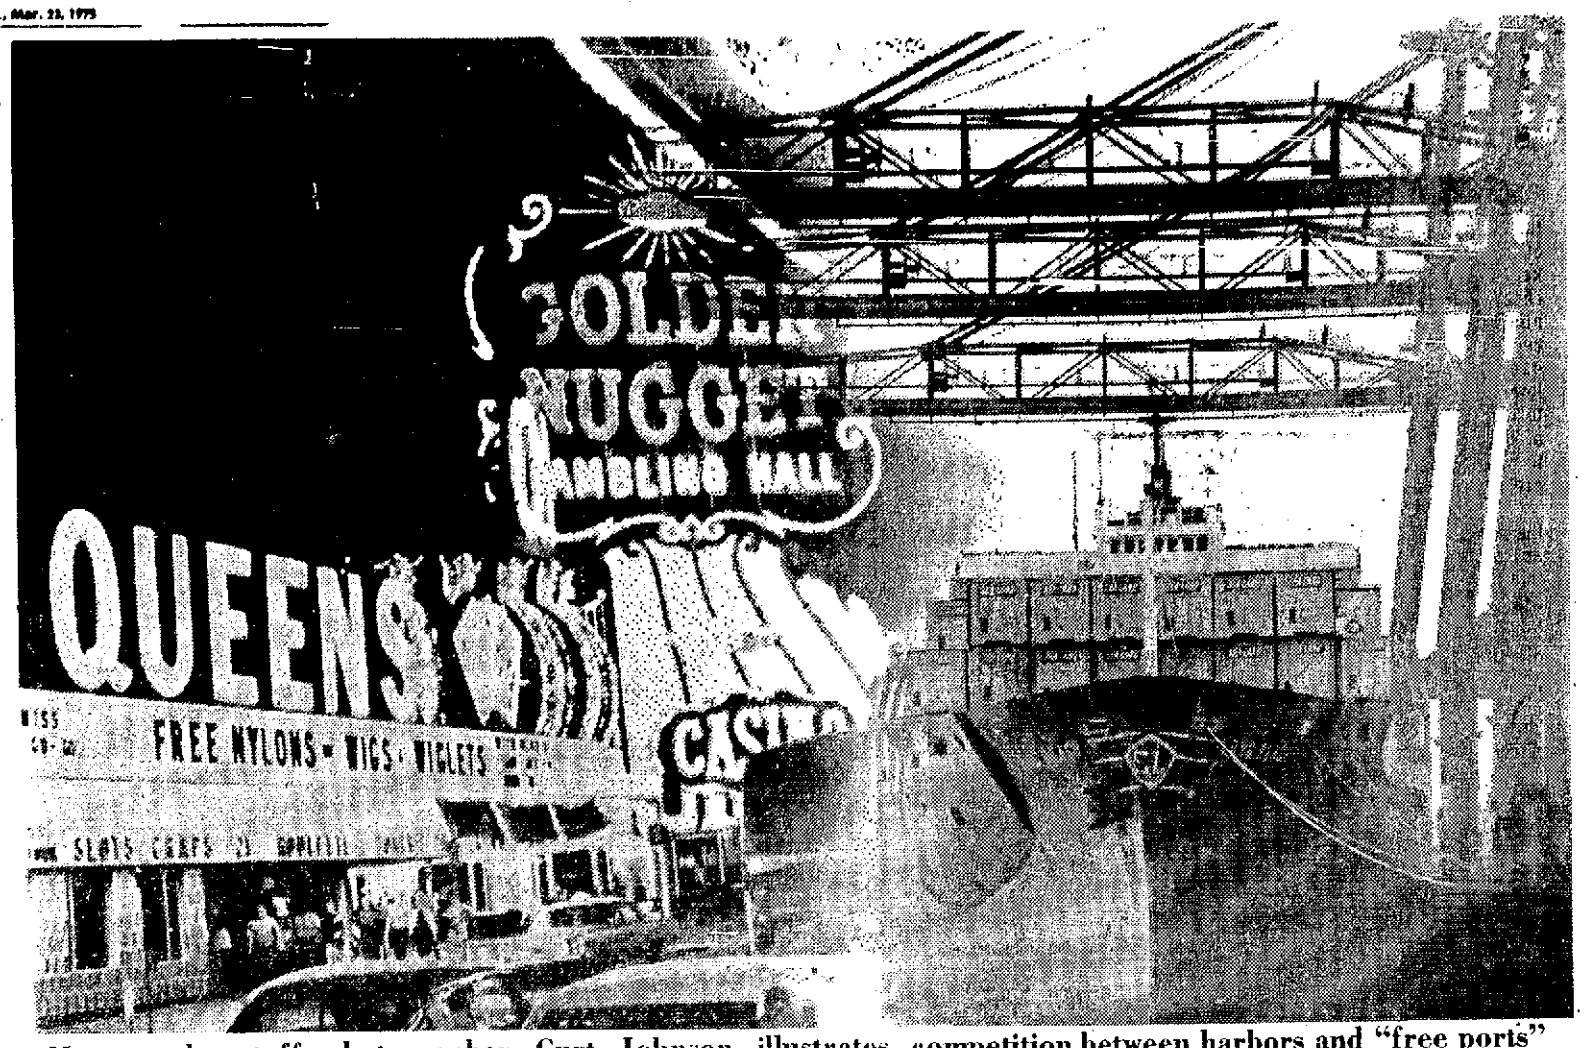

A similar fence has been installed on the Vincent Thomas Bridge spaning the main channel of Los Angeles Harbor. Longshoremen working on the piers beneath the bridge refused to work there without a protective fence.

Better mileage,too!

In a move to cut costs, the general manager of the Los Angeles Harbor Department has authorized the sale of the department's VIP chariot, a 1969 Cadillac limousine, and has already replaced it with a 15-passenger Dodge minibus.

Fred B. Crawford, the general manager, also ordered that nine other large cars be replaced by eight subcompacts. The new and smaller cars will be placed in a pool from which employes needing transportation while on Harbor Department business will be assigned a car. The pool concept has left some departmental employes unhappy.

To be sold at public auction are five 1970 and one 1967 Chevrolets, three 1970 Oldsmobiles and the Caddy limousine. Sale of the used vehicles is expected to bring in about $9,000.

Ports, desert cities rivals

tion of Theodore F. Craver, Jr., international trade analyst with the bank, several thousand five-page questionaires were sent to importeters, exporters, shipping lines, agents, brokers and other segments of the maritime industry.

Craver hopes that, among other things, the returns will give an indication of how much the ad valorem tax levied by some port counties is affecting the state's economy. A preliminary study of the returned reports indicate that at least one-fourth of those responding said that the tax is among the top three problems troubling California businesses and industries.

Complete results of the study are expected to be released by the end of his month, according to Craver.

The State Senate has passed a resolution introduced by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, and coauthored by Sen. Joseph Kennick, D-Long Beach, asking the State Board of Equailization to furnish the Legislature with comprehensive guidelines concerning how and whether the Volkswagen decision shall affect the tax immunity of certain imported goods shipped in containers.

The board responded, stating, "The sea-van itself is not an 'original package' as a matter of law. The board claimed that opening of the van will not destroy immunity from property taxation.

But Watson has been stubborn in his decision to continue the tax, claiming the Board of Equalization has no authority to rule on the constitutionality of federal law. He called the board's action "presumptious and damaging."

"The matter is before the courts and neither the board nor the L should have injected inself into the issue at this time," Watson told the Independent, Press-Telegram.

"Furthermore, in another matter concerning the ad valorem tax, the board's legal adviser made the comment that the board has no authority to direct assessors to adopt the board's conclusions," Watson said.

Watson claims the matter of defining an original package is a constitutional one and that it is the U. S. courts which must rule on the issue and not the State Board of Equalization.

"Importers of foreign made goods have long held a tax advantage over U. S. manufacturers, and all the ad valorem tax does is to close that loophole," he said.

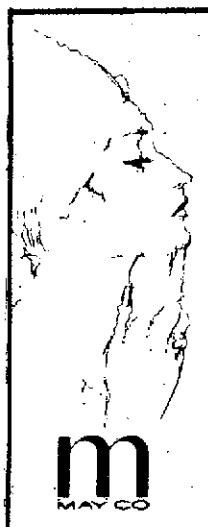

The assessor said that as of March 1 the goods taken from opened containers would be assessed in the usual manner as they have been in the past.

He pointed out the tax paid by a person or company is based on the true market value of the merchandise. By state law 50 per cent of the market value is exempted from taxation. The assessors then take 25 per cent of the remaning half of the market value to determine the assessed valuation of the merchandise. The tax rate levied aginst the assessed valuation varies within Los Angeles County from $11 to $16 per each $100 of assessed valuation with the average rate being approximately $14.

Thus a company in possession of $100,000 in imported Japanese televsion sets on March 1, which had been removed from a container, although the TV sets were still in crates or boxes, would be taxed $17,500.

Those opposing Watson's taxing procedure claim the TV sets should not be taxed until they are removed from the crates or boxes in which they were packed at the factory because sets bound for out of state markets may not be subject to any tax in that state such as Neveda, Utah, and New Mexico.

Inland, 'port cities' stiffen competition

The state calculates the tax on the exempted half of the merchandise's market value and reimburses the local enity in the amount it would hnve received had the 50 per cent exemption not been allowed. The reimursement to the county is made out of the state general fund to which state taxpayers are a major contributor,

"If we were to accept the philosphy that goods in an opened container were totally exempt, the financial burden on the taxpayer would be even greater because then the state would have to reimburse the county for the entire assessment," the assessor noted.

"I am duty bound by law to make the assessment and I intend to do just that until hell freezes over," he said.

Among the companies indicating they plan to move their operations out of state because of the financial hardship imposed by the ad valorem tax is Radio Shack, a subsidiary of the Tandy Corp. W. J. Hughes, tax manager for the company, told the Senate Select Committee on Maritime Industry:

"Although our company would prefer to continue warehousing in Southern California, we have instructed our management in that area to make no further long-term commitments with regard to warehouse space. We already have contingency plans to move our distribution facilities from Garden Grove to Las Vegas."

—It's an ill wind. . .

Kite enthusiasts at the 49th annual Long Beach Kite Festival Saturday find the going tough as they attempt to put their kites aloft in winds gusting up to 35 miles an hour. From left, 13-year-old Rich White begins a run down the beach in an attempt to put his flyer up; Brad Shelton, 8, takes a steady grip on the fishing rod he is using to fly his kite; and a slightly older kite aficionado attempts to launch a parachute-like kite. None of the trio won any prizes, but all said they had an enjoyable, if windy, time. For contest results, see Page B-4. Sponsors of the event, held at the foot of Junipero Avenue, said only about 500 persons attended and many left early because of the chill March winds, which kicked sand in eyes, noses, mouths and hair.

On freeway

Impact hearing set

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Final environmental impact hearings on the most embattled and expensive freeway in California history—the Century-Norwalk Freeway—are set to begin Tuesday in Norwalk.

A coalition of environmental and citizens' groups will square off against representatives of the state Department of Transportation (Caltrans). Politicians and the public have also been invited to testify.

Planning for the freeway began in 1959. The 18.2-mile route begins in Norwalk and runs through Downey, Paramount, Lynwood, Gardena and Hawthorne on its way to Los Angeles International Airport.

Costs have skyrocketed to $33 million per mile, if the current plans are adopted.

In 1972 U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson ruled that the National Environmental Protection Act required Caltrans to hold the impact hearings. A three-judge panel reversed that decision in 1973.

However, the apparent state victory was withdrawn in an unusual move by the court when it was discovered that a Seattle three-judge panel had required the hearings.

For one of the few times in its history, all 13 judges on the Ninth District Court of Appeals pondered the case. In October 1974 they ruled that environmental protection hearings must be held. A subsequent Caltrans appeal was rejected by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Caltrans then went to work on its $2.5 million environmental impact statement, keeping in mind that Judge Pregerson will rule on whether or not he is satisfied when these hearings conclude at the end of April.

"It's awfully hard to judge what type of response the hearings will generate," said Caltrans Senior Transportation Engineer Dan Goble. "We'll find out at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday."

Goble noted that only 1,000 summaries of the impact report have been requested, and very few people have called or checked out the full report from an area library.

Hearings and dates are as follows: Norwalk (Excelsior High School Auditorium), March 25, 27; Compton (Centennial High School Auditorium), April 1, 3; El Segundo, April 8, 10; and Hawthorne, April 15, 17. All begin at 7:30 p.m.

The first hearing at each location will cover the transportation needs of the area and other aspects of the corridor, Gobe said. The last meeting will be on design—covering topics such as the need for elevated or sunken freeway surfaces.

Over $170 million has already been spent on the project and and eight-lane freeway with a bus lane would cost another $500 million, Goble said. A 10-lane freeway is currently planned, which would add $100 million.

The freeway, if built, would not be done until the early 1980s. Goble said the freeway is necessary to relieve congestion on other east-west freeways. He noted that a bus lane with a capacity for rail transit would be installed. The freeway would produce additional tax monies for local cities by attracting more business and industrial customers, he said.

The freeway, which has displaced about 21,000 people from 6,900 homes, would cause additional noise, dust and air pollution problems, but these would be minimal, the impact report contended.

The Center for Law in the Public Interest, the attorneys for the environmental and citizens' groups, has fought the freeway from the beginning. The Sierra Club, Environmental Defense Fund and the NAAC are among the groups it represents. They say that the freeway simply is not necessary and, at best, should be reduced to a mass transit facility rather that a place for more cars.

Goble, who noted that 11 public hearings have already been held on the freeway, conceded that a combination of the court decision and legislation would probably mean that environmental impact hearings will become a part of all freeway planning.

Alternates considered at the hearings will be a busway only, no action or an eight-lane instead of a 10-lane route.

Special police unit to fight street violence

By HARRY TESSEL
Staff Writer

A special field task force of 20 Long Beach police officers to combat crimes of violence on the city's streets is going into action April 1.

Police Chief William J. Mooney, in announcing formation of the special unit, said its purpose would be to decrease major crimes "with an emphasis on street crimes by saturating small geographic areas with police officers."

Mooney said the unit would utilize all possible preventive and apprehension techniques.

The unit will work mainly between noon and midnight with officers on a 10-hour, four-day week. The time schedule will be flexible so that the unit may work other hours as the need arises.

Lt. George Holton will command the new unit which will include officers from the following divisions and sections:

Eight from patrol, three from detectives, four from juvenile, one from vice, one from planning and research and three from traffic. There will be three sergeants: one from detectives, one from jail and one from patrol. The sergeants will work in the field.

Holton said the unit's main duty, rather than answering calls for service or being on patrol, would be to apprehend persons suspected of trying to commit major crimes and to be in the streets to prevent such crimes.

Holton said the task force would be a "unified endeavor" by all sections of the police department to control street crime at all levels.

He said the probable maximum number of men the unit would put out on the streets on any given day would be 17, and the least would be 10.

The units main attentions would be focused on violent assaults, armed robberies, strong arm robberies and purse snatchers as well as such other major crimes as murder, rape, burglary, theft and auto theft.

Mooney said they unit "will not respond to calls for services except for 999s (officer needs help—urgent)." The unit will respond to violent crimes in progress calls in the area in which they are deployed at the time, the chief added.

Holton said the unit would be in frequent contact with the department's Systems Planning and Development Section for computer readout information indicating crime trends and areas of concern.

"We will be getting information on who is most apt to be a victim in a particular area, who is most apt to be a suspect, and the day and time," Holton said, "and we will try to arrange operations around this information."

Officers in the new unit will be both in uniform and in civilian clothes and in marked patrol cars and unmarked cars. Other officers may be assigned to the unit as the need arises, Holton said.

Mooney said the field task force will be formed to be in operation for a 60-day period, or until he terminates it. The lieutenant in charge will report directly to Deputy Chief Maurice Wishon, field operations bureau.

Investigative sections of the department giving men to the new field task force will have basically the same work load and people in the sections will be expected to fulfill them, police officials said.

The patrol force would not be weakened by giving men to the new section because a new class of recruits went to work Saturday, 10 men and 9 women.

Holton stressed that the new unit would not be a SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) detail nor would it be a strike team.

I,P-T women honored

Eight female journalists from the Independent, Press-Telegram walked off with 15 first-place awards Saturday at the annual awards banquet of the California Press Women.

The awards were presented aboard the floating restaurant "Princess Louise" by Los Angeles Times reporter Bill Farr, who spent 46 days in jail to protect his sources in a story on the Charles Manson trial. Diane Smith of the I,P-T joined Farr in presenting the awards. She is president of the Los Angeles District of Press Women.

Judy Hazlett of the I,P-T Life/Style section topped the list with five first-place awards, one second and one third. She won top honors for special articles on fashion and home furnishings, daily personal column and page makeup. She also took first in the special edition category for newspapers with more than 50,000 circulation.

She won second place for a special article on gardening and third in the features category.

Mary Neiswender took top honors in the news story, features and special articles categories and second place in interviews.

I,P-T Food Editor Virginia Heffington took first-place honors for special food articles and section or supplement regularly edited by a woman.

Reporter Linda Zink took first-place honors in the interview and special education articles categories.

Carol Ivy received a first place for miscellaneous special article and three second-place awards for features, special sports writing and fashion.

Joyce Christensen, the I,P-T Life/Style editor, took first place in women's news page regularly edited by a women. Elise Emery received first-place honors for a page regularly edited by a woman other than a women's page and Miss Smith was second in page makeup.

The media group honored 151 female journalists throughout the state for articles ranging from news to public relations. The 80 first-place winners will continue to compete on a national level for awards to be announced in May.

Illegal voting confessed

Seven volunteers in Democrat Jerry Patterson's successful campaign for election to Congress last November have admitted that they voted illegally for him after registering as residents at addresses where they did not live.

Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Kenneth Williams Friday reduced the Orange County Grand Jury's felony charges to misdemeanors after they pleaded guilty to lesser charges. The grand jury accused them of conspiracy, perjury and voting fraud.

A fine of $800—the stiffest of them all—was ordered for Santa Ana attorney Verlyn Jensen, 35, who was treasurer of Patterson's campaign. Jensen's wife Cecilia, also 35, was fined $400.

Daniel E. Griset, 30, son of former Santa Ana mayor Loren Griset, and campaign manager for Patterson, drew a $600 penalty, and so did his wife Judith, 31.

Mrs. Suone C. Shreck, 26, of Long Beach, and her husband Robert, also 26, were fined $300 and $250, respectively. Lois A. Starkey, 23, of Fullerton, was fined $250.

Earlier, Derrilyn Conley, 21, of Fullerton, had pleaded guilty to a reduced charge and had been fined $300. She was the eighth person on the Patterson staff to be indicted for falsely registering and falsely voting.

Patterson, who then was mayor of Santa Ana, said he did not know of the incidents involving his supporters.

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

GOV. BROWN and the members of the California Legislature had better be extra diligent on April 29, because the combined fourth and fifth-grade class at Hansen Elementary School in Anaheim will be dropping by Sacramento to check up on them.

Mrs. Dorothy Weiss and her pupils have been planning and working on the Sacramento trip since last October when they decided to move civics lessons off the pages of classroom text books and onto the stage of real life.

Politicians who want to go to Sacramento can make speeches, promises and collect campaign funds. But it's not quite that easy for 32 bright-eyed youngsters, a teacher who makes learning fun, and a teacher's aide named Mrs. Alanda Gonzalves.

A goal of $1,056 can be pretty formidable for youngsters whose parents are not the most affluent in the world. But the kids rolled up their sleeves and their imaginations and started translating hard work into cash.

First they earned a $5 prize from the school's Parent-Teacher Association for P-TA parent signups in their class. Then they devised and executed a haunted house attraction for the Halloween carnival, with Mrs. Gonzalves starring as Frankenstein and the kids incorporating the scariest features of every horror movie they had seen.

Next came a bike-a-thon on the quarter-mile track at Apollo Junior High across the street. Thirty youngsters participated, with their adult sponsors pledging a fixed sum per mile. One boy earned $32. The Sacramento trip fund earned about $700.

A sale of door prizes donated by parents sent more cash into the account that class treasurer Frank Bartosik opened at a neighborhood bank. So Sacramento moved a little closer, thanks to some paintings, a hooked rug, a floral arrangement, a decoy duck and a Raggedy Ann doll.

Like Joseph Cotten in that World Savings commercial, Frank Bartosik made frequent trips to the bank to visit his classmates' money. He watched it grow past the goal of $1,056 to $1,068, thanks to interest.

Mrs. Weiss thinks the project has been enriching to her pupils.

"The boys and girls learned the value of cooperation and the difficulty of earning money. They learned how people depend on each other."

Work and reward go hand in hand, which is a valuable lesson to children aged 9 to 11. It's a lesson that some adults never learn, so the kids are well ahead.

Discussion of the Sacramento trip occupies the children's conversation at recess and lunch time.

"The Air California plane will leave Orange County Airport at 7:45 a.m. on April 29, and that means we have to be at school at 6:30," said recording secretary Michelle Jordan, the 10-year-old fifth-grader who has been handling the letter traffic between Hansen and Sacramento.

"You bet I'm going to bed early the night before. I don't want to miss it."

Mike Adams, fifth-grader and vice representative of the class on the student council, will be making his second flight. The first comes this school vacation week when he flies to Reno to visit an aunt and uncle.

Mike is a heavy reader, and that's probably what he will be doing on the plane. "Last year, boy, I read eight fat books and made reports on them."

In addition to Mrs. Weiss, Mike, Frank and Michelle, the passenger list will include 11 parents and the following pupils:

Ted Brader, Thomas Keenan, Brian Aros, Kenny Cook, John Jensen, Danny Louwsma, Randy Mello, Daniel Miles, John Mueller, David Oakey, George Ransdell, Patricia Bume, Cindy Castellow, Kristi Cowan, Annette Cozart, Karen Gribble, Kelly Harris, Heidi Hubbs, Donna Petersen, Polly Scharfenberg, Sheri Brooking, Margaret Cure, Michele English, Stephanie Hernandez, Candice Kleis, Veronica Salazar, Patricia Thomas, Paula Thomas and Sheila George.

There's a special seat on the plane for Mrs. Gonzalves, whose fare is being paid—in gratitude—by the Savanna Elementary School District. The parents are footing their own bills.

"If you don't get all the names of the children into your column, I'm going to see a lot of long faces when we come back from Easter vacation," Mrs. Weiss told me.

Consider it done, Mrs. Weiss. And tell the school secretary, Ms. Arlene Harbert, I haven't forgotten her.

Oops, I forgot to mention the car wash that earned $100. Mrs. Weiss would make me go stand in the corner for an oversight like that.

Clean air, good mileage

Car magazine ads used to promise wonderful gasoline mileage to purchasers of one magical device or another.

Device A promised 3 more miles to the gallon. Device B promised 4 to 6 miles more. Device C promised a 10 to 15 per cent improvement. A car that got 15 miles to the gallon in its unimproved state would presumably get 25 after all these marvels had been installed. Of course, things never worked that way.

PEOPLE WHO bought one or another device of that sort can be forgiven a little skepticism at an announcement by RCA board chairman Robert W. Sarnoff the other day. Sarnoff said RCA has developed an electronic device, now being tested by major automobile manufacturers, that can "boost gasoline mileage up to 40 per cent in standard-size and large cars." The device, called a microprocessor, is basically a miniature computer. Made of thousands of tiny transistors and other electronic components, it controls the use of fuel to achieve maximum efficiency.

The first report from Detroit was that the auto makers were less optimistic than Sarnoff. Still, automobile manufacturers are among the least optimistic of men, except at the time the new models are introduced.

Take the catalytic converter, for example. The auto industry experts insisted this and other smog control devices would inevitably reduce gasoline mileage; the nation would be better off, they suggested, if it didn't push for tough automobile emission standards. But when the companies added the catalytic converters, they reported that they actually improved gasoline mileage. And, indeed, government figures show that fuel economy was improved an average of 13.5 per cent from 1974 to 1975 by addition of the converters. (The 1974 cars got the worst mileage in years, of course, because of the other types of smog control devices they used; a car with no emission controls at all gets better mileage than a car with a catalytic converter.)

IT SEEMS reasonable to expect that the RCA devices — and similar ones being developed by General Instrument Corp., Honeywell, Rockwell International and National Semiconductor — will do a great deal for gas mileage.

If they can achieve anything near Sarnoff's claim, they will make it easily possible for the auto industry to fulfill the promise made to President Ford that by the 1980 models it would improve gas mileage 40 per cent over the 1974 figures.

In return for that improvement, the industry is asking Congress to accept a Ford proposal that scheduled auto emission standards be suspended and that less stringent standards be substituted. In fact, the industry argues — perhaps mainly as a bargaining position — that even Ford's proposals are too tough. The development of microprocessors provides some ground for hope that the suspension of the planned standards may not be necessary.

THAT IS NOT to say that the standards should not be carefully reviewed with an eye to what their imposition will cost in higher car prices and in greater use of gasoline. There is some reason to suspect that the automobile is not quite the smog villain it has been painted to be. There is also the problem that the catalytic converters produce sulfuric acid emissions that may be more hazardous than the emissions they control.

But the news from RCA and other electronics manufacturers is encouraging evidence that American industry, which gave the world the technology that dirtied its air, can develop the technology to clean the air and to conserve energy at the same time.

The legislature's bad press

Bob Schmidt
View From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Jesse Unruh took the press to task for its coverage of the legislature last week, telling reporters at a lunch that too much emphasis was being given to the "aberrations" of some lawmakers.

Focusing on the fringe benefits lawmakers receive further distorts the public's image of politicians, he complained.

Eliminating the fringe benefits without making a compensating increase in salary will ultimately result in only wealthy politicians' being attracted to public office, he said.

UNRUH, THE former Assembly speaker who ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1970 and was elected state treasurer in 1974, is making a valid criticism, up to a point.

Newspapers properly insist on high performance from legislators, but there is not a parallel demand for realistic remuneration.

Most newspapers gave editorial support to Unruh's 1966 effort to professionalize the legislature, but after voters approved Proposition 1—A and serving in the Assembly and Senate became a full-time occupation, there has been little, if any, support for having legislative salaries reflect cost-of-living increases.

HOWEVER, PART of the reason for the hostile climate in which the legislature finds itself can be found in the seemingly endless illustrations of "aberrations" Unruh mentioned.

Unruh seems to think they are so isolated that public mention of them creates an inaccurate picture.

He misses the point.

To the public, the illustrations are simply repeated confirmations of a picture long since firm in their minds: that elected public officials believe themselves to be separate and apart, and above, the people they represent.

There are politicians who are exceptions. Perhaps a larger number today than ever before, as a matter of fact.

BUT THERE ARE too many in the state legislature who really do believe their election elevates them to a sort of aristocracy, that the laws they enact apply to other folks, to other entities.

Example: The legislature years ago passed laws requiring meetings of governmental bodies to be held in public. All governmental bodies under its jurisdiction, that is, but itself; the legislature was exempted from the law.

Example: The Constitution has a clearly defined residency rule for candidates to the Assembly and Senate. The rule has little merit, and probably should have been removed long ago, but it is still the law. And legislators knowingly ignore it.

Example: A few years ago the legislature, prodded by then Governor Reagan, placed a limit on local government's ability to tax. It resisted vigorously and successfully Reagan's effort to put a similar restriction on state government.

AND ON TOP of those and other examples of the collective attitude of the legislature that helps create the hostile attitude about which Unruh complains, there are the individual members' "aberrations" that reinforce that attitude.

An assemblyman allows his estranged wife to drive their two children in a state-leased car to Kansas. The car was not his to give. And a member of the Assembly Rules Committee that censured him turns around and lets her secretary drive to lunch in a state-leased car. It was not hers to give.

Perhaps what would do more to change the public's attitude toward politicians is simply for politicians to be consistent, to apply the same high standards to themselves, individually and collectively, that they apply to others.

THINGS ARE changing. The legislature is beginning to apply such approaches as open meeting rules to itself, for example, and that has to be healthy.

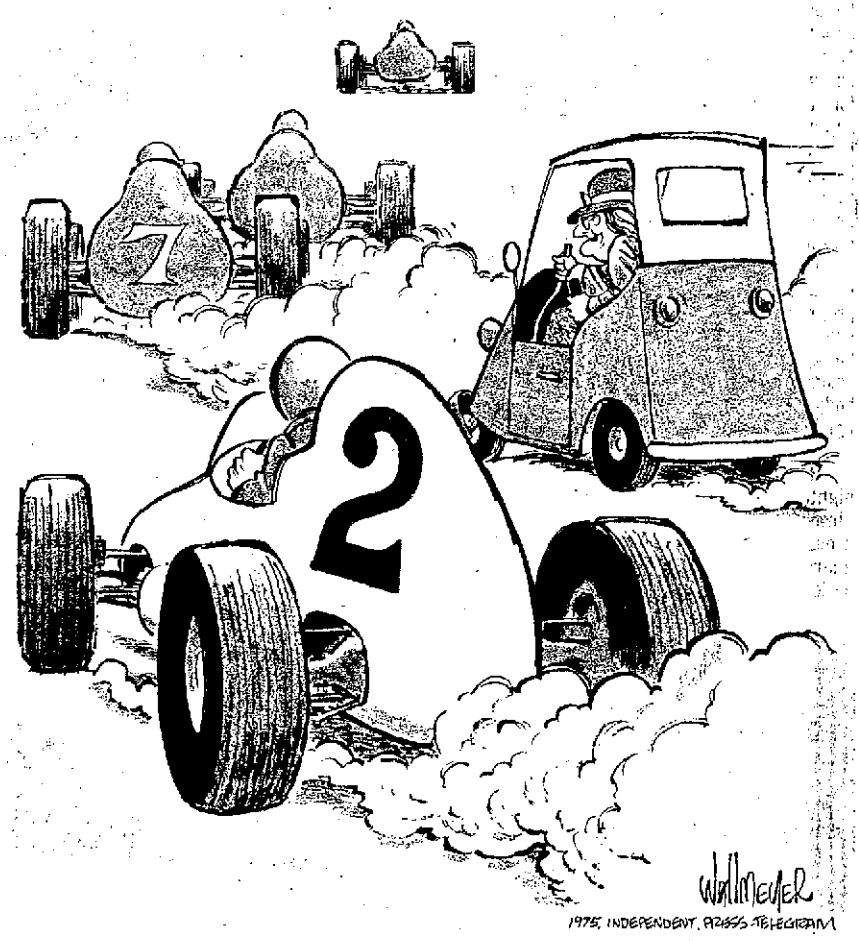

Proposition 9 is confusing, but its basic premise — that legislators and other elected officials should base their decisions on the actual facts of the issues before them — is sound.

It may be a cop-out for both legislators and reporters to make, but all of it is meaningless if the public doesn't care.

FOR EVERY story printed about an "aberration," there are 20 or 30 or 40 more providing information about governmental action taken, about hearings held and testimony given and decisions reached, about problems being studied and reports and recommendations being made. Those things are what politicians are elected to do, so perhaps special praise is not due. But readers shouldn't ignore them, either.

Newspapers could improve their coverage of government, of course, and so Mr. Unruh is right when he takes them to task. But only up to a point. Some help is needed from politicians.

THE 1976 LONG BEACH GRAND PRIX

Will Democrat be prosecuted?

Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The problem of appearing to have a double standard of prosecution on election law violations is very much in the balance as the special prosecutor's office decides whether to initiate criminal prosecution of Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss.

It is particularly difficult for Special Prosecutor Henry Ruth, a Democrat, to avoid the impression of discrimination in favor of Strauss in the weeks immediately following the pleas of guilty of Maurice Stans, a former Nixon Cabinet member, on five counts of election law violation.

STRAUSS HAS admitted that his receipt of $50,000 in cash from officials of the Ashland Oil Company was "a technical violation" of the law, but he contends he did not realize that the cash delivered in packages of $30,000 and $20,000 came from corporate funds.

Stans, in pleading guilty, insisted that he did not know the source of the cash corporate contributions received in 1972, ranging from $30,000 to $40,000, which constituted a violation of the law.

Even as he stood outside the courthouse after entering his plea to the five misdemeanor charges, Stans insisted that he was only "technically" guilty because of his role as finance chairman for the Nixon re-election committee. The special prosecutor has scoffed at Stans' explanation that he didn't know the receipt of the funds was a law violation.

Strauss, a Texas Democrat, contends his "technical violation" took place in the pre-Watergate period when acceptance of such funds was common practice by most political figures, and that as a recently named treasurer for the Democratic National Committee he didn't know the law.

IT ALSO IS contended by Sheldon Cohen, lawyer for the Democratic National Committee, that in addition to Strauss not having "guilty knowledge" of a law violation, a three-year statute of limitations bars prosecution.

Strauss has admitted he had conversations with Ashland Oil officials in the spring of 1970 about a $50,000 contribution. He also has admitted that the first $30,000 installment of that contribution was delivered a few weeks later by Clyde Webb, Ashland's vice president for external affairs.

It is the position of Strauss that he assumed the money was from the personal funds of several executives of the company and was not illegal use of corporate funds.

HE SAYS HE "didn't ask," and did not seek the identity of those giving the funds or the amounts, at a time when any amounts larger than $5,000 from a single individual also would have constituted a violation of the federal Corrupt Practices Act of 1925.

While Strauss has named Webb as the individual who delivered the $30,000 in cash, he has thus far refused to identify the "intermediary" who delivered the $20,000 cash installment from Ashland in 1971.

Strauss has explained to some reporters that the arrangement for the $50,000 in cash contributions was made with Orin E. Atkins, then president and chairman of the board of Ashland, and that it took place within the first 60 to 90 days after he was named treasurer.

THE DEMOCRATIC party was deeply in debt, and Strauss has explained privately to friends that he did only did not know the law, but was not asking too many questions in his energetic drive to make the party solvent.

The special prosecutor has not yet made a final decision on whether to prosecute Strauss, but he is troubled by what his office refers to as "the fuzzy state" of the law on the limitations question of whether, as Strauss's lawyers argue, changes in the election laws in 1971 and 1974 have made a three-year statute applicable to all election law violations.

Ruth, aware of his possible vulnerability to charges of partisanship, has consulted the Ford administration's Justice Department with regard to the overall policy question of whether the five-year statute of limitations applies, which would still make prosecution of Strauss possible, or whether a three-year statute in the new law is applicable.

CRITICS OF this consultation and delay contend that they are risking letting the five-year statute bar prosecution on some of the "technical violations" that Strauss has admitted.

Many lawyers find it inconsistent for the special prosecutor to move against Ashland Oil and Atkins on criminal charges when no action is taken against Strauss and when delivery of the $50,000 to Strauss was listed among the criminal overt acts.

Special prosecutor sources counter that they were unaware of the cash payments to Strauss until shortly before the agreement to accept pleas of guilty from Ashland Oil and nolo contendere (no contest) from Atkins.

THE STRAUSS matter is under active investigation now, and the Democratic chairman has declined to discuss the case with prosecutors except through his lawyers.

The problems Bob Strauss has with the Ashland Oil contributions have put a lid on the political crowing at Democratic headquarters that might have taken place on the conviction of Stans.

There is keen awareness at the special prosecutor's office of the potential for criticism if there is any evidence of a double standard of justice in their final decision on the Strauss case.

College 'gamblers'

EDITOR:

On the front page of the March 7 issue of the Long Beach City College Viking newspaper I was appalled to see a picture of a young man gambling.

The photo was captioned "C'mon Seven!" and I quote the rest:

"Several 'gamblers' root highroller Richard Jones on as he tosses the ivories at 'Casino Night' Friday. A joint operation of the Associated Men Students and the Distributive Education Club of America, it drew throngs of students willing to stake their luck on such games as blackjack, poker, pinball craps, roulette and keno for the admission price of $1. The Filke Room in the Liberal Arts Campus College Center was decorated Las Vegas style for the event."

Must our tax-supported colleges be used to introduce young people to the waste of money and lives that gambling produces? I'm against it!

Clean the air

EDITOR:

We have recently moved to Long Beach from San Gabriel because we thought the air would be healthier for my asthmatic problems.

It was upsetting to read in your March 2 issue about the "tons of stuff pumped into the Long Beach air," having just experienced a terrible bout with the flu, followed by pleurisy and then asthma, during which I completely lost the month of February. Certainly the foul air of the area contributed to my near demise.

According to your article, the two largest contributors to the fouling of the air are the electric power plants and the petroleum industry. I wonder what good the energy supply from these two does if we can't breathe.

I refuse to let the electric company, petroleum industry or the chemical plants kill me without at least speaking out. What else can I do?

A secure feeling

EDITOR:

I would like to say something for the vigilance with which the police cars are patrolling the city for the protection of it's residents. On my way to town Sunday, I observed at least three police cars that cruised by the area where I was walking. It gave me a warm, reassuring feeling to know the police are concerned over the welfare and safety of the general public.

It is curious that — for all its charting of isotherms and isobars — the government can forecast weather as ludicrously inaccurately as it did 60 years ago. We must give the meteorologists credit for inventing situation comedy, but wouldn't it be cheaper — albeit equally nugatory — to leave the business of prophecy to the astrologers?

"Why don't WE try this 'role reversal' business, and I'll be the domineering one for a while."

Food market price gouging alleged

In former days, the grocer was a cornerstone of the community, a friend who provided the necessities of life and, in hard times, a little credit.

He has been replaced in most neighborhoods by sprawling supermarkets, with their tempting food lanes, clanging cash registers and impersonal atmosphere. Instead of neighborly credit, some supermarket chains have been systematically gouging their customers.

DOCUMENTS subpoenaed by the Joint Congressional Economic Committee show that supermarket profits are suspiciously higher in areas where there is limited competition. Internal revenue agents also suspect that some supermarket chains have been exchanging price lists to reduce what little competition there is. A confidential staff study, prepared for members of the House Agriculture Committee, lays out the case against the chain stores. The allegations range from commercial bribery to price fixing.

"Over the last year, while the price of food to the consumer has increased by a fantastic 14 per cent," asserts the memo, "the prices paid to the farmer fell by about seven per cent." Someone in the middle, obviously, is pocketing the difference.

Such overcharging at the check-out stands cost food shoppers an incredible $2.6 billion in 1972, the Federal Trade Commission estimated. Although the estimate hasn't been brought up to date, supermarket overcharging and profits have jumped even higher since 1972.

THE CONFIDENTIAL memo cites three monopolistic tools, which the supermarket managers use:

1. They can combine with other chains to dominate the retail food market in an area. "In most major city markets," states the memo, "four chains or less control over 50 per cent of the market — a level that most economists agree leads to anticompetitive activities."

In the Newark-Patterson, N.J., area, for example, a price check showed over 90 per cent of some 5,000 items were priced identically by the four major supermarket chains. "It has to be more than coincidence," the memo contends.

2. Most of the large chains are vertically integrated, which means they produce and process many of the products they sell. Safeway, for example, owns "2400 supermarkets, 109 manufacturing and processing plants, 16 produce packaging plants, 16 bakeries, 19 milk and ice cream plants, a peanut butter and salad oil factory, plus a fleet of 2,100 tractor-trailers shuttling among Safeway's 16 distributor warehouses," reports the memo.

"These massive integrated operations make it impossible for the government to investigate because of the opportunities for shifting and hiding costs and profits — similar to the oil companies."

THE MEMO, prepared at the request of Rep. Margaret Heckler, R.-Mass., emphasized the parallels between the food and oil industries. Not only does the government have to rely on industry data for its facts about food and oil, but both industries allegedly ring up comparable profits.

The most profitable food chains earned 17 to 22 per cent return on equity last quarter, the Joint Economic Committee claimed, in comparison with the average 18 per cent oil returns. The food chains use various accounting techniques to downplay their profits, it is also alleged.

THESE PERCENTAGES are disputed by the food industry whose spokesman, Clarence Adams, told my associate Jack Cloherty that the Joint Economic Committee has been "playing games with the figures." He insisted that return on equity for most supermarket chains was closer to 7.6 per cent. "Trying to take the profits out of the food chains," he said, "is like pumping on a dry well."

3. The enormous buying power of the food chains also gives them great economic advantages. They make such huge purchases from suppliers that they sometimes can dictate prices.

Other firms go to extraordinary lengths to secure supermarket chain business. In New York City, for example, the Justice Department's strike force alleged that supermarket executives were taking as much as $85,000 to $90,000 in bribes to throw business to a supplier. In this case alone, involving meat, the prosecutors estimated that the corruption cost the consumers about four to five cents a pound.

The Justice Department, convinced that the New York case is not at all unique, is checking into similar violations around the cuntry. A San Francisco jury, for example, convicted A&P of conspiring with other companies to fix beef prices. The company is appealing.

The Federal Trade Commission, meanwhile, is studying the operations of chain stores in selected urban areas. The supermarkets have succeeded in frustrating the investigators in some sections, even refusing to honor subpoenas.

FOUR CHAIN stores also backed out of hearings before the Joint Economic Committee, scheduled last January, claiming that the subpoena power had run out on Dec. 31. Thus, no full-scale investigation has yet been mounted of the food industry, despite the government's ignorance of how it works.

As the House memo asks: "Is it in the longterm interest of the consumers of this country to allow these giant corporations to take over the food industry from farm to grocery store?"

America's great at sleep

Even after becoming president, Ulysses S. Grant slept with his boots on. Grant was so sensitive about this that he did not even let Mrs. Grant know he was doing it, but waited until she had fallen off for the night before surreptitiously slipping his legs over the side of the bed, pulling on his boots and rolling in for slumber. He slept heavily and rarely remembered his dreams, which were usually uninteresting.

Thomas Jefferson slept ightly, but according to a coolly reasoned program — two hours on his left side, two on his right, two on his back, and two on his stomach, to assure that the wrinkling of his body would be symmetrical as he aged.

PRESIDENT FORD sleeps in a nightcap and flannel shirt, smiles almost all night long and, is unlike most when his Secret Service guards tiptoe in to watch him, for he looks as good when he is asleep as he does awake, which is extremely rare among presidents and almost everybody else.

The noisiest presidential sleeper was Theodore Roosevelt. His bellowing in the hours just before dawn during dreams of grizzly bears and J. P. Morgan often made the chandeliers tinkle in the East Room. He slept with his eyeglasses looped around his neck on a black cord, which he often chewed through in the night.

President Nixon only pretended to sleep when he went to bed at night. He was afraid that if he slept he might fail to hear something that might be said in the bedroom in the event people were hiding there whom he didn't know about. He did all his sleeping in the daytime on yellow legal pads at Camp David while wearing a business suit, white shirt and necktie.

PRESIDENT Kennedy's father had sent him to England as a young man to study sleeping at the House of Lords and the London School of Economics. This training made Kennedy one of the most vigorous sleepers in American politics. He could go to sleep in less than four seconds after hitting the bed and constantly worked so hard at shaving time off his record that he had to sleep in a sweat suit.

President Johnson always used four beds for a night's sleep, but they were never enough. When he woke up in the morning they were always littered with crumbs of television sets, which he liked to munch before dozing off.

Among contemporary politicians, Nelson Rockefeller is the most powerful sleeper. Rockefeller sleeps in pajamas made of chemical fiber which accumulate static electricity when rubbed along the sheets. The electrical shocks created by the release of the charges jolt him during the night and make him roll abruptly from side to side.

UNLIKE MOST pajamas, his do not roll with him, but instead turn to nooses as he thrashes about under the electrical jolting.

Periodically during the night, he feels that he is being strangled by pajamas, awakens in anger, tears the offending pajamas to shreds and calls for a fresh pair. In a typical night's sleep, Rockefeller consumes six pairs of pajamas.

Ronald Reagan sleeps in a hair net.

EDWARD KENNEDY hates to sleep because he does not do it well, and like all Kennedys he does not like to do something he cannot do better than almost anybody else. For this reason, he has hired a large staff to sleep for him. They are called ghost sleepers and are young, brilliant, dynamic and dedicated.

They are the envy of Hubert Humphrey, who also hates to sleep, but lacks the wealth to match Kennedy's huge and talented staff. As a concession to economic necessity, Humphrey does his own sleeping, but devotes only two hours per night to it. During this period he requires Mrs. Humphrey to sit beside him with a tape recorder running. Her task is to make sure he sleeps on his back and does not roll over so that speeches he makes under the spell of Morpheus are not muffled in the pillows.

Henry Kissinger sleeps in a diaphanously thin skin and, therefore, never undresses for bed until all the lights are out.

Changing U.S. age pattern

At the present time about 35 per cent of our population in the United States is made up of children and teen-agers. That percentage is declining annually as fewer babies are born and the older population becomes greater in number. Experts now estimate this young age group will equal only about 30 per cent of total population when the year 2000 is reached only 25 years ahead. That will be an increase of only 8 per cent in their numbers.

That may seem like a long time to the younger people. But if we recall how quickly the time has passed since 1950 we realize it will speed up for all of those who will be living in the changing period ahead. The largest increase in numbers will be in the younger middle-aged 35 to 50 group. It will increase by 76 per cent over its 1975 population.

THE 65 AND over age group will increase by 30 per cent. But it will still be about the same 10 per cent of total population as today. This is all going to make some severe changes in our ways of life and economy. Economists hope that inflation can be held to an average of 5 per cent a year, compared to the past two years of over 12 per cent. If the 5 per cent inflation averages out, it will take $3.38 in A.D. 2000 to buy what $1 buys today. That would mean the median family $14,000 income of today will have to be over $47,000 in the year 2000.

We have increased our gross national product — meaning the value of all goods and services — by 128 per cent over the past 25 years. The experts expect this to be reduced to 115 per cent over the next 25 years. This means fewer goods and services per capita of the expected 264 million population we wiml have in the year 2000.

THE REDUCTION estimate is attributed to fewer people in the work force compared to population. That can mean fewer unemployed. But it also means fewer new products and a slower improvement in technology, new factories and production than in the past.

This is not so important to the older population, most of whom will not still be here. But to the younger people it should cause them to realize the importance of providing savings to meet the increasing cosu of everything they will be seeking in those 25 short years ahead. They should realize that the present $10,000 they have in savings will be worth in buying power only about $3,000. They will improve this if they save and reinvest the interest they receive. But if they spend it, their present savings will decrease in purchasing power in virtually every year in the future.

A chart in U.S. News and World Report shows what has happened to the purchasing value of the dollar over the past 25 years. In 1946 it was worth $1. That dollar is worth only 38 cents today in purchasing value. It is estimated its value by the year 2000 as 18 cents if inflation is at a 3 per cent annual rate, 9 cents at 6 per cent annual inflation rate and 4 cents if the inflation rate averages 9 per cent a year.

THESE ARE reasons for concern by all who will be here during the next 25 years. It is much less reason to worry than have been the last few years. But all the economists agree we will have greater inflation than the average over the past 25 years. Incomes will increase to equal inflation. But that does not apply to capital in savings accounts, or your life insurance. They must be increased regularly to cover the inflation that erodes their value.

The nation is expected to adjust to continued prosperity with less turmoil than we have been experiencing. But it is a good time to plan your future on what the experts expect the economy will be.

NIC

. . . it means exciting education

What textbook can bring to the classroom today's history . . . or even yesterday's? What one textbook can teach a youngster math, nutrition, politics and English . . . give a kid the chance to color and create, learn and debate?

There is one.

It's your daily newspaper, and that's what NIC is all about. The Independent Press-Telegram's Newspaper In the Classroom program brings the excitement of learning from a constantly changing textbook to over 15,000 school kids every week, from elementary through high school.

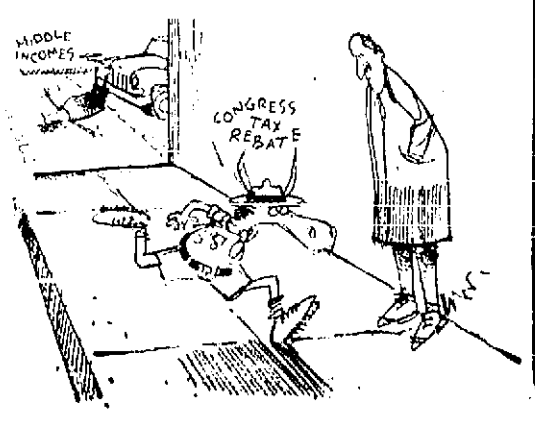

But the program doesn't stop with the kids. We reach the teachers through workshops given during the school year and summer, teaching teachers how to use the newspaper as a learning tool. I, P-T personnel go into the schools to show instructors the endless opportunities newspapers can bring to the classroom, to the students as a group and to each as an individual learning experience.

QE2 crew visits QM

By RALPH HINMAN
Staff Writer

An unexpectedly large contingent of enthusiastic — and nostalgic — "tourists" swarmed through the Queen Mary, seeking out, among other places, the navigating bridge, engine room and the first-class cabins where a visitor said he "worked as a bellhop back in '38."

These visitors, numerically far exceeding the 200 officials here were expecting, were crew members from the British luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2, in port before beginning the final leg of a globe-girdling cruise from New York east to New York.

Expected at the Queen Mary at noon, these men — and a few women — began arriving shortly after the QE2's arrival in San Pedro. Wearing red badges denoting their special status, they continued to arrive here almost until their own vessel sailed.

Also aboard the permanently moored vessel here were officials of Cunard Line Ltd., former owners of the Queen Mary who now operate the QE2 as their high seas flagship.

Enthusiasm and nostalgia clearly were apparent among the touring Britons as they poked and peered at a vintage ship larger than their own — by about 14,000 tons. Among them were former crew members — or their sons — who had known the Queen Mary in her great days of the North Atlantic run, or during her troop-carrying World War II career. And there was appreciation heard for Long Beach's role in preserving this sole seagoing survivor of an age now recalled by many as golden.

One visitor, John Mitchell, managing director of the London-based Cunard firm, found the shipboard hotel "very interesting." He said he "is impressed" with that facility and the conversion of ship into a tourist attraction. "It was done in very good taste."

The QE2's skipper, Capt. Mortimer Hehir, was pleased — and possibly suprised — to find the navigating bridge little changed in appearance since he left the Queen Mary in 1962. Hehir (pronounced "Hair") was the QM's chief officer prior to his promotion to the command of a freighter.

His chief engineer on the QE2, W.S. Farmer, once the Mary's senior second engineer, waxed nostalgic. Pointing brightly burnished brass navigating instruments on the bridge, he sighed. "There's naught like that to be seen on our bridge!"

On a more practical note, Farmer said the Queen Mary is "fit as a fiddle . . . and should last a hundred, or even 200, years considering the care she gets."

He was particularly intrigued by the single engine room preserved within the museum.

Passing a sun deck wax museum, the pair of senior officers were attracted inside by a life-size figure in British Merchant Navy dress whites. Almost gleefully the men posed for pictures while flanking a replica of the Queen Mary's last captain, Treasure Jones, who now lives in retirement in England.

Bryan Vickers, the QE2's social director, earlier held that post aboard both the Queen Mary and her ill-fated sister, the first Queen Elizabeth, destroyed by fire several years ago in Hong Kong. "I'm pleased the Mary did not suffer that fate, or worse . . . hers is a far better end for a gallant ship," Vickers said.

He and a longtime colleague, Frances Milroy, located an office they once shared on the QM that now is within one of the ship's unfinished areas reserved for future development.

Other visitors, like the bellhop of 1938, were too busy to stop and talk. There were too many old memories to be revived in too short a time.

Winds hit festival

Kites overwhelmed

Winds gusting up to 35 mph put a damper on the 49th annual Long Beach Kite Festival Saturday, but sponsors of the event managed to squeeze in scheduled contests before the kites were hauled down.

Long Beach Recreation Department spokeswoman Maria Sharpe, who coordinated the event, said the winds also held attendance down to a "disappointing" total of approximately 500 persons.

She added that several kite enthusiasts, who came from as far away as San Francisco for the event at the foot of Junipero Avenue, were unable to get their kites in the air because of the moderate gale force winds.

"Some of these people have very expensive kites that they fly as a hobby," she said. "They simply couldn't afford to put those kites up in that wind.

"It was really sad, too, to see some of the kids put kites that they'd made themselves up in the air, and see them snap just like that" she said, snapping her fingers.

Ms. Sharpe said the winds also forced cancellation of a balloon busting contest, which had been scheduled as part of the festival for the first time this year. In that contest, a cluster of balloons was to have been tied to a 30-foot pole. Two member teams, using fighter kites —kites with bits of glass glued to their strings— were then to have competed to see which team could bust the most balloons in five minutes.

One of the most popular contests, which was held, she said was the "kite theme" event. Winners were selected for the kites, which were decorated in harmony with each of the six themes.

First place awards went to Carol Huges, 12, for her kite depicting "Signs of the Times"; Dody Sears, 8, for "Togetherness"; Kim Leve, 11, in the "Brotherhood" category; Kenny Hrapik, 13, for his kite depicting "The Inner-Community"; Mike McNeal, 8, for his "Space Galaxy" entry, and Jimmy Renn, 8, for "Man's Best Friend."

The Gold Sweepstakes award was captured by the students from the Riley Extended Day School's 3rd and 4th grades.

The winner among teenage entrants was Karen Cheap, 19, while Dan Chou, 59, took top honors in the senior citizen category.

Ms. Sharpe said the Paul Barber family won first place in special adult category.

Christian Stratton, 8, flew the highest kite of any youngster when his squadron model soared 950 feet into the sky. Top honors in the adult highest-flying kite category were shared by George Welch, who flew his box kite to 1,000 feet, and Ken Bourgiois, whose delta wing model also reached the 1,000-foot mark.

Some schools nonstop

Vacation not just play

Spring vacation means days away from the classrooms for most students in California, but for many in the Artesia, Cerritos, Hawaiian Gardens and East Lakewood areas it means enriched education.

More than 750 elementary, junior and senior high school students will be attending classes next week in the ABC Unified School District's voluntary program, which provides all-year education opportunities.

Robert Beall, principal of Wittmann School in Cerritos, said, "To my knowledge we are the only district in the nation to have schools open during Christmas, spring and summer vacations."

The year-round plan originally started at Furgeson School in Hawaiian Gardens, where Beall used to be principal.

Through the offering of "intersessions," and with the help of an individualized educational program, some schools are able to provide students with opportunities to take vacations during the regular school year or provide expanded learning opportunities during normal vacation periods.

But Beall, who is year-round school coordinator for the district, is finding that only 2 or 3 per cent of the program participants enroll because they want to make up a school-year vacation. "Most of our students are here for enrichment, catch-up or growth," he said.

Several schools will be offering "mini" courses for educational enrichment during the spring vacation period. Participating schools are Bragg, Burbank, Carver, Cabrillo Lane, Cerritos, Furgeson, Hawaiian, Gonsalves, Kennedy, Niemes and Nixon elementary schools, Carmenita Junior High School and Artesia, Cerritos and Gahr High Schools.

Weight program at adult school

The ABC District Adult School is offering a program to help students reduce or maintain their weight successfully and keep weight off permanently.

Classes are to be at 7 p.m. on Thursdays in Room 306 at Artesia High School, 12108 Del Amo Blvd.

Various diet plans emphasizing sound nutritional practices are to be available. Class sessions are to be devoted to use of the diet plans, ideas for changing food habits, and preparation and tasting of low-calorie foods, including family favorites.

Students will learn which foods are the best choice for the dieter, plus have an opportunity to prepare a variety of main dish, fruit and vegetable, dessert, appetizer and beverage recipes.

Sessions during the remainder of the spring semester will include main dish salads, Mexican and Chinese foods, baking with sugar substitutes, pizza, outdoor party foods, gourmet dinner, fruit desserts and a springtime luncheon.

Broadcast awards

Two reporters from KSUL, Long Beach State University's FM station, have received first-place awards for a documentary program on conditions at the Veterans Administration hospital.

Georgia Connolly and Bob Brian got top honors for radio documentaries at the annual convention of the California Intercollegiate Press Association, a statewide organization of college journalists.

KSUL won second place in the same category last year for a documentary on the American Indian Movement.

Ben Cunningham, professor of journalism, is faculty adviser to the KSUL news operation.

The documentary, broadcast March 12, 1974, was titled, "The American Veteran—Honored and Respected?"

Panther talk

Maggie Kuhn, founder of the Gray Panthers, is scheduled to talk to Long Beach members of the organization today at 2 p.m. at Grace Presbyterian Church, Third Street at Atlantic Avenue. The public is invited.

Registration set for ball players

Registration for slow-pitch and softball leagues for men, sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, is under way, according to Gary Brown, sports supervisor.

Registration for all returning teams began last week, Brown said, and new teams will begin signing up Monday.

Fees for the softball league are $203 per team, while the slowpitch team fee is $107, he said. Checks should be made payable to the Recreation Commission and delivered to the Recreation Department's sports office at 155 Queens Way in the former Armed Services YMCA building.

Brown said women's slowpitch leagues also are being organized, and registration will begin March 31. The fee for the women's teams will be $70.

Free help with taxes

Free income tax assistance is available to students and low-income, unemployed or retired persons at the Pacific Coast Campus of Long Beach City College, 1315 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

Tax return preparers will be at Room 110 of the college Mondays and Tuesdays from 6 to 9 p.m. until April 15.

Taxpayers should bring their W-2 forms, copies of 1974 tax returns and itemized list of deductions.

Want your diploma?

A new series of tuition-free classes for adults wanting to complete work toward high school diplomas will begin on April 14 at the Wilson High Adult Center, 845 Park Ave.

Courses will be offered in U.S. history, U.S. government, English and psychology. Classes meet twice a week from 7 to 10 p.m. for nine weeks.

The classes are open to anyone 18 or older. Counselors are on duty daily at the school office to help with registration.

Services set for Dr. Furie

Services for Dr. Walter Furie, a longtime Long Beach orthodontist, are to be held 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Memorial Park Chapel of Sunnyside Memorial Park in Long Beach.

Dr. Furie, 84, died Friday. He had practiced dentistry for 58 years, 52 of those in Long Beach, where he also made his home.

Secret Witness cases

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 40 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $30,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial.

Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the selected and varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, or the apprehension of fugitives from justice, not covered in these summaries. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense. Rewards in all cases, whether among those listed or not, will remain open until such cases are closed or until notification is given in print that the reward is withdrawn.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the special Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

—Rewards totaling $2,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by Knights of Columbus Council 3449 — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Steven Robert Snedeker, 18-year-old clerk who was found shot to death after an apparent robbery at the H & O Liquor Store, 6069 Cherry Ave., on the night of Jan. 27, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Ashok N. Parekh, 27-year-old owner of Paul's Market, 755 Magnolia Ave., shot to death during a holdup attempt at his store on Sept. 19, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Douglas Rehpohl, 32-year-old music teacher moonlighting as an Anaheim taxi driver, found stabbed to death near his cab in an apparent murder-robbery on Sunkist Road south of Ball Road in the Anaheim area on the night of Oct. 12, 1974.

—A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and robbery conviction of the armed bandit who took $3,168 from a cashier at the General Motors Acceptance Corp. office at 200 W. Wardlow Road on Dec. 20, 1974. The bandit was described as a thin black man, very tall—at least 6 feet 8 inches.

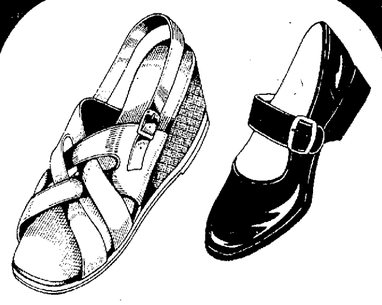

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Andrea "Treecy" Logan, 5-year-old Long Beach girl found strangled near her home in an alley back of 136 Walnut St. on May 7, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Leon Pointer, 46-year-old liquor store owner shot to death by a burglar he surprised in his store at 13408 S. Avalon Blvd. in the Athens area on July 29, 1974.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Canal yields second body

VISALIA (AP) — A second body in two days has been pulled from the Friant-Kern Canal in Tulare County, sheriff's deputies report.

A young Mexican male was found floating in a section of the canal near Porterville on Friday, officers said. An autopsy revealed the unidentified victim drowned.

On Thursday, the body of a middle-aged man, also unidentified, was pulled from the canal near Earlimart. Officers said an autopsy revealed he also died from drowning.

POLICE BEAT

This roundup of crime, accidents, fire and law enforcement activities is compiled from reports filed by Southland public safety officers. Other crime stories and news from the courts may be found elsewhere in the newspaper.

Public warned of bunco scheme

The fraud detail of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department is warning Southern California residents that the bunco scheme known as the "Bank Examiner" is being used locally.

The scheme differs from other bunco operations since it does not depend so much on the greed of its victims as on their desire to be good citizens, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Potential victims, usually elderly persons, are contacted by telephone and asked to help bank examiners identify a dishonest employee in a local savings and loan office.

The caller directs the victim to withdraw cash and arranges to meet the victim outside the savings and loan office. The suspect then takes the money with the understanding that it is to be deposited back into the victim's account to help catch a dishonest employee. But, according to the sheriff's department, the "bank examiner" leaves and is never seen again.

Detectives from the sheriff's fraud detail said in recent cases the victims have been women and the caller a man.

Detectives said anyone called or approached on this scheme should contact their local law enforcement agency.

Suspect caught after chase

An 18-year-old Compton man who was allegedly robbing a hamburger stand was shot and wounded by an off-duty police officer then led the officer on a wild chase before being captured, police said Saturday.

Investigators said Officer C.R. Macon was on his way home from work late Friday when he allegedly saw Ernest Spells, of 1422 Cookaere St., with a gun standing at the front of Louisburger No. 2, a hamburger stand at 3521 S. Long Beach Blvd.

Macon jumped out of his car and ordered Spells to drop his gun but instead Spells wheeled around and fired three times from a automatic pistol, police said.

Macon returned two shots from his .25 caliber pistol, officers said, but Spells returned three more shots and Macon fired twice more, apparently wounding him.

Spells then ran to an allegedly stolen car parked at the curb and sped off with Macon following in his auto, police said.

Spells careened into a curb several blocks away in front of 1308 S. Sloane Ave. but jumped out with Macon in pursuit, police said.

Macon asked occupants of the house at that address to call police and after a 45-minute search by responding officers Spells was found hiding at the rear of 1317 S. Sloane St., police said.

The automatic allegedly used by Spells was found in another yard around the corner, officers said.

They said Spells did not get anything from the robbery. He was booked early Saturday on suspicion of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon at County-USC Medical Center where doctors said he had a bullet wound in the left leg, police said.

Officers said they are seeking a second suspect who allegedly had been with Spells.

Children rescued from fire

Two small children were rescued from their burning house early Saturday by firemen who were guided to their back bedroom by the tots' screams, fire officials said.

Frank MacKenzie, 4, and sister Angela, 1, were taken to St. Mary Medical Center after the 12:30 a.m. blaze gutted their home at 2028 Atlantic Ave., firemen said.

They said the fire was discovered by a passing police patrol car.

Angela was released from the hospital after being treated for smoke inhalation, firemen said. Her brother was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Mary's with first degree burns on the upper part of his body.

The children's mother, Cecilia MacKenzie, 25, said she was visiting friends and was not informed of the fire until 5 a.m.

Five companies of firemen brought the fire under control in five minutes. The blaze caused $5,000 damage to the one-story wood house, firemen said. Investigators said the cause of the blaze still is under investigation, but that it may have been started by an arsonist.

Fire damages Lawndale home

A fire of undetermined origin caused an estimated $9,000 damage at 5:45 p.m. Saturday to an unoccupied two-bedroom home at 4215 W. Compton Blvd., Lawndale, county fire officials reported.

Ready for dedication

James Harris, left, quarterback of the Rams, and Dr. Robert K. Kerlan, team physician and member of the staff at Centinela Hospital, inspect device to aid orthopedic patients at the hospital. A dual ceremony will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday to dedicate the hospital's auditorium and for groundbreaking of a $16-million, 102-bed tower building. The ceremony, open to the public, will be held on the institution's grounds, 555 E. Hardy St., Inglewood. —Staff Photo by Roger Coar

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Make a fine distinction between healthy self-interest and vanity. Your sense of values improves as you see non-material factors at work in important events. Relationships are troubled until you recognize and adjust to the circumstances in which others find themselves. Today's natives are impulsive and led by intense feelings into a variety of difficult causes.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You face a dilemma: Pursue material gain at the expense of personal satisfaction or vice versa. Since neither goal is actually reached today, don't force any issues.

Taurus (April 20-May20): People say "yes" without realizing what's involved. Explanations are muddled until you ask questions tonight. Avoid unessential on long-term financial moves.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You're not the only one glamorizing people. Others misjudge you as well; forgive them. Don't hesitate to accept a benefit that's volunteered.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on routine that requires no close cooperation. Be explicit in what you say or abstain from voicing your opinion. The facts will eventually surface.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): That idea you're kicking around in the back of your head isn't worked out well enough for presentation. Wait a while and clear the way for it before announcing your program.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Enthusiasm is dampened a bit in today's crosscurrents. Tidy up the loose ends on long, drawn-out enterprises that are up for critical review.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends are full of schemes that are either incomplete or not in your best interest. Give them a chance to declare themselves, then follow your own choices.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Resist suggestions to simply settle for the existing situation. Wait to learn more details and sound out other people. You have surprising news in later hours.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Confusing information is the normal order of the day. Your patience inspires others to help sort matters out. It isn't wise to push negotiations to an early close.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You're criticized if you do and criticized if you don't! It's hard to refrain from impulses to correct the local problems, but your attention should be on larger matters now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Instead of complaining about interruptions, regard them as chances to update your thinking or readjust your approach. Some chores must be done over again.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The less you exert yourself, the better. You've got too many preparations to think about before getting any major project underway. You experience a quick mental somersault late today.

Julie, Rexy not feuding

NEW YORK — That little bird, Julie Harris, was celebrating her 30th year on the Broadway stage by denying that she was going home in tears every night due to a feud with Sexy Rexy Harrison.

"There've never been any harsh words between us," the little bird who stars with him in "In Praise of Love," insisted. "He's a marvelous actor, he's a joy to work with, he is so realistic. One night he put in a line that was so good that we kept it in."

BUT JULIE, who's won four Tonys in 26 plays, and also done 14 movies, admitted there has been occasional trouble in the years since she began with "It's a Gift," which was about Julie inheriting a brothel from an aunt who was a madame.

"Some gift!" she laughed.

"In 'A Member of the Wedding' " she recalled, "there was an actor so tall he towered over me, who got so drunk that we literally had to hold him up and say his words for him. I was in such a rage I said I'd beat him up if he did that again ... I actually went for him but I was restrained from hurting him. Me, 5-feet-four, weight about 103.

"In the same show Ethel Waters used to take me in her arms. I was in her lap when she sang 'His Eyes Are on the Sparrow.' I used to think 'They're paying me to do this!' "

THERE'VE been icy moments with actresses when one of them has exclaimed during rehearsal, "You're going to do THAT — with that handkerchief?" and Julie has coolly said, "Yes."

"I'm not going to be intimidated," she said. "I don't think stars should be kowtowed to and I don't expect to be kowtowed to."

When Julie, who's 49, came here from Grosse-Point, Mich. she says, "I left my father's house thinking everybody was good. I soon found out I was wrong.

"Nudity? It never came my way," she said, and laughed. "Who would want to see me?"

In "A Shot in the Dark," in which she played a girl who got around a lot, but actually wasn't a prostitute. Julie believed that her image would change and she would be looked upon as a wild sex fiend.

BUT PEOPLE wouldn't believe it. The little bird was still a good girl.

When Julie was doing "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln" in '72 and '73, a press agent said, "We're going to get you a Tony for this. You've never won a Tony have you?"

"Yes," she nodded, "for 'I Am a Camera,' and also for 'The Lark' and one for '40 Carats.' " And she got one for the Mrs. Lincoln show, tying her with Gwen Verdon.

Would she be nominated this year? "Oh, no, no, there are so many great performances this year."

Joshua Logan tried to protect her image in "Ready When You Are, C.B." Josh had given her a scene where she sat on an ottoman wearing blue jeans and oversized boots. "Cross your legs," Logan said.

"IT WAS very dear and very funny, and I loved it," she said. "One day Josh said, 'Don't cross your boots any more. It seems vulgar.' I said, 'But it's so funny.' Well, he allowed me to keep it in."

She returned to the non-feud with Rex Harrison.

"There's one thing I didn't learn in 30 years. Why is it, everybody wants you to fall on your face?"

Deuk opposition to runoff bill attacked

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

State Senate Democratic Caucus Chairman David A. Roberti has charged that the "partisan maneuvering" of Republican Floor Leader George Deukmejian will force Los Angeles County taxpayers to spend $40,000 for a pointless and unnecessary runoff election April 1 in the county's 29th Senate District.

Deukmejian, of Long Beach, said opposition to a bill which would have eliminated the runoff election was based on the principle of not changing election law in the middle of a campaign. Opponents to the bill said it also would have changed the rules for a write-in, requiring such write-in to indicate his intention within three days of the primary.

Deukmejian said there was no indication if and when Gov. Brown would sign the legislation had it passed, thus making the three-day limit more critical.

As it stands, the April 1 runoff ballot will bear only the name of the primary winner, Assemblyman Bill Greene. No Republican was on the primary ballot, and the only Republican write-in candidate failed to get at least one per cent of the vote, a minimum required to advance his name to the runoff.

Sen. Roberti complained that 10 GOP senators voted in a bloc to stop the urgency legislation meaning, Roberti said, that "the people in this district must go unrepresented in the Senate for yet another month—besides the ridiculous waste of money."

The bill would have eliminated runoffs in elections when, after a primary, the race is uncontested. This occurs when the two top vote-getters are members of the same party and there are no candidates from other political parties, as was the case in the March 4 primary.

SEN. ROBERTI

SEN. DEUKMEJIAN

Pledge to Kell

Richard Cartwright, a candidate in the March 18 Long Beach City Council primary, Fifth District, announced his "unqualified support" for district finalist Ernie Kell, who will face Jo Ann Richards in the May 13 general election.

Chel at Council

Assemblyman Fred W. Chel will address the Long Beach City Council on state legislative matters Tuesday morning and then join council members for lunch.

Chel also announced Assembly passage of a bill, AB 309, which would prohibit any elected official from receiving retirement pay while at the same time drawing his salary for serving in such elective office.

He noted that several county sheriffs who had been reelected, resigned just before the ends of their terms. When their new terms started they then received both their pension pay and their salaries.

Kennick measures

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick said a bill he coauthored with Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, which prohibits lenders from denying credit to unmarried persons for that reason, has passed the Assembly 79-0 and goes to the Senate.

The bill, which was also coauthored by Assemblyman Fred Chel, also protects women in their childbearing years from credit discrimination.

Kennick, D-Long Beach, has coauthored another bill requiring school districts to supply free or reduced-price lunches or breakfasts to needy pupils. The program is proposed to begin in fiscal 1978-79 and would be financed from the Child Nutrition Revolving Fund.

The Long Beach senator reported that "everything is well on schedule" on building the new State University and College Headquarters in Long Beach. He said, "The foundation is complete, the exterior walls are going up and the target date for completion is mid-January."

Vicencia vet bill

Assemblyman Frank Vicencia, D-Bellflower, introduced legislation, AB 1239, to exempt veterans who are "100 per cent disabled" from having to pay vehicle registration fees. He said current law makes it necessary for many veterans who are completely disabled to pay registration fees because they have not lost two limbs.

Vicencia also encouraged his constituents to use the State Department of Transportation's new toll-free assistance and information number (800) 952-5276.

The service is part of a six-months pilot program being conducted by the Caltrans Office of Environmental and Community Affairs to provide quick, accurate information on all transportation-related matters.

Vicencia urged use of the service by residents who have questions about freeway construction, future transportation plans "or who see the need for change." Service is available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Tunney offices

U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., announced the opening of a field office at 15948 E. Whittier Blvd., Whittier, phone 943-0379. In charge will be Tunney Field Deputy Robert H. "Bob" Fuentes.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, announced that another Tunney Field Deputy, Bob Wilson, will have office hours in Thomas' district office, Room 508, 255 W. Fifth St., San Pedro, the second Wednesday of each month from 9 a.m. to noon. Appointments may be made at 833-2881.

Disposables debate

If Orange County Counsel Adrian Kuyper can come up with a definition of disposable containers, the supervisors might ban them from public facilities.

The problem started with the Orange County Grand Jury, which asked the county to refuse to process in any public dump returnable containers such as bottles and cans.

Supervisor Robert W. Battin of Santa Ana asked his colleagues to outlaw the handling of disposables at the Featherly Regional Park concession, soon up for new bids.

Supervisors said the definition of disposable containers might include gum wrappers, the napkins around hamburgers and packaged cigarettes and candies.

Battin said he was thinking only of pop-top cans and other "disposable containers."

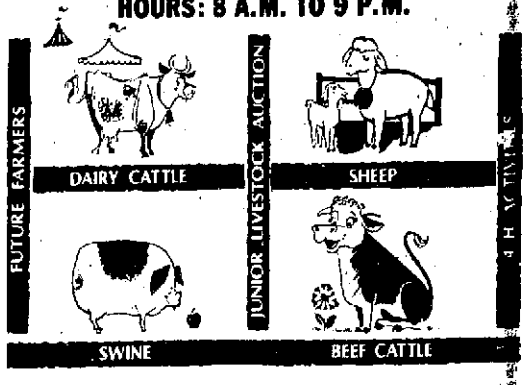

If the county cannot ban them outright, he suggested writing into the lease offering that the concessionaire must agree not to handle them.

It would be the first such control to be tried by the county and would generally be in conformance with the grand jury's suggestion that the county could cut down on its mounting piles of rubbish.

Can Oakland be stopped in '75?

"We all have one common foe—and he runs this bleeping ball club."
—Ken Holtzman

"Charley hasn't come out yet so things have been kinda boring."
—Joe Rudi

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

MESA, Ariz. — This is the year, the pundits of baseball are proclaiming, that the Oakland A's can be had — transformed into the Oakland Also-rans.

The reasoning is twofold. Catfish Hunter, who won 25 games and the Cy Young Award, is now wearing New York Yankee pinstripes and second baseman Dick Green, the gifted glove at second base of whom it was said stabilized volatile shortstop Campy Campaneris, is wearing a pained expression on his face as he awaits his fate on waivers.

To a man, the outspoken A's agree the loss of Hunter and Green is a damaging setback but there is a difference of opinion as to just how damaging.

"We're definitely weakened," says pitcher Ken Holtzman, "and it will be interesting to see if we can get help. But this club is as confident as it ever was."

The three-time world champion A's seem to find a mystical strength in disunity. The deeper the discord, the more productive they become.

Asked if the departures of Hunter and Green — especially Hunter — would serve as a cohesive factor, Holtzman laughed and gave a typically classic and candid answer.

"There really is no such thing on this club unless you consider the fact we all have a common foe — and he runs this bleeping ball club."

He, of course, is Charles O. Finley, the feisty owner who takes great delight in stirring the caldron of discontent that is the Oakland clubhouse.

It has been unusually serene in Mesa this spring — with only a brief but heated exchange between Reggie Jackson and Blue Moon Odom to spoil the tranquility — as the A's contemplate their future without Hunter. Outfielder Joe Rudi humorously explained it thusly: "Charlie hasn't come out yet so things have been kinda boring."

Rudi is apprehensive about heading into a season without a Catfish Hunter on his side.

"One player shouldn't make that much difference but Cat was exceptional," Rudi said. "He was our stopper and we all know what a loss he is. Who knows what's going to happen?"

As for Green, Rudi concurred that "he was a stabilizer for Campy. I wish he had been in camp to help (Phil) Gardner break in."

Gene Tenace observed, "We're still the club to beat but I hated to see Cat leave. I'm not saying we'll miss him that much but I know we'll be wishing we had him during the year."

Rollie Fingers, the backbone of the A's bullpen, chided Finley for permitting Hunter to obtain the unique status of free agent.

"An owner shouldn't get in a position where he could lose a Catfish. I know 25 guys who wish they were in Catfish's shoes.
—Rollie Fingers

"We've tasted winning and I don't think anybody will settle for second place—which is anything short of winning the Series."
—Sal Bando

Johnson MVP in UCLA romp

Combined News Services

PORTLAND (AP)—The second-ranked UCLA Bruins, led by Marques Johnson's career-high 35 points, won their ninth successive NCAA Western Regional basketball tournament Saturday, romping to an 89-75 victory over seventh-ranked Arizona State.

"I'm very pleased," said UCLA coach John Wooden. "We've been playing without very much intensity lately, but we seemed to have it back—at least for this particular game."

UCLA, seeking a record 10th NCAA title—all in the last 12 years—plays third-ranked Louisville in the NCAA semifinals at San Diego Saturday afternoon. The Bruins had their string of seven consecutive NCAA titles broken in the semifinals last year by North Carolina State.

"I gave them a little talk about that after our game Thursday," Wooden said Saturday in referring to the Bruins' 67-64 squeaker over Montana in the regional semifinal.

"Marques had perhaps his best game," Wooden said. "They had a smaller man on him, and he was able to take advantage of it very well."

Johnson, a 6-foot-6½ sophomore forward from Crenshaw High, took advantage of 6-2 Rudy White. Johnson hit on 14 of 20 shots from the field and seven of eight from the free throw line, scoring 20 points in the first half when the Bruins established their superiority.

His performance earned him the regional's most valuable player award. He was joined on the all-tournament team by teammate Richard Washington, Montana's Eric Hays, Nevada-Las Vegas' Robert Smith and Arizona State's Lionel Hollins.

Smith sparked Las Vegas to a 75-67 win in the consolation contest.

"Marques obviously had a great game," said ASU coach Ned Wulk. "I thought he played very opportune basketball, but UCLA as a team exploited us where they were supposed to.

"We were mentally ready, but we did not play like it. Our total ineffectiveness under the boards was a big factor, especially in the first half. UCLA played an intelligent game, as they usually do."

Wulk also stressed an intangible.

"It's something you can't put your finger on, but it showed out there today. It is obviously tournament experience."

Even though the Bruins held a comfortable lead throughout most of the second half, Wooden said he was concerned that the Sun Devils would come back.

"They are the kind of a team, with their press and fastbreak, that can score points in bunches. I'm sure they are the quickest team we've faced all season."

The Bruins pulled down 29 rebounds in the first half, compared with just 15 for the Sun Devils. UCLA's game advantage on the boards was 53-40,

Season ends for Indiana

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — "Indiana was good, but we were great," decided Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. Agreed Indiana boss Bobby Knight, "The best team won."

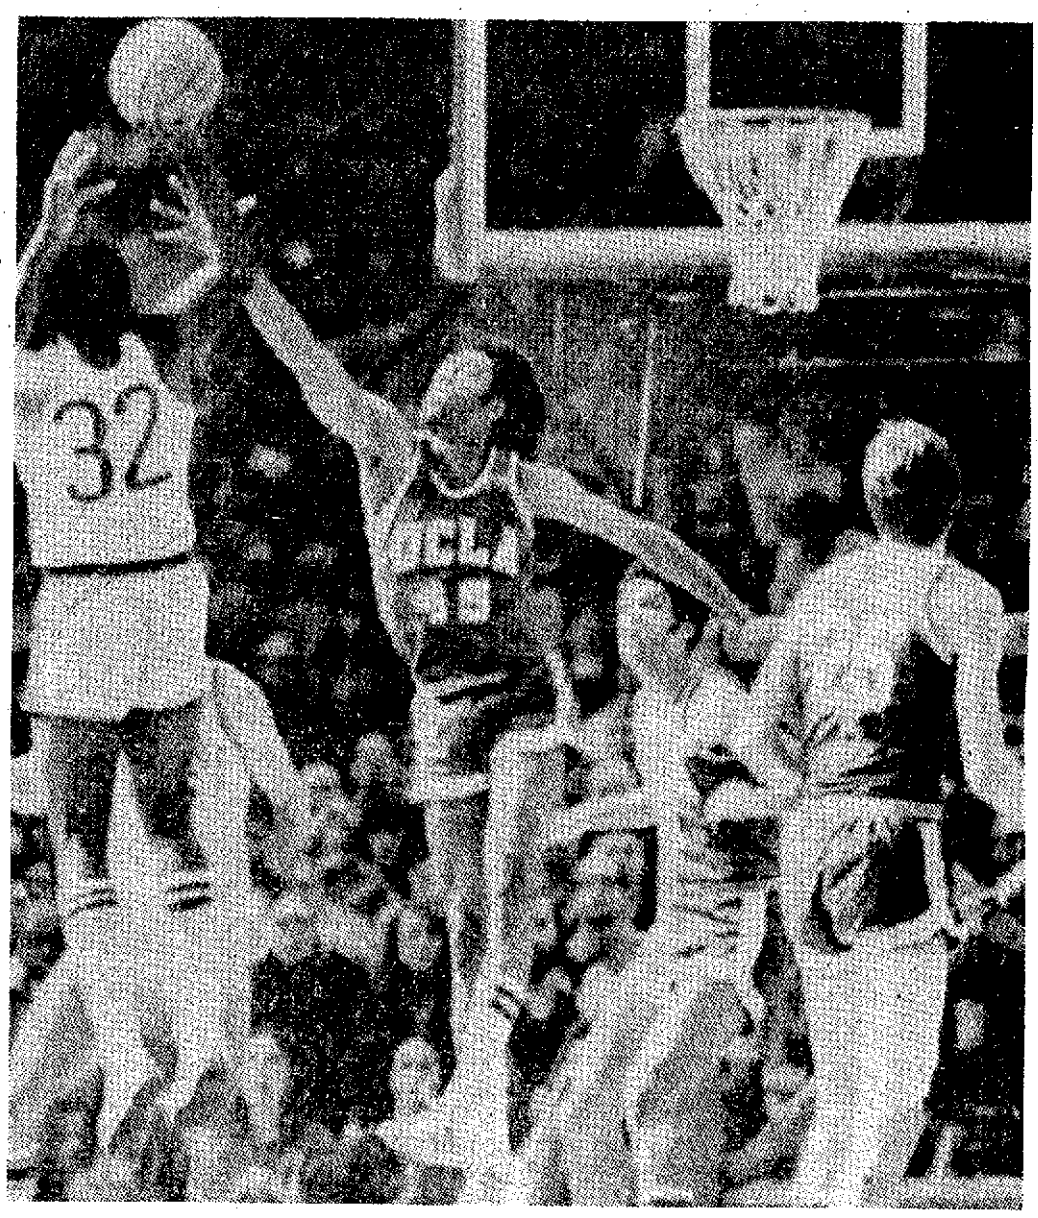

The similar reactions came after Kentucky upset top-ranked and previously undefeated Indiana 92-90 in a wild NCAA Mideast Regional championship game Saturday afternon.

The fourth-rated Wildcats now move on to the NCAA national semifinals next Saturday against Syracuse, but first Hall wants to savor one of the season's biggest upsets.

"Indiana played a good basketball game, but we played a great basketball game," figured Hall, in his third year as successor to legendary Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp.

"I could tell we were going to win," said Hall. "Our strategy was to work for that early shot and get it before Indiana set up

Jipcho logs super 'distance double'

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

The International Track Association show in the Los Angeles Sports Arena wasn't a disaster Saturday.

Ben Jipcho saved it.

The 32-year-old Kenyan ran the quickest two-mile, mile double in 2,700 years of track.

Jipcho's antics — and the bright television lights — kept the "crowd" announced as 6,568 (but closer to 3,400) awake.

The meet was held in the afternoon, with a national telecast scheduled in the Johnny Carson 11:30 p.m. time slot. There were not enough cameras on hand, so many events were delayed. Several athletes blamed their subpar performances on television delays.

Maybe they'll hold the meet in a TV studio next year.

Jipcho won the spotlighted two-mile in 8:27.0, erasing his own professional record of 8:34.0. Fifty-five minutes later he won the mile in 3:56.2, eliminating four-tenths from his own professional standard.

Jipcho and veteran Tracy Smith alternated leadership in the two-mile until they were 1½ laps — 240 yards— from the rainbow. Jipcho caught and conquered in an instant. He won by 30 yards although the game Smith, former Long Beach State student, was stopwatched in a lifetime best of 8:29.4.

The mile looked like a record run from go to whoa.

Jipcho, a teacher at Kenya Prisons Training College in Nairobi, led at the quarter poll in 59.3, surrendered the advantage to Keith Munson (1:58.5) at the half, and resumed the pacesetter position at the three-quarters stake (2:58.0).

Jipcho accelerated on the ninth lap of the 11-lap race, and suddenly Jipcho's only challenger was the clock.

Munson terminated in 3:58.5, a lifetime best, while Jim Ryun was third in 4:00.3, far to the rear but his quickest clocking in two years.

This was the 10th time Jipcho has attempted a distance double — and he's won all 20 of the races. His fastest previous double was at Salt Lake on Feb. 21 — a 4:00.8 mile and 8:40.6 two-mile. Saturday's mile was third fastest all-time indoors behind Tony Waldrop's 3:55.0 and Marty Liquori's 3:55.8.

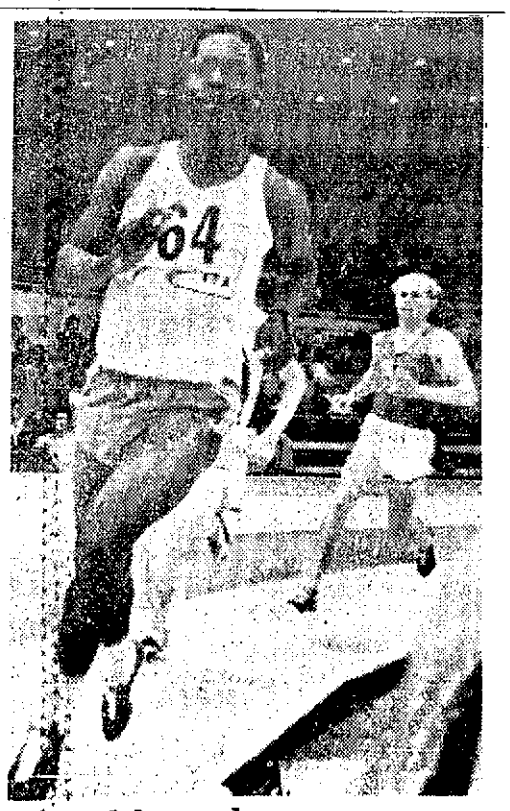

It was a memorable day for Jipcho both on the track and in the wallet. He received $2,000 for winning the two-mile, a bonus event Saturday; $600 for winning the mile; $200 for breaking the pro record in the mile, $200 for the two-mile record.

"Yes, I won $3,000," the father of four said, "but don't forget to take away 30 per cent U.S. taxes."

How does a fellow feel after running two record races in less than an hour?

"I feel great — ready for an 880," Jipcho said with an ear-to-ear grin. "I am in the best shape of

Bond spurs Louisville over Terps

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — The game between third-ranked Lousiville and No. 4 Maryland, two teams known for explosive shooting, was not decided by offense but by Louisville's sticky defense and the Cardinals beat the Terrapins, 96-82, in the NCAA Midwest Regional championship basketball game.

"They came in as the best shooting team in the country and we held them to 43 per cent," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "I thought it was our defense that got us through all year and it helped us again today."

The triumph moved Louisville into the national semifinals for the third time. The Cardinals will face UCLA next Saturday in San Diego.

Maryland came into the game as the No. 1 shooting team in the nation with a 55 per cent average, but Louisville's sharpshooters more than matched the Terps. All five of Louisville's starters scored in double figures.

'Somebody up there likes us'—Orangemen

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — "There's somebody up there who loves us," said Rudy Hackett. And the way Hackett's Syracuse Orangemen keep winning, there just might be.

Hackett scored 28 points, two of them on a left-handed shot over his head at the buzzer which sent the game into overtime, as upstart and unheralded Syracuse, 23-7, won the NCAA's East Regional championship, 95-87, over Kansas State here Saturday.

The victory, which nullified a Kansas State effort that seemed to have given the Wildcats a ticket to the NCAA finals, sent Syracuse to San Diego instead. The Orange play Kentucky in the national semifinals Saturday.

Hackett, a 6-foot-9 senior forward who facially resembles Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, had four points in overtime and combined with Jim (Bug) Williams on the critical play at the end of regulation to seal Kansas State's fate and end the Wildcats' season with a 20-0 record.

"We've been the underdog in every tournament we've played," Hackett said. "I was a little worried when we went into the game 3½ point favorites. We like to play the role of the underdog."

Hackett's tying basket was shot at the buzzer

Sulky Smith: ITA robbed me of $2,000

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

What do Ben Jipcho and Steve Smith have in common?

Both are showmen, in their ways, which is to say that the International Track Association probably would prefer more of the unconquerable Kenyan and less of the petulant pole vaulter.

Jipcho's entire act lasted only 12 minutes, 23.2 seconds in the ITA's L.A. Sports Arena Saturday production, which appeared to be geared more for the convenience of a television re-run than for the sparse gathering of hardcore track addicts who saw a two-hour meet finish more than one hour late.

Jipcho's 8:27 two-mile followed by a 3:56.2 mile were the highlights, and after each race he returned the fans' admiration by slapping hands with the front row patrons on victory laps, then bowing to the four points of the compass.

After his seemingly effortless achievements, he grinned broadly and said, "I'm ready to run the 880."

Smith, who won at 17 feet, 6 inches, also played to the crowd, such as it was, and also to his No. 1 rival, Bob Seagren.

Smith, the former Long Beach State star who holds the pro record at 18-2½, had a plan to top it Saturday at 18-3—the plan being to "jump at 16-6, 17-3, 17-9, then shoot for the record at 18-3, going up six inches at a time from 17-3," he said.

His goal would have won him a bonus of $2,000.

But Smith was late for the meet—certainly not because of any traffic outside—and arrived after the other vaulters had discussed and approved the format to raise the bar from 16-6 to 17-0 to 17-6 to 17-10, etc.

So after Smith and Seagren cleared 16-6 and officials would raise the bar only to 17-0, Smith walked out.

"I wanted to have straight jumps of six inches up to 18-3," Smith said. "But they don't want to do it like that, so..."

Asked if he thought he should have the option to do that, Smith replied:

"I did as an amateur."

So while Smith was sulking around outside, Seagren cleared 17-0 and the bar went to 17-6.

But moments after it was announced to the fans that Smith had withdrawn, Steve reappeared in his baby blue jumping outfit as Seagren missed his first attempt. Then Smith cleared 17-6 easily on his first try, bounding from the pit with angry and defiant gestures.

Seagren was so flustered by Smith's jump and ensuing demonstration that he laid down his pole and took a long walk to the end of the runway before announcing he would pass his next two attempts and try for 17-10.

Smith sat by the side of the runway but didn't look up from re-taping his pole as Seagren missed badly at 17-10, then twice more, giving Smith the victory and $600.

As the running events concluded and the crowd drifted away, Smith prepared to attempt 18-3¼. The last impression of many will be seeing him hurl his pole down the runway in disgust as the bar accidentally fell from the safety razor standards.

He missed all three attempts, then claimed that the competition was stacked against him.

"They did it Seagren's way, not mine," Steve said. "The standards weren't set right, either. They robbed me of $2,000. I'm going to talk to management about this before our next meet."

Like Smith and Seagren, Jipcho and Tracy Smith also are rivals, but in a more amicable relationship. Tracy helped Jipcho to his pro record in the two-mile by readily taking the pace twice when Jipcho moved to the outside.

"We were working together," said Smith, who turned pro this year and Saturday ran his best time of 8:29.4 to collect $700 second-place money.

"I went to him before the race and said, 'Look, if we want to go for the record, the competition isn't up to running a good pace, and I don't want to do all the work. So why don't we switch off, then at the end whoever's the strongest...'"

Smith waved Jipcho goodbye 1½ laps from home.

"He's got that tremendous kick that I don't have," Tracy said. "But I'm real happy. Anytime I can get a best time and stay close to a man like Jipcho, I have to be happy. I would have liked to beat him, but it'll get closer as the year goes on. He's had more races and this was only my third."

Less than an hour later, the amazing Kenyan returned to run his sub-four-minute mile, which, finally, made the afternoon worthwhile.

Vachon, Nevin pace Kings' win

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Cancel the all-points bulletin on Rogie Vachon. The stylish little Frenchman is alive and playing well again in goal. No. 30? Right, That's Vachon.

After allowing 20 goals in his previous six starts, Rogie's friends will be glad to know he's not been kidnapped.

Vachon proved that Saturday night when he shut out the Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-0, before a rousing turnout of 14,957 at the Forum. It marked Rogie's sixth shutout of the year, a career high, and third against the Pens this season as the Kings clinched second place in Division III.

The victory also enabled the Kings to inch within six points of Montreal's division leaders and keep their flickering title hopes alive.

"Montreal has a tough game tomorrow against Philadelphia," the 30-year-old Vachon said. "You never know. We've still got a chance. They've got to play the Islanders, Pittsburgh and Boston."

Despite notching his 15th shutout with the Kings and 28th in his NHL career, Vachon had to share the glory with Bob Nevin, who popped in a pair of shorthanded goals.

"That's the first time in my career I've ever scored two (shorthanded goals) in one game," the 37-year-old veteran right winger said with a deadpanned expression. "I've been watching (Mike) Murphy lately scoring shorthanded goals so I thought I'd try my luck.

"Seriously though, if we can keep our momentum going for the playoffs I think we'll be okay. I think we're over our slump," Nevin said after running his goal total to 27 for the long season.

The Penguins, who had stung the Kings, 3-2, in their last appearance at the Forum, Feb. 5, were in a state of shock after the first period in which Don Kozak, Frank St. Marseille and Nevin scored to give Vachon a 3-0 cushion.

"What really killed us was in the second period when we only got three shots," Pens coach Marc Boileau complained. "I don't know what (Gary) Inness was thinking about on two of those goals, either. He was back of the goal playing like a forward," Boileau stormed.

Nevin's second shorthanded goal of the night, giving the Kings a club-record eight for the season, concluded the outburst with 16:38 elapsed in the middle period.

It was then up to Vachon to withstand a furious third-period assault in which the Pens cranked off 17 shots—giving them a total of 31 for the night.

In boosting his season record to 26-12-11, Vachon lowered his goals-against average to 2.18 for 49 games. It marked Vachon's first blank since he stopped Boston, 6-0, Feb. 22.

The match was enlivened by two skirmishes in the first period. First, Gene Carr and Pittsburgh defenseman Bob Paradise dropped their gloves. Later, Kings defenseman Terry Harper was shoved to the ice by Barry Wilkins and wound up second best in the brief wrestling match.

The Kings only hope the Canadiens wind up second best in their bout with the Flyers today.

Arizona clobbers A's, 14-8

Blue Moon Odom and Lew Krausse, who are bidding to replace Catfish Hunter in Oakland's pitching rotation, were battered for 14 runs and 17 hits Saturday...by a college team.

Odom was raked for nine runs in four innings and Krausse surrendered five the rest of the way as the University of Arizona clobbered the world champion A's 14-8 in an exhibition baseball game.

The game featured four hits by Arizona's Steve Powers and strong relief pitching by Chris Loafman, who allowed one hit and one run over the final four innings, saving the victory for starter Terry Armstrong. The A's collected nine hits.

Besides Arizona's 17 hits, Oakland committed five errors, three by second baseman Phil Garner, who also made three errors Friday against San Diego.

Buddy Bradford, who has hit 42 home runs in 567 major league games, slammed his seventh of the spring as the Chicago White Sox thumped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1. Meanwhile, a split Philadelphia squad, consisting mostly of minor leaguers, scored twice in the first inning off Tom Seaver and edged the New York Mets 2-1.

LBSU GYMNASTS PCAA CHAMPIONS

Long Beach State, sparked by Yoichi Tomita, a 19-year-old freshman from Gumma, Japan, captured the team titles in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and NCAA western regional gymnastics meets held concurrently Saturday at Cal State Fullerton.

Tomita, who has been hampered by shoulder, thumb and ankle injuries, dominated the individual all-around competiton. His total of 105.70 was nearly 11 points better than that of PCAA runnerup Herb Massinger (94.90) of Cal State Fullerton and nine points above NCAA runnerup Gary Linder (96.55) of Houston Baptist.

The 49ers outdistanced favored Fullerton, 378.95-377.95, to win both team titles with San Jose State third in the PCAA segment and Houston Baptist third in the NCAA action.

Long Beach's Bob Schatz (84.05) was third in the PCAA and fifth in the NCAA competitions. Larry Thompson also represented the 49ers, directed by second-year coach, Yoshi Takei.

The PCAA championship was the fourth Long Beach teams have won during the school year. The 49ers are also conference champions in basketball, swimming and cross country. Seven championship events have been held.

In Saturday night's individual competitions Tomita continued his domination of the meets, winning three NCAA regional titles—vaulting, parallel bars and high bars—and five PCAA crowns—vaulting, parallel bars, high bars, still rings, and all-around.

WALTON, GILBERT IN NEWS AGAIN

PORTLAND (UPI) — Basketball player Bill Walton and his friends were in the news again Saturday—this time at the NCAA Westen Regional playoff featuring Walton's alma mater, UCLA.

Walton was sitting in the UCLA rooting section with a friend, Rachael Flug of Oregon City, when an argument apparently broke out with Walton's former adviser, Sam Gilbert. Miss Flug had a camera shoved in her face and had to be taken to the Coliseum first aid station, where her injuries were said to be minor.

Gilbert, who was escorted from the Coliseum by security police, admitted shoving the camera, but said, "It was an incident that was provoked by the girl."

Miss Flug said she would file charges.

Redman and Moffat runaway at Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A German-made BMW, manned by a crack international driving team, scored a runaway victory Saturday in the 23rd renewal of the Sebring 12-hour sports car race.

With Britisher Brian Redman at the wheel during the final hour, the blue-and-white racer covered 237 punishing laps around the bumpy, 5.2-mile Sebring airport course, for a total of 1,185 miles. The average speed was just more than 103 miles per hour.

The miles completed, total laps and average speed were records for Grand Tour machines at Sebring.

Finishing in the next four positions were durable but less speedy Porsche Carreras, with George Dyer of Jacksonville, Fla., and Jacques Bienvenue of Montreal, Canada, holding the runner-up spot more than 25 miles in the rear.

Third place went to John O'Steen of Florissant, Md., and Dave Helmick and John Graves, both of Miami. Michael Jourdain and brothers J.C. and Gustavo Bolanos of Mexico City drove the fourth-place Carrera. G.W. Dickinson of Palatine, Ill., and Bill Webbe of Barrington, Ill., finished fifth.

The Redman car, with Australian sedan expert Alan Moffat as co-driver, had been in the lead the final nine hours of the race. It took over first place when a sister BMW, driven by 24-year-old Hans Stuck Jr. of West Germany and American Sam Posey, was forced out with engine problems.

Stuck and Posey then took turns with Redman in keeping the remaining BMW at the head of a dwindling list of survivors.

my career and I cannot tell you why.

"Today I just wanted to run good, to show that the professionals are as good as the amateurs. I think that I could have run 3:54 if there was someone on my heels in the last two laps of the mile. I am not a good front runner. I need people chasing me. Then it could have been a very good race."

Most of the other events were not very good races.

Rod Milburn won the 60-hurdles in 7.0 and complained of the poor track. Earl McCullouch had more reason to complain. Running for the first time in seven years, his comeback fell flat — and he almost did the same after hitting two hurdles. He did not finish.

Milburn extended his victory streak to 16. Wyomia Tyus elevated hers to 17 by winning the 60-dash in 6.9.

"Colorful" Steve Smith alternately raged at meet management and at his chief challenger, Bob Seagren, but finally settled down and won the vault at 17-6. Smith, who holds the pro record of 18-2½, missed badly at 18-3¾. Smith failed to clear a height in his last two meets.

Brian Oldfield has been talking boldly of 80-foot shotputs. He threw 67-3¾ Saturday and finished second to old-timer Randy Matson (67-5¾).

Al Feuerbach, king of the amateurs, walloped them both with a throw of 68-7 in an after-meet exhibition.

The amateurs were more professional than the professionals on this Saturday.

THE JESSUPS ... TERI, BILL, YVONNE, KATHY

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Bill Jessup comes to his own 'defense'

All his life Bill Jessup has been known as one of the premier pass receivers for the USC Trojans and San Francisco 49ers, and the latter club's greatest punter, but the former Poly High all-CIF star is fed up with that nonsense.

"I was a helluva defensive player," said Jessup, who along with another ex-Trojan, George Timcerlake, will be inducted into the Century Club's Long Beach Hall of Fame April 7. "Nobody ever remembers that."

The records support Jessup's claim, even though he will be remembered more for setting a Trojan mark of four touchdown catches in one game and a 49er record of 45-yards-per-punt on eight kicks against the Rams in 1957.

Speaking softly during a conversation punctuated with laughter at the Los Atamitos home he shares with his wife, Yvonne, and daughters, Kathy, 21, and Teri, 18, the former Trojan also pointed out that he was drafted by the 49ers as a defensive back and made the all-Canadian League team in 1959 as a defensive player.

"Not only that," Jessup continued with a chuckle, "but the greatest game I ever played and the biggest thrill I ever had came when I was on defense."

JESSUP'S greatest game and biggest thrill both took place in 1950, his senior year with the Trojans, who had a sorry 2-5-2 record that season.

"I went into our last game of the season against Notre Dame figuring it would be my last football game ever," recalled Bill. "I had no visions of getting drafted by the pros or anything else, so I let it all out. That 1950 Trojan team didn't have much talent, but we played a helluva hard-socking game that day.

"I played the whole game on defense and hit every Notre Dame ball carrier I could find hard as the devil. They were favored by 14 points, but we won the game, 9-7."

The biggest thrill of Jessup's 17-year career came when he was selected for the East-West Shrine game.

"Being chosen was a real surprise because I missed half the USC season with pneumonia. I wanted to play well in the game because I got turned on by visiting those crippled kids in the Shrine Hospital. I played every minute on defense and a lot of offense, too. The East team was a big favorite because it had 10 all-Americas and we had only one, Kyle Rote, but we wiped them out easily."

THE FORTY-NINERS apparently noted Jessup's defensive talents in those final two 1950 games because they drafted him for that professional purpose.

"Even though the 49ers picked me on the 11th round, I was completely surprised I was chosen at all," said Jessup, who was 46 on St. Patrick's Day. "But just to be drafted in those days was something. Since the teams carried only 33 players, they had to be selective and I was really honored."

When Jessup reported to the 49ers he found their defense was set, but remembering his pass-catching heroics, the pro club returned Bill to offense. As a flanker in 1952, the versatile former Trojan enjoyed his greatest pro game.

"I had just been called into the Navy with my reserve unit and played a game Saturday with Tay Brown's Naval Training Center team in San Diego," remembered Bill. "I flew to San Francisco Saturday night and against the Rams the next day I caught five Frankie Albert passes, one for a touchdown. I thought that was pretty good considering I had played almost 60 minutes the day before."

IT WAS chronicled here earlier that the Navy didn't appreciate Jessup commuting to San Francisco, thus he was restricted to the base te remainder of the season and had to check in at headquarters three times a day. Passing of time has not mellowgd Bill's feeling toward the Navy.

"They were waiting for me when I got back to the base Monday morning after the Ram game," declared the scowling Jessup. "The commander asked me, 'Are you planning on doing that again?' I told him, 'Yes, whenever the 49ers play at home.' He said, 'That's not Navy,' and socked the restriction on me.

"It ticked me off because the Army was letting its men play on Sunday. My Navy pay was only $90 per month and one 49er game was equal to eight months' Navy pay then.

"Reporting to headquarters three times a day was ridiculous. I had to check in at 8 a.m., noon and 4 p.m. I was worse off than a war prisoner."

WHO WERE THE toughest men you played against?

"Two Ram linebackers—Dan Towler, before he was converted to fullback, and Don Paul. They would knock me on my butt every time I got off the line of scrimmage. Joe Schmidt of the Detroit Lions was awfully tough, too.

"I played on the 49ers with one of the toughest guys who ever put on a uniform, Hardy (Hatchetman) Brown. When Hardy was traded to the Cardinals, I remember going down on a kickoff and he yelled, 'Watch it, Rocky.' Frankie Albert gave me that nickname for some screwy reason. Anyway, Hardy could have killed me, but he eased-up and sent me flying only 40 yards."

Do you have any fond rembrances of the days when you were all-city lineman-of-the-year at Poly?

"In my first varsity game against Jordan I scored both touchdowns in our 12-6 win. But the game that stands out was against Alhambra in the 1946 playoffs. We had only one loss and Alhambra was unbeaten. We were leading 7-6 with five minutes to play and I had caught a 60-yard pass. But we wound up losing, 12-7, and they went on to win the CIF championship. That was my biggest disappointment because I felt we were the better team."

AS A YOUNG player did you have an idol?

"I admired Barney Poole. I think he played about 20 years of college (Army and Misisssippi) and service ball."

What do you consider your greatest achievement?

"My longevity. I was in the pros 10 years and with all three leagues—the AFL, NFL and Canadian. Not too many can make that claim."

What are you doing now?

"I own a dry cleaning plant in La Mirada. I went through USC with Johnny Williams, my 49er roomie, and he got me started in the business. Then we went into partnership and eventually I bought the plant myself."

Jessup's eventual profession was in the cards. After all, didn't he take the Fighting Irish to the cleaners that afternoon in 1950?

Downs promoting harness racing

As you know, a citizen on the boulevard who has squandered his bankroll is said to be tapped out.

"The pro football fan is tapped out," is an idle remark of Dan Downs.

This probably had considerable to do with Downs' departure as assistant general manager of the Houston Oilers, although there were more tangible circumstances. For one thing, Downs was counted among the legions who could not get along with Sid Gillman and you recall an incident wherein Gillman instructed Downs to leave the team locker room and never darken its door again.

"Sid did me a great favor," Downs says.

WHAT HE MEANS IS, events were set in motion that returned Downs to his native Southern California and into an industry where tapped out is no more than a temporary condition. Downs is now in harness racing where he associates with horse players and members of the general public and the average man.

"Pro football has removed itself from the average man," Downs says.. "He can no longer relate to it or understand it and he certainly cannot afford it."

As general manager of the Southern California Racing Association, currently holding forth with night harness races at Los Alamitos, Downs fnds the other differences to be obvious.

"The biggest thing is the lanquage," he says. "You have to learn an entirely new terminology."

For instance, here you say race instead of run. A flank is part of a horse. A punter is a guy who makes wagers. Finishing second is not altogether a tragedy. Super Bowl was the name of a trotter.

Still, the two games have much in common from a marketing standpoint.

"The basic thing," Downs says, "is to get people through the gate."

DOWNS, WHO WORKED IN BASEBALL with the Dodgers at one stage of his career, figures football is at this point the easiest to sell.

"The Oilers finished 1-13 two years in a row," he points out, "and they still averaged 40,000. What you do is sell them on 'next year' and they are afraid not to buy."

As for peddling harness racing to the population, Downs subscribes to a popular theory which declares that the pastime requires a change in its image. Those who promote the sport would erase the notion it belongs at the county fair or on the estate grounds of the idle rich.

Furthermore, the old folks influence is being removed from harness racing. The owners and trainers and drivers are young and involved and their numbers are growing.

"I am finding out how easy it is to get hooked," Downs says. "It is a sport a young man or woman can get involved in easily. You don't have to be a giant or a fast runner. This is a game almost anyone can play."

IN HIS PROMOTIONS, Downs is leaning more to involving people in the game rather than giving them rock and roll music and nickel beer. Then too, he is pilfering from pro football by taking the show on the road.

"For instance, we took a horse and a sulky and some drivers and trainers to a shopping center for several dyas," Downs says. "They answered questions and demonstrated techniques and so on.

"This sort of thing used to be big in pro football. Ironically, it can't be done anymore because the players won't take part unless they get paid.

"In Hoston, I used to take a group of players to the childrens' hospital each year but I had to discontinue the visits. I actually had players tell me they wouldn't go unless they were paid by the club."

Racing performers readily agree to the appearances inasmuch as they paritiepate in the action. The greather the attendance and handle, the more lavish the purses.

"Perhaps it will come to this in other sports," Downs suggests. "If the players were participating in the profits and the losses, don't you think there would be a big change in attitudes?"

Indeed. Just as Downs is learning the importance of atmosphere and attitudes in his new field. For example, he is finding out the big thing is to locate and develop the new fan.

Once stablished, the devotion and dedication of the horse player is unshakeable.

All it really takes is heart—Muniz hopes

Two things almost everyhody would like to do but knows absolutely nothing about are run restaurants and manage fighters.

Like the former, the latter seldom lack for complimentary and usually unsolicited advice, as was the case with Armando Muniz before he kissed his wife Yolanda and three small children goodbye and departed Monterey Park in a quest for the world welterweight championship held by Mexico's Jose Napoles.

However, Muniz could do worse than listen to suggestions from Walker Smith, who in his athletic days became better known as Sugar Ray Robinson-the-best-fighter-pound-for-pound-in-the-world.

"He came by to give me some advice," said Muniz as he packed his bags to head for Acapulco, site of Saturday's title match.

MUNIZ

"He's fought these kind of guys before and he told me this is my kind of fight, and if I fight my fight I might win."

ROBINSON is 54, which rates him almost as old as Muniz' opponent, according to the wise guys who hang around the gym blowing smoke from bad cigars and whispering behind their lapels. They say that Jose is "35 going on 40" and they also say that Napoles parties too much and trains only as hard as the quality of his next opponent demands.

"All I know is that he fights good," says Muniz. "I guess he's lucky if he can train that way and do it. I wish I could, but I know I can't.

"I'm not going to pay attention to what they say about him, playing around and stuff, because that's a lot of hearsay, you know. I'm just training as if he's going to be training, too."

Those who have observed Muniz over his five-year career could not imagine otherwise, but that's not all that sets him apart from his peers in the business.

ARMANDO, born in Chihuahua, Mexico, didn't turn pro until he was 23, an age at which many fighters already have won titles and blown fortunes. Muniz was busy going to college.

In fact, the irony of his career is that his pursuit of an education is partially to blame for his spotty 30-6-1 record.

Along the way he defeated rated contenders such as Clyde Gray and Ernie (Indian Red) Lopez but had a distressing way of losing inexplicably to mediocrities.

"There were a couple of bad spots," he says, "but they were irooed out.

"After getting my degree, I did a year of practice teaching and a year of counseling, but I realized that with the boxing and the school I wasn't doing either one any justice."

SO MUNIZ forgot about his post-graduate work at L.A. State and most recently established himself as a worthy contender with a victory over Hedgemon Lewis at the Forum.

That brings him to the brink of his ambition at the relatively advanced age of 28.

"This is the one I've always fought for," Armando says, "and I'm going to go all out. Then if I fight one more year, that will be it.

"When I'm through boxing I'll go back and pick up the classes I need. That's definitely my plan. I'll probably become a schoolteacher or a counselor, or maybe even take up public relations."

IT'S DOUBTFUL that even Sugar Ray could do much to enhance Muniz' chances against Napoles, a stylish boxer and puncher.

Armando, short and compact, is limited in his options of attack. He's a capable boxer but has to get so close to an opponent to be effective that he becomes an easier target himself.

It might be said that his arms are too short for him to be successful but that he makes up for it by getting hit a lot.

Hit, yes, and hurt, certainly, but discouraged or disheartened, never. His burning courage is the biggest thing he has going for him.

In his 37 fights, Muniz never has been knocked down, an incredible statistic considering his vulnerability.

BUT WHEN he does retire, he will bear the scars of his profession, which does not especially concern him at the moment.

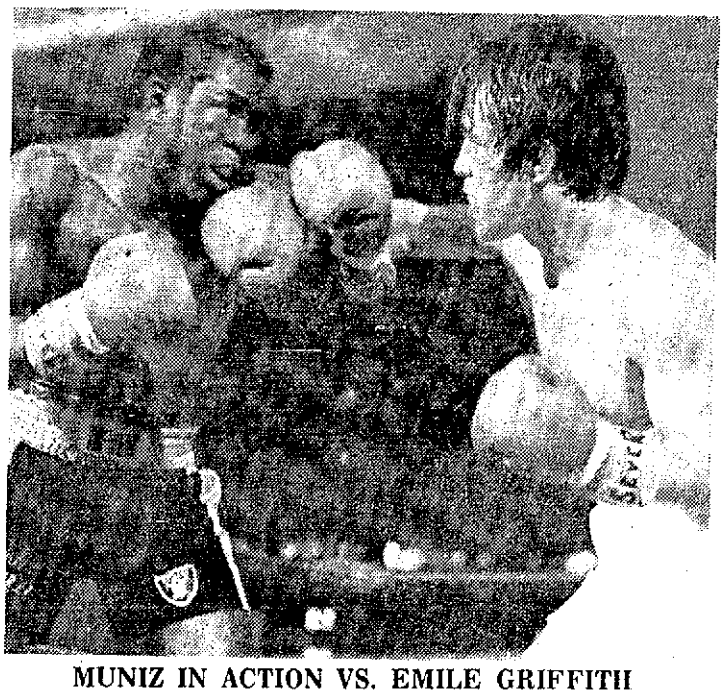

Against Lewis last year, he won a decision despite a deep cut over oneeye that required nine stitches.

"It didn't heal right so I had it taken care of down in Mexico City," Mando says. "There's a doctor down there who specializes in that. Everybody recommended him, then I met him.

"He looked at it and said, 'You need to get that fixed.' I said, 'So fix it.'"

The doctor couldn't do anything about the arms, though, so Muniz is stuck with the equipment he's got.

"I know what's waiting for me in the fight," he says, and a listener is almost convinced that all it really takes is heart.

MUNIZ IN ACTION VS. EMILE GRIFFITH

THOSE LOVABLE OAKLAND A'S—

"It was stupid the way it happened," Fingers snapped. "An owner shouldn't get into a position where he could lose a Catfish. If I had been Finley I would have given him another $50,000. I know there are 25 guys who wished they were in Catfish's shoes."

Three A's who took a decidedly positive approach to the present situation were team captain Sal Bando, outfielder Billy North and catcher Ray Fosse.

"A lot of pennants are won in the spring," Bando said, "but losing those two guys might be just the thing we need to pick us up."

Bando claimed the A's did not perform to their considerable capabilities last season when they won the West by five games.

"If we had played to our peak and won by only five games there would be reason for concern but we won it in a season which left room for improvement.

"We'll miss Catfish but (Glenn) Abbott will now have a chance to prove himself and Holtzman and (Vida) Blue can improve on what they did last year."

Holtzman said he would not feel burdened about having to fill the void created by Hunter's absence but added thoughtfully, "There's liable to be pressure on any guy who has to take Catfish's place."

At this point, Abbott and left-hander Dave Hamilton are the leading candidates.

North was the most exuberant of all about his team's chances.

"Now that we've lost Cat we've got to do it some other way. We'll win games the way Cincinnati does. . .we'll beat people up and win games by 12-9 and 15-8.

"We didn't bear down in the last half of last year when we played to only about 70 per cent of our potential. Even in the Series we didn't play up to our potential — just good enough to get by. (Are you listening Dodgers?)

"We might find out how good we really are this year," North continued.

Fosse said without hesitation, "Even with the loss of Hunter and Green I definitely don't think there is a better team in our division. We'll definitely make the playoffs and then anything can happen."

Bando conceded there was "a major concern" among the A's but insisted "the attitude is stronger in this camp. "We're working harder and everybody is in better shape.

"We've tasted winning and I don't think anybody will settle for second place —which is anything short of winning the Series."

Besides their united dislike for Finley, the argumentitive A's have another common goal, according to former Angel manager Bobby Winkles, a coach for manager Alvin Dark.

"These guys play for money," Winkles said.

And knowing it is coming out of Charlie Finley's account it conceivablycoumd be enough to goad the A's to another championship.

'Sneak preview' in Angel win?

PALM SPRINGS — Was that the opening day lineup Dick Williams had out there for the benefit of television Saturday?

Williams wouldn't come right out and say so, but he readily and happily admitted "there certainly wasn't anything wrong with it" after the Angels held off the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, for their ninth win in 11 spring games.

Too bad they are only exhibitions.

"I wish the season had started 11 games ago," the manager said.

Bill Singer became the first Angel pitcher to go more than three innings when he stretched out to five, limiting the Cubs to only one hit in an impressive stint. Billy No-No fanned four and walked two.

Williams' kid infield had Dave Chalk at third, Orlando Ramirez at short, Jerry Remy at second and Bruce Bochte at first. The combined total of major league experience for this incubator lineup is 1½ years. But they don't lack poise or hustle.

The Angels reduced their roster to 40 when they dispatched nine players to their minor leaue camp at Holtville. The group included pitchers Frank Panisk, Al Depfel, Sid Menge and UC Irvine's Gary Wheelock, catcher Resky Jordan, infielders Dan Briggs and Ron Jackson and outfielders Dave Collins and Frankie George.

The club also traded relief pitcher Ken Sanders to the New York Mets for 23-year-old catcher Ike Hampton who batted .241 in 95 games at Tidewater last year. Hampton will report to Holtville.

Houston snaps Dodger streak

COCOA BEACH, Fla.—The Dodgers' seven-game win streak was snapped Saturday when Houston scored runs in the ninth and 10th innings for a 2-1 victory.

Young Skip Todd, a nonroster pitcher, took the loss after Andy Messersmith hurled five scoreless innings and Rex Hudson followed with two more.

The Astros' winning run in the 10th came on an inning-opening triple by Enos Cabell, intentional walks to Cliff Johnson and Milt May and a tie-breaking single by Jose Cruz.

The Dodgers broke the scoreless tie in the top of the eighth after two were out when rookie Henry Cruz singled, took second on a balk and scored on a single by pinch-hitter Ken McMullen.

Messersmith was pleased with his performance and said afterward, "I can start the season right now. I felt very strong today."

Houston righthander James Rodney Richard pitched six scoreless inning, striking out six.

The Dodgers, now 10-5, are in St. Petersburg today to meet the New York Mets (channel 11, 10:30 a.m.). Doug Rau will start. Former Millikan High righthander Craig Swan will go for the Mets.

NEW YORK (AP) — Armond Hill's two free throws with 1:21 left gave Princeton a tense 58-57 victory over Oregon Saturday and advanced the Tigers into the final of the 38th National Invitation basketball tournament.

UCLA ROMPS—

Dave Meyers (13), Washington (12) and Johnson (12) combining for 37 caroms.

Arizona State, trailing 68-48 with 12:08 left, went back to its full-court press and cut the lead in half, pulling to within 10 points at 83-73. But only 1:01 remained on the clock.

Hollins contributed 10 points to that rally and 6-10 center Scott Lloyd hit nine. Hollins finished with 16 points and Lloyd led the Sun Devils with 20.

"They picked up some points on it (the press), but not enough to be a factor," Wooden said. "We were afraid of Arizona State's quickness. We had size on them, but I think too much is made of that. Quickness is a team's most important asset."

Johnson, who suffered from hepatitis early in the season, did not practice with the team Friday, choosing instead to rest.

"I felt ready to go," he said. "I told myself I was going to take the ball to the basket and put it up. If the shot is there, I'm going to take it and they let me have it a few times."

He made it a number of times, capitalizing along with his teammates on UCLA's ability to handle the Sun Devils' pressing defense.

With the all-America Meyers battling a variety of leg injuries, Johnson handled the bulk of the Bruins' offense. He repeatedly converted steals and rebounds into baskets as UCLA rushed to a 14-point bulge at 46-32.

Marques, who had averaged 10.6 points during the regular season and had never scored more than 22 points in his two varsity seasons, stung Arizona State early and often. He had 13 points in the game's first 10 minutes, as the Bruins shrugged off State's press to take charge.

His 35 points was the second highest total ever by a UCLA forward, four fewer than Meyers' school record for that position at 39.

Once UCLA moved in front, ASU seemed to get rattled and began committing turnovers. UCLA quickly built a slim early lead into its comfortable 46-36 halftime, dominating the backboards.

Arizona State managed to convert only two of its eight first-half free throws.

Johnson continued to blister the Sun Devils as the second half started and with Washington blocking shots and grabbing rebounds, UCLA broke open the game. Soon the lead was 20 points, at 64-44, and the Bruins were thinking about San Diego.

State, led by Hollins and James Holliman, tried to stay with the Bruins and at one point, the Sun Devils sliced the lead to 13 at 70-57. But Ralph Drollinger came off the bench to sink two quick baskets and with Meyers helping Washington on the backboards, the Bruins soon had restored their big margin.

With less than 10 minutes to play, Arizona State made one more run at UCLA. The Sun Devils shaved the lead to nine points, 78-69, and Wooden rushed Johnson back into the game.

The muscular sophomore quickly scored a basket and then soared high over the defensive rim to grab a rebound. Washington spun off two layups in succession and the Bruins were home free after that.

The victory ran UCLA's record to 26-3. Arizona State finished at 25-4.

Louisville—

Driesell agreed that the Terps' shooting was subpar. "We had a lot of little ones that seemed like they went in and then came out," he said. "Louisville is a very fine team and could win it all. I hope they do, since they beat us."

Guard Phillip Bond led the Cardinals with 23 points and was named the outstanding player of the tournament.

Crum also praised Wesley Cox, who scored 15 points but who had been a doubtful starter because of a hamstring injury.

"I honestly didn't think Wesley could play," Crum said. "But what can you say? He came in and hit six of nine (field goal attempts) and got nine rebounds on a leg I didn't think he could jump on."

Louisville's defense also mastered Maryland's press, which had helped the Terps beat Notre Dame Thursday night. The Terps' press was most effective in a late second-half charge that cut Louisville's lead to four points, but the Cardinals then pulled away.

Joining Bond on the all-Tournament team were John Lucas of Maryland, Junior Bridgeman of Louisville, all-America Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame and Bob Miller of Cincinnati.

Bond picked up the scoring slack for Bridgeman, the Cardinals' top scorer, who hit only one point in the first half and picked up his fourth foul after five minutes of the second half.

SYRACUSE WINS—

after a feed from Jim Williams, five seconds after another Williams—Kansas State's Chuckie, this tournament's Most Valuable Player—had given the Wildcats a 76-74 lead.

Chuckie Williams, who scored a game-high 35 points to give him 67 in two games, had hit from 20 feet in the final seconds after Kansas State had held the ball for a minute to play for the final shot.

But Hackett and Jim Williams had other plans. The little Williams took the ball out of bounds and sped down the court, feeding to Hackett in the lane.

Hackett said he juggled Bug Williams' pass. "The ball was getting kind of slippery...but fortunately I was able to recover," he said. "Jimmy was telling me if he got the ball, he would get it into me. So I was expecting it.

"I saw it all the way and just turned around and put it into the basket. It was a set play to get the ball and throw it inside. I wasn't certain I had beat the buzzer. I couldn't hear it."

The shot appeared to leave Hackett's hand just at the buzzer. "When he (Hackett) bobbled it I thought time would run out," Jim Williams said. "He scared me."

The final five minutes of regulation was an incredible see-saw battle which Chuckie Williams seemed to have ended with his 20-foot shot with five seconds left. But that was before Hackett's heroics.

Muhammad overweight for Wepner

CLEVELAND (AP)—Muhammad Ali makes the first defense of his newly regained world heavyweight championship Monday night as an overwhelming favorite to beat Chuck Wepner.

The scheduled 15-round fight at the Coliseum is the second half of a closed-circuit television doubleheader. The opening half will be a 12-round heavyweight bout between Ken Norton and Jerry Quarry at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Promoter Don King predicts a sellout crowd of 22,000 will watch the title fight, which will start about 7:30 p.m., PDT.

Ali has said he is not in top condition but that he is in good enough shape to beat Wepner, a liquor salesman from Bayonne, N.J.

The champion is expected to weigh about 225 pounds. He weighed 216½ when he knocked out George Foreman in Zaire to regain the title he had stripped from him when he was convicted of refusing induction into the military.

The 6-foot-5 Wepner, who also is expected to weigh about 225, has won his last eight fights but is not ranked by the World Boxing Association or the World Boxing Council. The WBC has refused to sanction the fight as a title match, which means that even if Ali loses, he will be still recognized as champion by the WBC.

Another reason Ali is a prohibitive betting favorite is the fact that seven of Wepner's losses have been due to cuts, earning him the nickname, "the Bayonne Bleeder."

But Wepner and his manager, Al Braverman, are quick to point out that Wepner has not had a serious cut since he underwent an operation for removal of scar tissue four years ago. In a pro career that started in 1964, Wepner has had more than 200 stitches in his face.

Wepner, who has won 30 fights—12 by knockout—and drawn two, is to get $100,000 for his big chance. His previous biggest purse was $10,000.

Ali, who calls Wepner the White Hope—"It's the only hope he has"—is getting $1.5 million, which is a big pay cut from his previous two fights. He got about $3 million when he outpointed Joe Frazier Jan. 28, 1974, and received $5 million for the Foreman fight.

The champion, who successfully defended the title 10 times before it was stripped from him, will be making his 48th pro fight. He has won 45, 32 by knockout, and lost two.

Ali, who at 33 is two years younger than Wepner, has said that he will give his share of his purse to worthy charitable organizations. The promoters, Don King Productions, Inc., and Video Techniques, Inc., also have said that 50 cents from every ticket sold, both live and television, will be donated to UNICEF and Africare.

Norton and Quarry are each getting about $200,000 and the winner will remain in contention for a title shot, but not an immediate one.

Ali, if he beats Wepner, will defend against European champion Joe Bugner of Britain at Chicago in June.

LBAC champs, conclude today

The Long Beach Athletic Club won the Orange County Racquetball Assn. championship with an 8-4 win over the Orange County Athletic Club. Long Beach won four of five matches from their opponent.

Individual championships conclude today at 9 a.m. at the LBAC, 4000 Long Beach Blvd.,

Anaheim schedules Ali-Wepner video

Anaheim Convention Center will carry the closed-circuit color telecast of the Muhammad Ali-Chuck Wepner heavyweigt title fight Monday night. Tickets are priced at $8.50, $10.50 and $12.50.

A 12-round heavyweight fight between Jerry Quarry and Ken Norton will also be shown, starting at 7. The Ali-Wepner bout will follow.

Classic competitor

Winford Boynes of Capitol Hill High in Oklahoma City is one of 12 Parade Magazine all-America selections appearing in Sunday's California Basketball Classic at Long Beach Arena. The 6-7 forward is three-time all-state performer.

All-Americas galore in L.B. Classic

Eight of the 10 players selected to the first team on Parade Magazine's all-America high school basketball squad can be seen in action a week from tonight at the Long Beach Arena in the California Basketball Classic.

Nineteen states plus the District of Columbia are represented by the four teams appearing in today's Parade in The I.P.T.

The eight first-team selections are equally divided between California and the rest of the United States for games Thursday night in Sacramento and Sunday in Long Beach.

California's first-team selections are Jordan's James Hardy, Verbum Dei's David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton plus Bill Cartwright of Elk Grove outside Sacramento.

The U.S. first-team selections coming to Long Beach are Kyle Macy of Peru, Ind.; Bill Willoughby of Dwight Morrow, Englewood, N.J.; Bernard Toone of Gorton, Yonkers, N.Y.; and Winford Boynes of Capitol Hill, Oklahoma City.

The only first-team members not appearing in the Classic are Daryle Dawkins of Evans, Orlando, Fla., and Bruce Flowers of Berkley, Mich.

Others receiving all-America mention and due to play here are Bill Laimbeer of Palos Verdes and Reggie Carter of Long Island, N.Y., Lutheran, on the second team; James Bradley of Melrose, Memphis, Tenn., and Pat Foschi, Virginia, Minn., on the fourth squad. Crescenta Valley's Brad Holland, a third-team pick, was a member of the California squad but broke an ankle last week in a pickup game.

Members of the California team begin workouts Monday at an undisclosed location in the Los Angeles area. Restrictions surrounding access to the workouts has been designed primarily to keep college recruiters, anxious to talk the players, at a minimum.

"It could be a problem area," admitted a game spokesman. "We've already received inquiries as to the itinerary of the team."

The California team will be coached by George McQuarn, who won three CIF titles at Verbum Dei and is now the Superintendent of Parks and Recreation for the City of Compton.

Dr. Ernie Vandeweghe will coach the U.S. squad. Vandeweghe, a former member of the U.S. Olympic basketball committee's selection group, was a collegiate all-America and played professionally with the New York Knicks.

The California team figures to have an advantage for the first game considering it will work out three days, then fly to Sacramento the day of the game. The U.S. team will not work out until it gathers in Sacramento Wednesday.

Tickets for the game, sponsored by the U.S. Olympic Development League, may be purchased at the L.B. Arena and all Ticketron or Mutual Ticket agencies.

Dodgers cool, confident as season approaches

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

VERO BEACH—With two weeks remaining before the start of the season, the Dodgers remain a cool, confident, almost cocky ball club..

"But," assured manager Walter Alston, "it's not an overconfident team.

"At last these guys better not be. They didn't win it by all that much last year."

The gap between the winning Dodgers and runnerup Cincinnati Reds was only fous games in the National League West and Alston adds:

"If people think the Dodgers and Reds are the only contenders in the division, they're sadly misinformed.

"Sure, we'll work our pitching around the best we can for those first seven games with the Reds. But we play at Houston between those two series and you can't go down there without any pitching.

"Another club to watch is Atlanta. The Braves have all the essentials—the second best pitching in the league last year, the batting champion, speed, sock, strength through middle—everything."

But, typically, Alston said he'll worry about the Reds, Astros and Braves and everyone else when the time comes.

"Right now, I've more important things to worry about," he said, "and that's my own club."

The No. 1 mission during the first 3½ weeks of spring training has been to find a fourth starting pitcher to follow Andy Messersmith, Don Sutton and Doug Rau in the rotation.

The manager says he's no closer to finding one now than he was when spring training began. But he's not worried. Not yet, anyway.

"The longer we're able to wait before deciding, the better the odds that we won't make a mistake," Alston reasoned.

The candidates are veterans Al Downing and Charlie Hough; Geoff Zahn, last year's rookie of the year; rookie Rick Rhoden, and Juan Marichal, the most hated of all the hated Giants.

"We're going to give him an opportunity," Alston said of Marichal, 36, who was released after one season with the Boston Red Sox where he was 5-1. "If his back is sound, he'll help us. If not, we'll go another route."

Alston said the reports on Marichal have been good, contrary to the belief of Baltimore's noted scout, Jim Russo, who said flatly, "The man can't pitch anymore."

The bullpen is not one of Alston's major concerns at the moment.

"Not the short relief," he said. "Jim Brewer is far ahead of his schedule, and Mike Marshall...well, he's still Mike Marshall."

But the outfield, defensively at least, is still a problem.

"There weren't oo many assists in the outfield last year," understated Alston.

"For just pure defense, we've probably got better outfielders in the minoss. But I don't think they're about to drive in 100 runs like some of the guys on the big club."

About the only areas definitely set are the infield, the catching which will be split between Joe Ferguson and Steve Yeager, and the fact that Messersmith and Sutton will pitch just about anytime they fee like pitching.

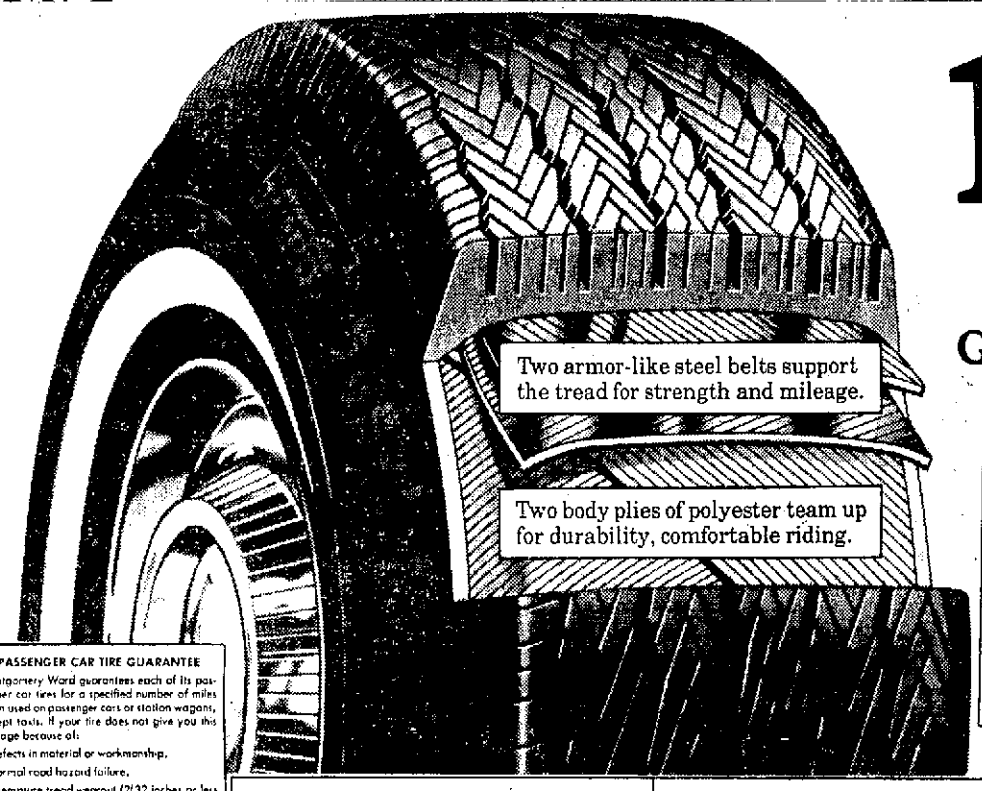

"I don't know yet if we'll have a four-man rotation or a five...or even a six. What does it matter? What did we do last year? Can you tell me? Sure, there were times when we went with three starters because of rainouts and then sometimes we used as many as six because of doubleheaders.

"But I will have Messersmith and Sutton pitch whenever they're ready to pitch. It's like when we had Koufax, Drysdale and Osteen. With those guys it really didn't matter who your fourth pitcher was."

Perfect season for LBCC gymnasts

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

With a winning edge of less than one point, Long Beach City College gymnasts captured the conference title, edging Grossmont, 88.10-87.15 at the SCCCIAC finals at San Diego Mesa. The victory capped a perfect season for coach Peggy Stoll's Class I team.

Leading the Viking triumph was Gaye Wilson, who won the free exercise, bars and all-around and was third in vaulting. Gail Harris placed third on the beam, fourth in vaulting and fifth in both free exercise and all-around.

Another high point-scorer was Lori Fleischmann, who placed fourth in vaulting and beam and sixth in the all-around. Priscilla Ficke was fifth in free exercise, and Jackie Scott and Teri Jessup were fifth and sixth, respectively, on the bars.

In Class II competition, Priscilla won the beam and was sixth on the bars, while Lori placed third on the bars.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

TAKING into consideration that this is only the second year Long Beach State has fielded a women's track and field team, coach La Tanya Glass is more than satisfied with her squad's fifth-place finish in the recent nine-school meet at Cal State Northidge.

"This first meet consisted primarily of relays and we placed fifth in most of them," Mrs. Glass said. "But before the season is over, I expect us to be one of the top three teams.

"Last year, I started five girls. This spring I have 11 team members who are dedicated and don't mind working hard. I have several I expect to qualify for the national championships.

"Long jumper Karen Gilliam has bettered 17 feet in practice. However, at the Northridge meet, she couldn't seem to get her step down and she fouled on all three of her jumps. I have high hopes for Janet Reed, a miler. She should be right at or near the top. Also we will have a swift sprint relay team once we get the baton passing smoothed out.

LbSU diver Kit Salness placed fourth on the three-meter board at the AIAW nationals at Arizona State. The 49ers placed 32nd among the 139 university and college teams competing.

This was the first year that LBSU swimmers made the finals. Linda Sidaris finished 14th in the 50-yard breaststroke and 13th in the 100 breaststroke. Ronnie Baker was 15th in the 200 freestyle. Others participating were Peggy Reno, diver, and swimmers Karen McBride and Susan Green.

JORDAN High's basketball team contineud unbeaten, overpowering Wilson, 72-21, and Millikan, 57-26. The junior varsity, after an opening loss to Lakewood, beat Wilson, 22-16, and Millikan, 26-23. Jordan hopes to wrap up the Vinnie G. Eaton League championship when it plays a tough Poly team April 3.

Robbie Beyer leads Jordan, averaging 15.3 points and 18 rebounds. Darlene Bilsley is second with 12.3 points, 8.7 rebounds. Completing the strong lineup are Adrienne Hamilton, Rhonda Skitch, Janis Cook, Julie Trowell, Karen Wiley and Sue Osendorf.

AFTER two rainouts, coach Nancy Kelly's LBCC softball team belatedly opened its league season Wednesday with a decisive 11-2 win over East L.A. College.

Norma Jackson pitched a three-hitter, facing only 23 batters as she struck out seven. Six of LBCC's runs were accounted for by Debbie L'Angivian, Vicki McAlister and Jackie Clark, each of whom scored twice. Debbie was three-for-five with two walks.

LBCC'S men's and women's bowling teams both lost to Cerritos College Wednesday at Linbrook Bowl, Anaheim. It was th first defeat for the men's team, which went down, 2380-2340. The women's team, which lost 1594-1506, was missing one bowler.

"I think we would have won with a full team," said coach Paul Chafe. "Our three girls beat the scores of their top three."

Coed bowling is one of the few sports which spans both semesters. "At the semester break, we lost the top two bowlers on our men's team," Chafe explained. The women's team is also temporarily without two leading bowlers because of registration problems. Both are expected to rejoin the team before the April meet with Golden West.

Bowling Wednesday were Debbie LeVeck, Laurie Blount, Marjorie Enterline, Bob Baratelle, Kirk Anderson, Gary Knowles and Dave Sims

LBCC'S volleyball team extended its winning streak to five with two wins each by the AA and A teams. Cerritos fell to the Vikings, 15-12, 15-8 (AA) and 15-6, 15-9 (A). Two days later the LBCC spikers defeated East L.A. 15-0, 15-1 (AA) and 15-3, 16-14 (A).

Pro Soccer

Aztecs 3, Santa Monica International 0.

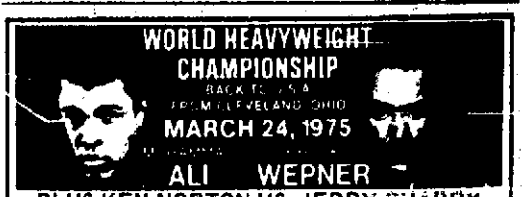

COACH Deanna Rowan's LBCC tennis team lost to Fullerton College, 6-2. The Viking points were scored by No. 1 singles player, Karen Pruitt, and No. 1 doubles team, Kelle Clark and Becky Edles.

Gloria Hendricks' LBSU netters, meanwhile, rebounded from their close loss to UCLA with a 9-0 pasting of Cal State Fullerton.

THE COED badminton team from LBCC was routed, 23-1, by Golden West Thursday on the Viking range. Assessing the debacle, coach Gillis Brown said, "When a team can only work out four hours a week, it is difficult to compete against a team that works out 10 hours a week." LBCC meets Harbor College April 3.

LBSU baseball game canceled

Long Beach State's baseball game with Chapman was canceled Saturday due to wet grounds. It will be rescheduled at a later date.

To play, or not...

One of the toughest things for a high handicapper to realize is that he can't hit a career shot every round and twice on Sundays.

He'll roll up his britches and go into the water to play his ball when he'd be wise to call it unplayable and take his penalty. So he ends up killing a frog and never touching his ball.

ASSUME THAT your ball has rolled up behind a tree, or in a lateral water hazard in the rough. If it's in only a couple of inches of water or in a position behind the tree where you can move it toward the fairway, then go ahead andl whack it.

Be realistic. If there's doubt that you can reach the fairway, take the penalty and move the ball two club lengths to either side.

It's not necessary to have a shot toward the green to decide that it's playable. The main thing is to be able to move it toward the fairway, even if it's backwards. You'll be lying the same as if you took the penalty, but your position will be improved.

Frustration haunts Arnie

JACKSONVILLE (AP)—Arnold Palmer was a thoroughly digusted man. It showed in the set of his massive shoulders. It was evident in the grim lines around his mouth. It could be seen in the weary frustration of his eyes.

"It was moving day and I didn't move," the 45-year-old Palmer said, making an irritable, fidgety motion with his broad, powerful hands.

"I should be leading the golf tournament. I just threw it away."

Palmer, once the leader alone before being ambushed by a triple-bogey six, had just finished Saturday's third round of the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open with a struggling 73 that left him one stroke back of the leader, obscure Mike Morley.

"Well," said Palmer, frustrated since scoring his last victory in the 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic, "I'll just have to work on it tomorrow.

"I'll just have to try to get it back in the next round."

Then he turned to the one shot that ruined his effort. "There was only one hole that really counted," Palmer said. That was the 209-yard, par-3 11th.

He had come from three strokes off the pace, had taken full control of the lead—and then hit his tee shot out of bounds on that critical hole. It led to a horrendous six.

It dropped Palmer out of the top spot, and threw the tournament into a multiple-man scramble which was finally solved by the skinny Morley.

Morley, never a winner and never even an exempt player in five years of tour activity, matched the record on the 7,143-yard Deerwood CC course with a brilliant, seven-under-par 65.

His 54-hole total was 208, eight under par.

Roberts has lead in Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI)—Sue Roberts solved her transportation problems Friday and shot a four-under-par 68 for a three-stroke, first-round lead in the $48,000 San Isidro LPGA tournament.

"I like this tournament better this year because I'm living on the course," said Miss Roberts, 26, from West Palm Beach, Fla. "Last year I had big transportation problems, coming on a bus which took 45 minutes to get here." Miss Roberts' round included seven birdies and three bogeys.

She bogeyed the first and third holes and birdied the fifth and seventh to complete the front side at even-par 35. On the back side, she birdied five holes and bogied No. 12 with three putts for a 33—four under par.

Two strokes back at 70 was Susie McAllister, of Beaumont, Tex. Last year, Miss McAllister was leading the tournament with only nine holes to play when she was overhauled by Jane Blalock.

Approaching Masters date taking toll on Elder

JACKSONVILLE (AP)—Lee Elder's longest year is about to end.

The best—or, perhaps, the worst—is yet to come.

"I go to bed thinking about the Masters," Elder said, "I dream about the Masters. I wake up thinking about the Masters."

He will be the first black golfer to play in that prestigious event at Augusta, Ga. He has had almost a full year—just one week short—for the pressures to build toward his April 10-13 date amid the dogwood and azalea that grace the fabled Augusta National Golf Club course.

"It might have been better," Elder said, "if I'd won a tournament just before the Masters—like Jacksonville or Hilton Head—so there wouldn't have been so long for the pressure to build up."

But it didn't work that way.

He won the Monsanto Open in Pensacola, Fla., the week after the 1974 Masters. Under the Masters' rules he immediately became eligible for an invitation to the elite event that—until Elder won—had been an all-white affair.

His victory in the Monsanto, nailed down on a long birdie putt on the fourth hole of a sudden-death playoff with England's Peter Oosterhuis, changed all that.

But it almost didn't happen. He almost didn't play in Pensacola. He didn't want to play. He wanted to withdraw. He played only because his wife talked him into it.

"I'D BEEN HOME (in Washington, D.C.) for a while and this day, just before Pensacola, I'd been to the race track," Elder said. "They cleaned me out. Lost all the money I had in my pockets. I was discouraged and down and I told Rose to call Pensacola and withdraw me. I told her I didn't want to play.

"She called Pensacola and found out I had an early starting time for the first round. She asked 'em if they could change it to a late one. They did.

"So she tells me I've got a late starting time and I don't have to go down until the last minute. She said, 'Honey, you better go on and play. Better go on down there. You're playing good. You just might win.'

"Well, of course, I never even thought of winning. But I let her talk me into going to Pensacola and I won it."

The victory has had a profound effect on the life of this 40-year-old man who didn't join the pro tour—again at the urging of wife Rose—until he was 33 and labored for 6½ seasons before finally breaking through.

"It has changed my life," Elder said.

It has brought him instant celebrity status. It has brought him golfing dates with the President of the United States. It has brought him cover stories in national magazines. It has brought him appearances on network television talk shows. It has brought him a guest spot in a network television special.

EVENTUALLY, IT MAY bring him a certain amount of wealth.

"It really hasn't meant that much, financially, just yet," Elder said. But he does have certain contracts, including representation of a club in Virginia and a new line of golf clubs. More are in the offing.

"I could have had a lot of 'em," Elder said. "But most of them were short-term things. They'd require appearances and a lot of my time. I could have had enough so that I wouldn't be able to play golf but once a month.

"We didn't want that. I don't want to let the golf suffer. Besides, what we're looking for is the long-term thing, things that will bring us residuals for several years so that when I finally quit the tour we'll still have money coming in."

That aspect of their lives is handled by Rose—"she's the only manager I ever had"—his accountant and his attorney.

"They've shielded me from an awful lot," Elder said. "I'm the kind of guy that it's hard for me to say 'no' even when I want to."

There have been plenty of occasions when it has been necessary to say no.

"Several guys have come up to me, after I won, wanting to sponsor me," he said. "They say, 'hey, man, let me take some of the worry off you.' There's been more than one. They just want to get in my pocket. I'm wondering where they were when I needed them."

There have been a number of fly-by-night, get-rich-quick schemes proposed to him, including a West Texas golf course development that folded.

It has effected his game. He hasn't played well since his victory. He's had particular trouble this season. He missed the cut three times in a row. He hasn't finished higher than 33rd. He's won only $4,271, considerably less than expenses.

"Part of it is lack of practice," he said. "You can't play well if you don't practice. I haven't had time to practice. But most of it is the Masters.

"It's constantly on my mind. I'm playing in this tournament, but I'm playing Masters shots. I'm hitting it high. I'm hitting a hook. I'm hitting the shots I'll need at Augusta.

"My game is getting there. I'm ready."

Now he's down to the final stage of preparations.

"I've had to withdraw from Hilton Head next week," he said. "I've got eight things I've got to do. But that's it. I'll take the week off to get the business taken care of. Then it's just work for Augusta.

"I'll go to Greensboro (the tournament immediately prior to the Masters) with nothing but golf on my mind."

He's played the Masters course twice, once with commissioner Deane Baman of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA. He'll play it again March 31 and then go to Augusta April 7.

"The people at Augusta couldn't have been nicer to me," Elder said. "The first time I was there, the car drove up in front of the clubhouse and there was (Masters director) Clifford Roberts standing on the porch to greet me. He came down and opened the car door for me. They've just been great."

His arrangements at the Masters are elaborate. He and Rose have rented two houses and five motel rooms for various friends and associates who will travel with him. He plans a massive news conference on the Tuesday preceding the Thursday start of the tournament.

WINTER SPORTS

ORTISEI, Italy (UPI)—Monika Kaserer of Austria won the parallel slalom that closed the women's World Cup season Saturday, but Austria's skiing superstar Annemarie Moser-Proell ran off with her fifth consecutive championship and said she was retiring to raise a family.

Mrs. Moser-Proell, who finished fifth in the final event, said she would not even compete for Austria in next winter's Olympics.

"Definitely not," she said. "I just want a little distance and quiet and I want to have a family. My husband agrees."

Miss Kaserer, 22, of Neurkirchen, outraced Italy's Claudia Giordani, 19, in the final to win her first victory of the season. She had been second to Mrs. Moser-Proell in the previous two seasons but wound up ninth in this season's standings.

America's Cindy Nelson, 19, of Lutsen, Minn., and Linda Cochran, 21, of Richmond, Vt., both were eliminated in the first round. Abigail Fischer, 18, of South Conway, N.H., defeated France's Danielle Debernard in the first round but fell on her first run in the second round.

Mrs. Moser-Proell won the title with 305 points, a margin of 106 points over second place Hanny Wenzel of Lightenstein, who did not compete. Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany was third, Miss Nadig fourth and Miss Serrat fifth in the final standings.

After eight years of competition, not even the Olympics can tempt her to put her skis back on, she said.

"No, under no circumstances will I compete again" she said.

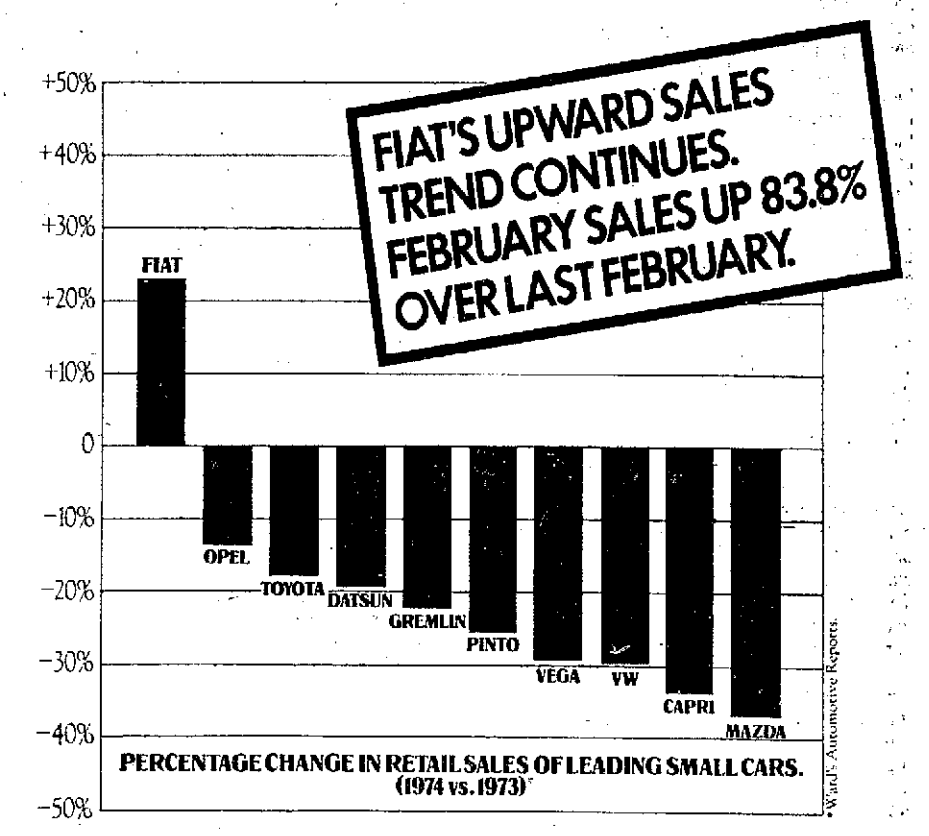

EUROPEAN CUP SLALOM
At San Vigilio di Marebbe, Italy

Greg Jones of Tahoe clocked an aggregate two minutes and 28.31 seconds for first place. Italy's Erwin Stricker was second at 2:29.41 and Switzerland's Ernst Good third at 2:29.59. Italian Diego Amplatz was eighth and leads European Cup standings with 142 points over Austrian Kurt Engstler at 125. Good is third at 99.

A STORM bringing four feet of snow in 24 hours at Bear Valley postponed Saturday's duel-challenge slalom of the $30,000 Suzuki Men's pro ski race until today. Top-ranked Hank Haskiwa of Steamboat, Colo., is paired against Dan Maloney of Sun Valley, Idaho, in today's competition.

COMPETITION in the Professional Freestyle Associates at Bogus Basin ski area near Boise, Idaho, was halted Saturday because of blizzard conditions. The meet will be resumed today.

"EXPERIENCED HELP TO SERVE YOU"
WE ARE CLOSED ON SUNDAYS

There must be a reason.

In one of the worst years in automotive history, how do you explain Fiat having the best year in its history?

How do you make sense out of the fact that in December, when the entire industry was down 26%, we were up 175%.

The explanation is not really that difficult.

Many Americans have simply given up on big, expensive, gas-guzzling, inefficient cars.

The idea of the car as a status symbol has heard its death rattle.

What Americans have started looking for instead is practical, intelligent, sensible transportation. And that's just what we offer.

By looking above, however, you'll notice that Americans haven't turned to everyone's small car.

You see, people don't want to give up everything for practicality. And we don't force them to.

We've found ways of offering people the advantages of big cars without the disadvantages of small ones.

Our cars don't make you feel cramped or claustrophobic. They have good acceleration. Their handling is nothing short of extraordinary.

Our cars are economical. But they're by no means Spartan. Instead of loading them down with gadgetry, we've given them things that make them perform better. Things you don't find in cars costing hundreds, even thousands of dollars more. Front-wheel drive, all-independent suspensions, transverse-engines, front-disc brakes.

Little by little, we're starting to see other manufacturers emulate our kind of car. A few are coming out next year. Some in 1978. But for now, if you want all of what we've got, we're the only game in town. And the figures show it.

Queen needed for Sportsmen's Show

H. Werner Buck, the Southland's most famous outdoor show impresario, is looking for a queen to reign over his 30th Los Angeles Sportsmen's Vacation and Travel Show April 5-13 at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

This is the granddaddy of all the sports shows on the Pacific Coast, and the queen he wants should be a very special young lady—one born between the dates of April 11 and 21, 1945. Those were the dates of the first Sportsmen's Show co-produced by Buck and his late partner, Mel Morrison, at the old Gilmore Stadium in Los Angeles.

Buck admits that it may be difficult to find a woman with those qualifications and he may have to settle for a younger one born in that period, or even in some other month of the year.

If he finds one born in that period and who qualifies otherwise, she will be accorded some rather royal treatment—an excellent fee for her servies at the show, topped off by a week-long, all-expense-paid vacation in Alaska.

Applicants must be photogenic, and possess such basic qualifications as modeling experience and the ability to project personality and to speak in public.

Candidates are invited to send a recent photo, or photos (8x10), along with a brief background and vital statistics THIS WEEK to H. Werner Buck Enterprises, 1050 Georgia St., Los Angeles 90015.

JAWS*, ONE OF the current best sellers, is a remarkable book, but it is fiction and nothing at all like Capt. Hal Scharp's Shark Saari (A. S. Barnes and Co. hard cover, $9.95), which I currently am reading and enjoying.

Whether you like or hate sharks, fish for them, fear them or think that all those stories about them are nonsense, you should read Shark Safari. This is not the first book on fish that Scharp has done, but it is the first full treatise on sharks that I've ever seen, and it represents years of research. Yet, it's not in textbook style; it is extremely interesting.

Did you know that the first evidence of sharks on planet Earth goes back 480 million years? Did you know that there are 250 classified species of the shark family, one-half of which are very rare? Did you know that some of those early sharks had jaws 10 feet from top to bottom with teeth five inches long?

Scharp puts it all down in black and white and illustrates the book with remarkable drawings of those ancient sharks as well as the present-day variety (good and bad).

Some reports of attacks on humans by sharks are grossly exaggerated by lurid sensationalists and superstition, but many are horribly true. You'll find hair-raising accounts of actual authenicated attacks as told by survivors who were lucky enough to escape with their lives. Scharp also feels that there will come a time when many sharks will be used for food.

"WIND, WAVES AND SUNBURN," by Conrad Wennerberg, is another book published by Barnes that is far more than what the title indicates. While a subtitle says that it is a book of swimming and swimmers, I find that it is far more than that.

While the hard-cover book's chapters range through how swimming began, wild animals and how they swim, house pets and their ability to swim, to duration swims, one chapter is especially intriguing.

It is the one on the first Catalina Island Swim, or as the writer calls it: The Chewing Gum Swim. The latter is a more proper name because it was the desire of the late William Wrigley Jr. to promote the island and, most of all, the sale of chewing gum, that brought about the first swim from the island to the mainland.

The chapter, No. 6 in the book, vividly recounts how a youngster, the late George Young, a Canadian, won the $25,000 that Wrigley offered, but then was conned out of most of his money by the smart Hollywood promoters.

Young's conquering of San Pedro Channel was the first and the swim received worldwide coverage. Thousands of spectators watched the finish at 3:06 a. m. on that January day in 1927. I remember it well; I was on the news desk of The Press-Telegram, preparing to put out an extra edition when the swim was finished.

OUTDOOR MINIS—Mike Raahauge, manager of Linc Raahauge's Hunting Club near Corona, says that a private club which closed in the north shipped him 3,600 pheasants and that, beginning today, the Raahauge area will be open as long as the supply of pheasants lasts. Then the club will close until the fall season begins. If you want to hunt there, telephone (714) 735-2361 to be certain that the club still is open.

The first World Open Hang Glider Championsiips began Saturday at Escape Country and will continue through Easter Sunday, along with hot-air balloon rides, motocross races and an aerial circus on Easter Sunday, topped by parachute exhibitions and 10-man, free-fall parachute patterns. Escape Country is situcted on the Robinson Ranch in Trabuco Canyon.

The all-new Sea Boating Almanac for 1975 is available now in three separate regional volumes which cover every public and private marina from Mexico to Skagway, Alaska. The books are on sale at book stores, marinas or from the publisher, Sea Boating Almanac, 1499 Monrovia Ave., Newport Beach 92663 at $4.95 per volume. The Southern California book, with the year's sailing schedule, is available at most yacht clubs.

The books, now in the 11th year, are prepared by editors and writers under the supervision of Capt. William Berssen, USCGR (Ret.), who cruised 3,000 miles in British Columbia and Alaska last year looking for new material.

LAKE WOHLFORD, one of the popular San Diego County lakes situated just a few miles from Escondido, had a windy opening Friday. Even so, dozens of anglers were rewarded with limits of planted rainbow trout.

The natural species in Wohlford—crappie, bluegill and channel catfish—played hard to get. A heavy rain that started Friday continued Saturday morning but there were plenty of fishermen on shore and in boats, Earl Losch, owner of the Lake Wohlford Resort, reported.

For information and boat reservations, call (714) 745-5322.

Ford to coach the South

John Ford of Lakewood High and former Jordan and Long Beach State athlete Ron Moncrief will be the head coaches for the South and North in the eighth Kiwanis 605 All-Star football game July 11 at Cerritos College.

Ford's assistant for the game will be Pete Nicklas of Gahr while Harry Robinson of LaSerna will join Moncref. Three of the four coached teams with 8-2 records last year. Moncrief was 7-2.

The North leads in the series, 5-2, but the teams are even at two apiece since the five Long Beach schools joined the South in 1971.

Ford has compiled an over-all 85-34-22 record in 12 years at Lakewood, directing the Lancers to two Moore League titles and a share of four others.

Nicklas is 25-22 in five seasons at Gahr and coached a team that finished second to 2-A champion Neff last fall.

Moncrief is 23-13 in four years at Monte Vista. He was an all-Moore League receiver in the late 1950s at Jordan, and also attended Long Beach City College and Long Beach State.

Robinson is 62-25 in nine years at LaSerna and like Ford has been associated with the game before. Ford was head coach in 1970; Robinson was the North head coach in 1968 and an assistant in 1973.

Wins S'Anita 100-grander

Trojan Bronze upsets

Unheralded Trojan Bronze, longest-priced horse in a field of six, caught the kind of track he likes Saturday and registered a surprising 3¾-length upset win in the 24th running of the $108,500 San Luis Rey Stakes at Santa Anita before a crowd of 33,385.

The 1½-mile attraction, originally scheduled to be contested on the turf, was switched to the main track, labled "good" following night-long rains. It was the first time in track history that a $100,000 grass event was switched to the dirt.

The move was just what Trojan Bronze needed. Last month when the San Marcos Handicap was transferred from the hillside turf course to the main track, he also scored an upset triumph.

Sent off at odds of 9-1, Trojan Bronze, ridden by Jorge Tejeira, prompted the early pace set by Montmarte, then rapidly disposed of the pacesetter after a mile. The four-year-old son of Tobin Bronze steadily drew out to the convincing win while Okavango finished in a rally to gain second-place honors.

Montmarte held on gamely for third with Ga Hai fourth and even-money favorite Tallahto a disappointing fifth. Astray and Toujours Pret were withdrawn earlier in the day.

Owned by Adrian B. Roks and trained by Charlie Whittingham, Trojan Bronze covered the route in 2:29⅘.

For Tejeira, the San Luis Rey was the Panamanian's sixth stakes success of the meeting and his first-ever in a 100-grander.

The first prize of $63,500 boosted Trojan Bronze's career earnings to $153,507. Roks purchased Trojan Bronze for only $7,500 as a yearling.

Don Pierce, aboard Mrs. Howard B. Keck's five-year-old mare Tallahto, offered no excuses for the favorite, stating that he had "dead aim onn the leaders at the ⅜-pole, but ran out of horse."

Trojan Bronze returned $21.60, $7.60 and $3.80. Okavango, handled by Jacinto Vasquez, paid $5.60 and $3.80 and Montmarte, with Sandy Hawley aboard, paid $3.20 to show.

TODAY'S program at Santa Anita features the $50,000-added Santa Barbara Handicap for fillies and mares. The 25th edition of the 1¼-mile is scheduled for the grass course but may also moved to the dirt.

Chilean-bred Tizna, queen of Santa Anita for the past two seasons, attempts to continue her supremacy over the distaff division, today meeting Gay Style, La Zanzara, Lucky Spell, Move Aboard and Mercy Dee.

On March 1, Tizna became only the second mare to capture the $100,000 Santa Margarita tow consecutive years, beating Susan's Girl by 1½-lengths.

The Henry Moreno-trained six-year-old carried 120 pounds in that race and will tote 123, including Pierce, today. Gay Style, which beat Tizna in the Santa Maria Handicap Feb. 16, will carry 125 pounds with Bill Shoemaker riding.

Whittingham saddes both Gay Style and La Zanzara (117, Angel Cordero) and Moreno trains both Tizna and Lucky Spell (115, Tejeira).

Move Abroad (Angel Santiago) and Mercy Dee (Hawley) are both in at 113.

U.S. RACE ROUNDUP

GULFSTREAM—Gold and Myrrh ($31.20) outdueled favored Proud and Bold in a head-to-head battle for a surprise victory in the $124,000 Gulfstream Handicap. Walter Blum rode the winner, which carried 114 puounds, six less than Proud and Bold, ridden by Gene St. Leon. The margin of victory was a neck and time for the 1¼-mile was 2:01⅘. Forego, the race's defending champion, was scratched because of an ankle injury.

NEW ORLEANS—Darrel McHargue took Master Derby ($10.80) to the front at the top of the stretch and booted the three-year-old home first in the $100,000 Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds. Colonel Power was second by a length and Honey Mark third in the field of 12. The winner survived foul claims by Eddie Delahoussaye aboard Honey Mark and Ron Turcotte aboard Somethingfabulous, who finished seventh. Time for the 1⅛-mile was 1:49⅘.

AQUEDUCT—Odds-on favorite Viva La Vivi ($3.60) broke from the pack coming off the last turn and won riding out to win the $50,000-added Correction Handicap. Jorge Velasquez rode the winner to a 1:09⅘ clocking for six furlongs.

HARNESS INQUIRY DECISIVE

Del Cronk's Had My Way won a stewards' inquiry Saturday night at Los Alamitos before more than 9,000 harness racing fans and consequently captured the second division of the first leg of the $70,000 Southern California Pacing Series.

J.J.'s Casino actually finished first in the mile pacing events that carried a $15,000 purse but was later disqualified and placed second for interference in the stretch.

Time for the mile was 1:58⅘, the second fastest time of the meeting, second fastest in the nation this year, third sub-two minute mile of the night and seventh sub-two minute mile of the meeting.

Had My Way went to the front shortly after the start and cut out fractions of :30, :59⅘ and 1:29⅘ before J.J.'s Casino made his move at the three-quarters pole. The Jack Bailey-driven speedster, a stablemate of J.J.'s Pilot who last week set the top mark (1:58⅘) in the country this year, moved a head in front at the top of the stretch. Had My Way refused to buckle as Cronk brought him back strongly along the rail where the interference occurred.

The stewards officially ruled "after entering the stretch, J.J.'s Casino pointed in, crowding Had My Way and impeding his progress to the point driver Cronk was unable to drive his horse to his fullest."

The victory for Had My Way, the 8-5 favorite, all but assures him of a berth in the $25,000-added Southern California Pacing Series Championship on April 25, along with first division winner Castashadow.

Had My Way paid $5.40. J.J.'s Casino was placed second and Nechako Tar earned third in the six-horse field.

In the night's co-feature, the $10,000 Cypress Pace, track record-holder Windy Way took the lead going by the stands the first time and never looked back.

Windy Way, who owns the standard of 1:57⅘ set in 1973, covered the mile pacing event in 1:59[illegible] the victory was the first in four starts this meeting for Windy Way and raised his lifetime bankroll to $324,000. For driver Bobby Williams, the triumph was his 17th of the 20-day-old season.

Windy Way paidd $5.80. Rin Tim Tim was second and Combat Zone third.

MILWAUKEE VS. LAKERS TONIGHT

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar leads the struggling Milwaukee Bucks into the Forum tonight against the Lakers, who are playing their best basketball of the season now that it is too late.

A loss would mathematically eliminate the Lakers from the playoffs for the first time in 15 years. Milwaukee, like the Lakers, are a last-place team but have a 50-50 chance of going into post-season play.

Surprisingly, the Lakers have enjoyed more success over Milwaukee than any other team. They have not lost to the Bucks, beating them by 23 points in October, three in November and one earlier this month.

The Lakers have won five of their last seven games and trail fourth-place Phoenix by only 1½ games with nine to play.

Milwaukee has lost three in a row on its Western road trip.

Home buying boom due Orange County

Home ownership will boom in the Anaheim-Santa Ana-Garden Grove area in the latter half of this decade.

The reason: Newcomers to the greater Anaheim area have boosted its population more than 10 per cent since 1970.

So reports Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

One of the nation's three largest mortgage banking firms with a portfolio exceeding $2 billion, AMCO is an affiliate of First Pennsylvania Corp.

Dennison notes that the continuing influx of new residents into the greater Anaheim area has meant a yearly population increase of more than 41,000 people since 1970.

"CONTRAST this with the fact that most of our cities are losing their populations to small towns — you might well say that the greater Anaheim area is a nice place to live, for home owners as well as renters," he declares.

Dennison cites ample opportunities — business or employment as well as recreation and social — as key factors attracting new people and firms from other areas.

The direct results of this population increase?

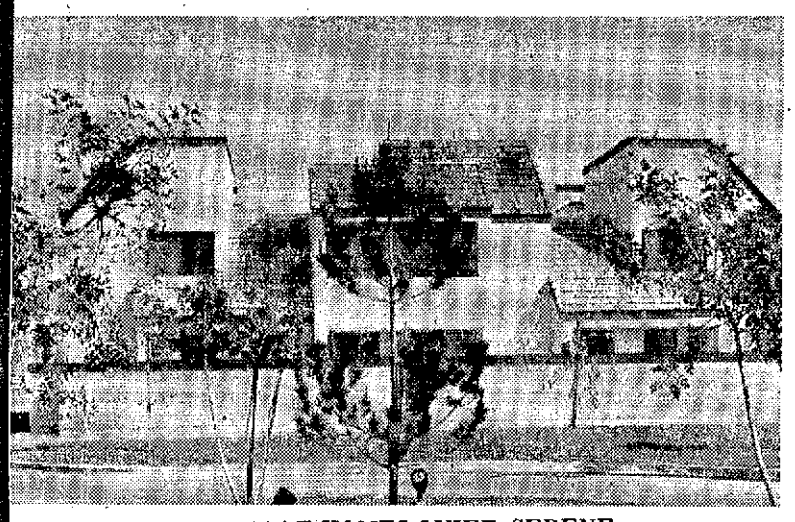

"There will be a host of new demands and challenges that the construction industry will be called upon to meet — not just for new homes, but schools, office buildings, shopping centers and churches as well," he reports.

Dennison notes that young adults will comprise the greatest portion of new residents — resulting in an increased demand for multi-family housing. "Single-family dwellings and cluster-type housing complexes will continue to show more strength — offering a variety of housing preferences and a broad range of recreational facilities," he said.

HE POINTS out that mini-shopping centers will be a key item on the construction scene for the remainder of the decade.

"Apartment buildings, new or refurbished, will have their own small shopping arcades — a big attraction to renters who desire shopping convenience.

"The burgeoning ranks of new residents in the greater Anaheim area will be a definitive plus for the local economy for the remainder of the decade," Dennison concluded.

HERITAGE HOMES QUIET, SERENE

Heritage Village— success in Downey

An ideal location in an established and preferred Downey residential neighborhood is one of the many reasons why Heritage Village Townhomes have enjoyed immediate public success.

On Stewart and Gray Road, west of Paramount Boulevard, the new community of one and two story, two and three bedroom townhomes is within a five-minute drive of the Long Beach Freeway, adjoins Los Amigos Country Club, is in the Downey School District, and close to parks and playgrounds.

Many shopping facilities are on nearby major thoroughfares, meaning that practically all the conveniences and luxuries of modern day living are within easy driving distance.

Most of the land area of the project is devoted to greenbelt areas, guest parking spaces and extensive recreational facilities. There is a heated pool and jacuzzi near the community clubhouse, two covered shuffleboard courts, a putting green, a sparkling theme fountain and the entire property has been freshly landscaped with trees, bushes and flowering shrubs.

PRICED FROM $38,950, with 8½ per cent interest available, the full price includes the following features: Thermostatically controlled air conditioning and forced air heating, gas log brick or stone fireplaces, carpeting throughout, master suites with private bath and dressing area; kitchens with all built-ins, ceramic tile counters, hardwood cabinets and extra storage and pantry space and up to 2½ baths are found in every Heritage Village townhome.

FROM Long Beach Freeway exit at Firestone Boulevard and turn east to Garfield Avenue. Turn right (south) on Garfield a short distance to Southern Avenue. Turn left (east) on Southern and continue to Heritage Village Townhomes in Downey. (Southern becomes Stewart and Gray Road in Downey).

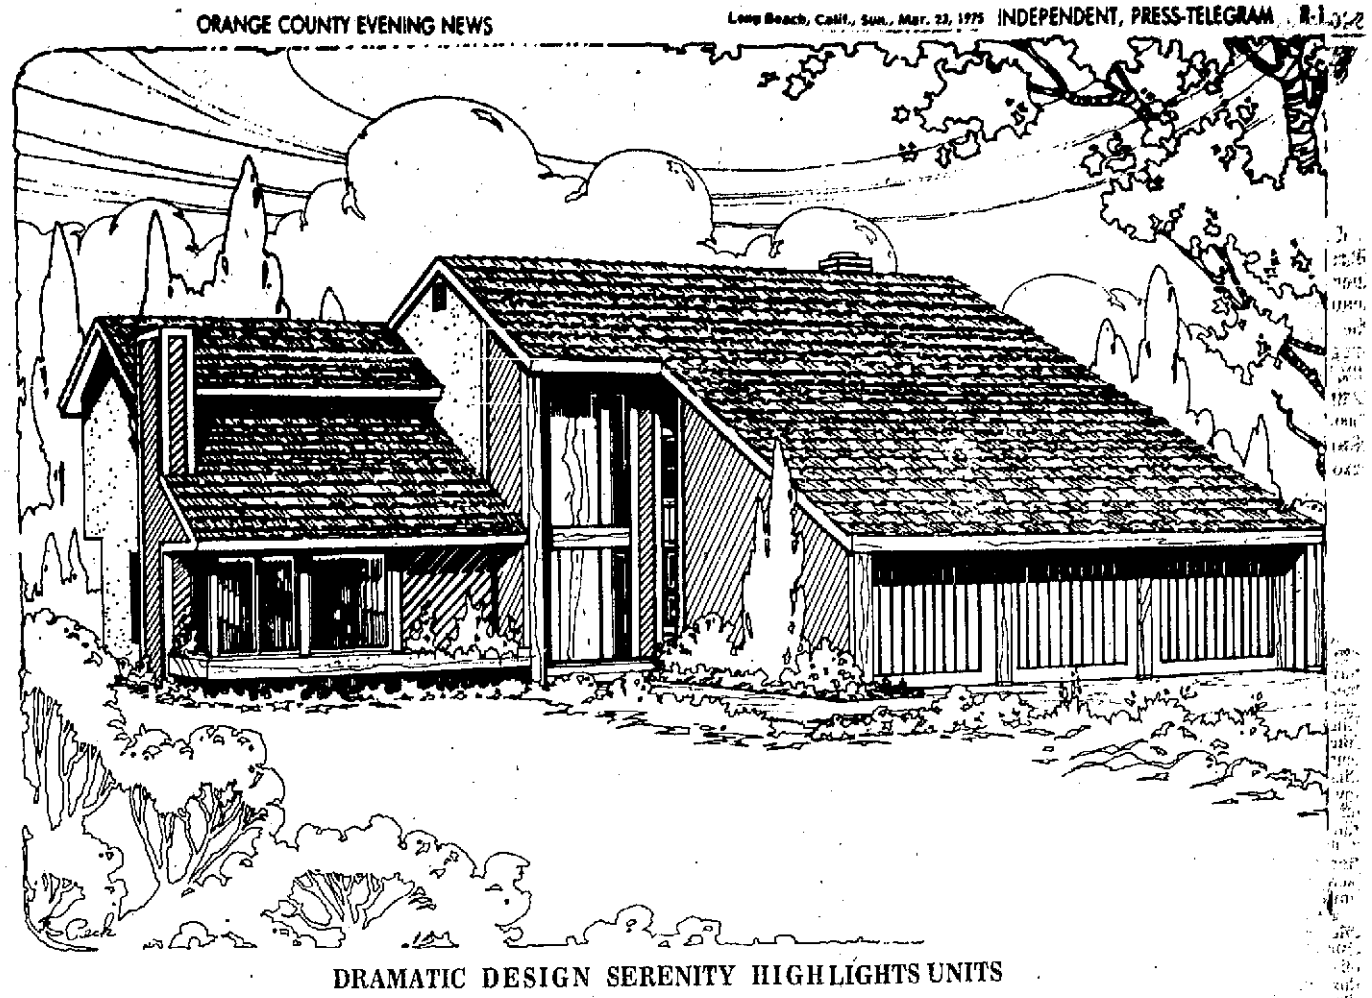

D & H Construction Corp. of Downey also has two similar new townhome projects in Anaheim, just north of Katella Avenue on Nutwood Street (between Euclid and Brookhurst Streets) and in La Habra on Imperial Highway, just east of Beach Boulevard.

The two Orange County communities each have individual features and prices slightly different from Heritage Village in Downey.

GERRY, SUSIE DAVIS have combined as a husband and wife team to sell $1.5 million in new units in the Los Coyotes Country Club Homes in Buena Park in the past year. In fact, they liked the units so much that they "sold" one to themselves!

DRAMATIC DESIGN SERENITY HIGHLIGHTS UNITS

Landing opens today

The grand opening of The Landing, a $9-million residential community in Huntington Beach which offers dramatic design, superior fixtures and choice location, is under way today according to Rosemary Carlstrom, director of marketing, Kendall Development Co., Inc. of Newport Beach, project builder.

The 121-home project, featuring one single-level plan and three two-story plans, is situated at the intersection of Springdale Street and Talbert Avenue, just 1½ miles from Bolsa Chica State Beach.

Newport Collaborative architects Ian Harrison, AIA, and David Lorenzini, CSI, of Newport Beach created plans for the new series of Kendall homes.

THE 28.3-ACRE development will be completed in three phases with the first phase of 44 homes ready for occupancy by late May.

Grand opening prices range from $61,990 to $75,990 for Phase 1.

Homes at The Landing range in size from 1,701 to 2,633 square feet of living area. Homebuyers may choose from three or four bedrooms and two, two and one-half or three bathroom plans.

Three of the four plans include three-car garages.

The 1,701-square-foot "Foxfire" encourages gracious entertaining. In addition to a formal dining room and living room, the plan features a step-up conversation loft adjacent to the living room, and a library or den just off the entry. A master suite with dressing area and bath, and a second bedroom and bath complete the single-story plan.

Fireplaces in the master suite and in the family room highlight the 2,151-square-foot "Sunrise." A two-story living area, formal dining room and breakfast nook, and game room with sunken conversation area are additional features of this three-bedroom, two and one-half bath home.

The vaulted entryway is accented by a skylight in one elevation of the 2,097-square-foot "Starwood." Four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, living room, formal dining room, and family room complete this spacious two-story home. The three-car garage has a large 132-square-foot laundry/hobby center in the rear with access to the back yard.

A formal spiral staircase greets the visitor of the two-story, 2,633-square-foot "Sunset". Fireplaces in both living room and family room add a cozy touch to this three-bedroom, three-bath home. Among the elegant features of the Sunset are a den/library which may be converted into a fourth bedroom or maid's room, wet bar in the family room, a raised dining room, and a master bedroom suite which extends a full 50 feet in length.

SPECIAL EMPHASIS has been placed on kitchens and baths at The Landing. The home buyer may choose between electric and gas O'Keefe and Merritt appliances; between smooth-top or conventional burner ranges; and between continuous cleaning or self cleaning ovens. Kitchens also feature a three-cycle dishwasher, waste disposer, trash compactor, pantry and luminous ceiling. Buyers are also given a choice of Dupont Corian or Franciscan Terra Grande ceramic tile counters with laminated woodgrain edge.

Master baths are accented by dramatic tubs, built-in planters, double lavatories, and private commodes. All baths feature Dupont Corian counters and full faced mirrors.

OTHER EXTRAS included in the purchase price at the Huntington Beach community are nylon shag carpeting in most rooms, front doors equipped with double-lock security, energy-saving insulation, commercial grade tile in entry, and Armstrong custom Excelon tile in heavy-traffic areas.

Hook-ups for washers and dryers are provided in the garage or indoor laundry room.

Exterior features include concrete driveways and walkways, rear lot-line fencing and cedar shake and shingle roofs as specified by the architect. Stucco exteriors are accented by wood siding.

Three plans offer three distinctive elevations; The Foxfire features two.

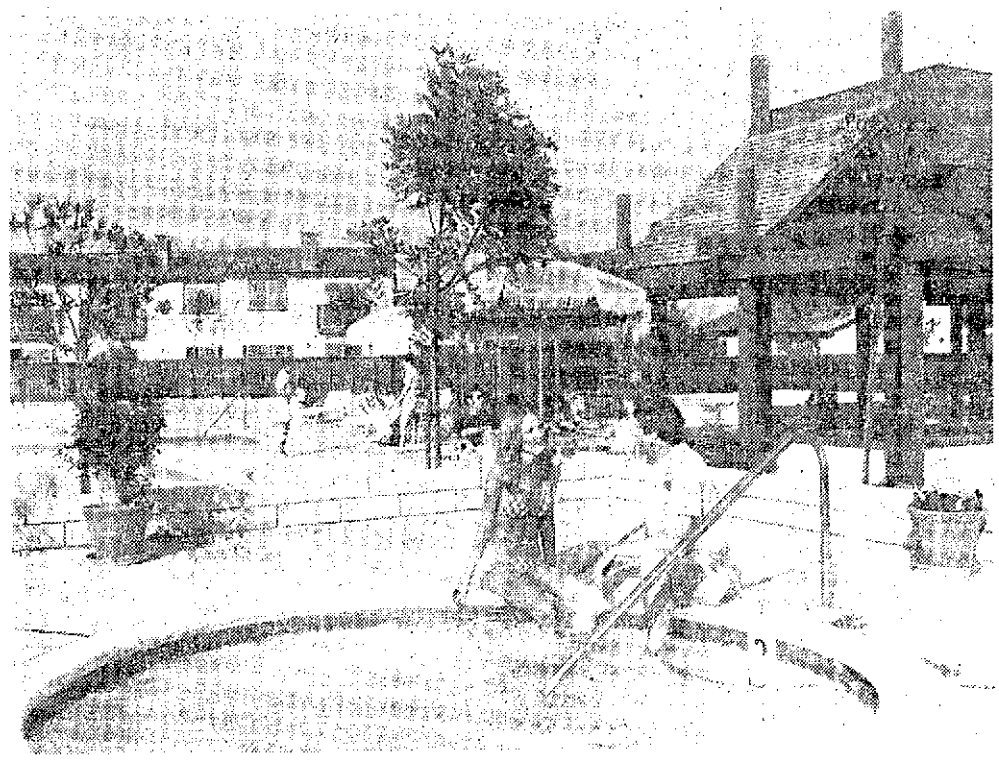

The Landing is located in the Bolsa Chica section of Huntington Beach less than a mile from the 500-acre state wildlife refuge and the 167-acre Huntington Central Park, which has facilities for boating, bicycling, picniking, camping, sports and nature study.

ALTHOUGH ISOLATED from major thoroughfares, The Landing is close to schools, major shopping plazas, and employment centers.

Blake Design of Los Angeles decorated the model home interiors; Ron Sasse Design of Santa Ana was retained as general design consultant.

Furnished models, located at 17972 Wellbank Lane, are open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk.

RECREATION FACILITIES COMPLETE, HANDY

Acacia Knolls lists 'bonus'

The new Acacia Knolls Townhome community, now in the grand opening stage, is located high on a hill overlooking the Saddleback Valley, and is one of the few — if not the only — townhome community in Southern California to offer an outsized "bonus" room in a floor plan.

The plan is the brainchild of Joseph N. DiIorio, chief executive for Levitt-West, Inc., in California and Jack Sindorf, Southern California marketing director for the firm. The company, based in Newport Beach, is a subsidiary of Levitt & Sons, one of the nation's largest builders.

The 15 x 18 foot bonus room is located on the second floor, is plumbed for a wet bar and is separated from the rest of the living area.

"It can be used as a rumpus room, den, extra bedroom, study, hobby or crafts center or whatever strikes the buyer's fancy, and its location in the home makes it extremely versatile," Sindorf said.

THE "BONUS" ROOM is found in Plan 5000, which is a two story home with 2½ baths and three bedrooms, containing about 1,900 sq. ft. of living area.

The first level has back-to-back (a unique feature in itself) woodburning fireplaces in both the living room and family room, both of which have sliding glass doors to the enclosed rear patio. There is a separate dining area and the kitchen contains all built-ins, including a trash compactor. The attached and enclosed two car garage with automatic door openers provides direct access into the home for maximum security of owners.

The downstairs powder room is strategically located just off the garage to help the lady-of-the-house keep her home cleaner.

The second story is reached via an impressive stairwell that towers to the roof has two complete bathrooms, a master bedroom suite with a 10 foot long wardrobe, two secondary bedrooms and the bonus room above the garage. The large master bedroom suite also has access to a small balcony.

PLAN 5000 ALSO provides extra storage spaces on both floors with areas in the garage, a broom and

Home prices slowed

CHICAGO — The rate of increase in sales price of existing single family homes may be slowing down, reports the National Association of Relators.

Median sales price of an existing single family home in January, 1975, was $33,210, or 8.5 per cent higher than the $30,600 reported for January, 1974. This increase was somewhat below the general price advance experienced in preceding months.

Price advances regionally were varied. In the Northeast, the price rise was 8.5 per cent to $37,400; Western region, 11.4 per cent to $36,480; North Central, 7.7 per cent to $28,630; and Southern, 3.7 per cent to $32,620.

Sales volume of existing single family homes in January, 1975, fell 13.4 per cent below the level for January, 1974, the Department reports, despite improvements in the availability and cost of mortgage credit. This marked the fifth consecutive month in which sales fell below the previous year's pace.

By price class, January sales indicated a continuing shrinkage of the number of homes available in lower price categories, and a relative increase in homes available at higher prices.

Percentages follow, with January, 1974, figures in parentheses:

$19,999 and under, 16.7 per cent (18.2 per cent); $20,000 to $29,999, 25.7 per cent (30.4 per cent); $30,000 to $39,999, 23.6 per cent (23.6 per cent); $40,000 to $49,999, 14.9 per cent (13.3 per cent); and $50,000 and over, 19.1 per cent (14.5 per cent).

Prices begin at $40,990

pantry closet and a large linen closet on the second story.

The new community of 99 homes recently opened for sale and in addition to the outstanding floor plan described above, also features a novel security system.

There is only one entrance and exit to the gate-guarded project. Homeowners have their own coded key cards for admittance, but visitors must telephone the homeowner they wish to visit, who, in turn, opens the gate by a coded electronic system. Emergency vehicles call a different number for admittance.

Still another unique feature of Acacia Knolls is the Design Center in the model home complex. It permits both homeowners as well as the general public, to purchase upgraded furniture, carpeting, drapes, tile, doors and accessories (such as found in the model homes) at prices far below the normal retail cost. In operation for a few weeks, it has already proved extremely popular.

The recently completed recreational facilities of the community include a large heated pool, wading pool, jacuzzi, bath house and cabana and an all-purpose recreational court for basketball, volleyball or badminton.

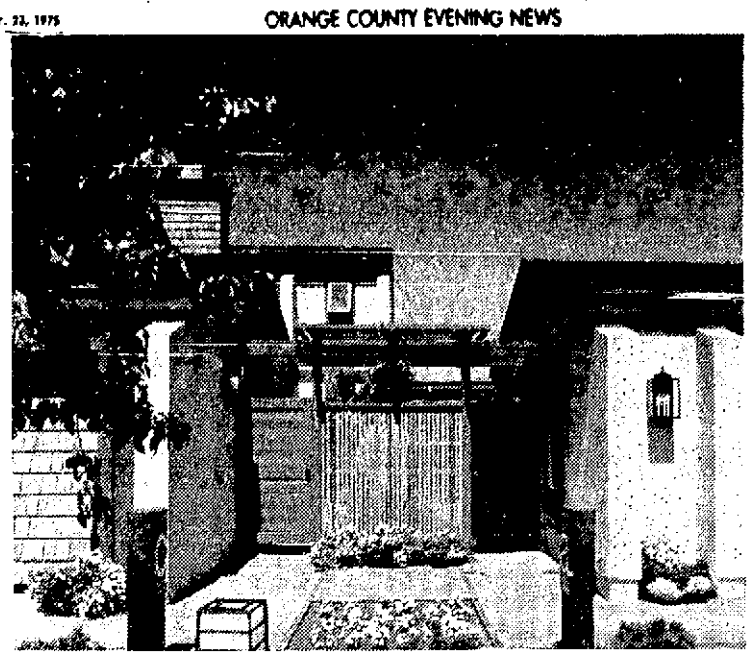

QUALITY PRICE included features found in every home are 2 or 2½ baths, custom carpeting throughout, woodburning fireplaces, private and enclosed rear patios, automatic garage door openers for the enclosed two car garages and kitchens with trash compactor, continuous-cleaning double gas oven, range, disposal and dishwasher, shadow-free luminous ceiling lighting, cathedral ceilings, safety glass shower enclosures and Acacia Knolls has earned the Southern California Gas Co.'s "Concern" award for heavy duty insulation in both ceilings and perimeter walls to save precious energy.

The one and two story, two and three bedroom residences at Acacia Knolls are priced from $40,990. Plan 5000 is priced from $51,990, with some being higher due to their locations on lots with a view.

Within easy driving distance is the new Laguna Hills Mall with Buffums' and Sears' department stores and a Broadway Store nearing completion, as well as other shopping centers with nationally known chain stores and markets, new restaurants, medical facilities and the new schools of the state-renowned Saddleback School District.

THE SOUTHERN half of Orange County offers those living there a wealth of recreational facilities from the beaches, marinas and parks along the coast to the nearby private and public golf courses, tennis courts and riding stables to the rustic pursuits of O'Neill Regional Park in the nearby foothills of the Saddleback Mountains.

The model homes and Design Center are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk and easily reached from the Long Beach area by exiting the San Diego (405) Freeway at Alicia Parkway, turning right on Alicia and following the signs to Acacia Knolls in Laguna Hills.

ABUNDANCE OF GREEN AREAS

Beachwalk boasting carefree site, living

The handsome architectural detailing of townhome designs by Walter Richardson, AIA, carry out the unique theme of the entire Beachwalk community in Huntington Beach. The new A. J. Hall Corp. development is keyed to the carefree, resort surroundings of this famous seaside locale and within 1,500 yards of the ocean.

Private entry courts with front trellis and gate lead to the elegant townhomes. Attractive Bermuda shutters accent the wood-trimmed exteriors and roofs are of rustic wood shingles.

In the recreation area, a soaring wooden clock is the landmark of Beachwalk and two spectacular "Beachhouses" highlight the rustic motif with striking contemporary design and exteriors of wood beams and shingles.

Beachwalk offers five distinctive floor plans in one or two story designs with two, three, or four bedrooms and two, 2½ and three baths, priced from $46,500 to $66,500. The luxury homes feature such innovative appointments as dramatic living rooms with vaulted ceilings and woodburning fireplaces and ceramic tile hearths and gas loglighters.

There are secluded bedroom areas and lavish master suites with private dressing area and bath, ceramic tile entries, wall-to-wall carpeting, optional wet bars in three plans, fully insulated walls and ceilings and enclosed two-car garages.

All-electric kitchens are complete with built-in range, self-cleaning ovens, dishwasher and deluxe disposal. There are stained hardwood cabinets, pantry and broom closet, luminous ceiling and vinyl floor tiling.

PRIVATE RESORT facilities for the exclusive use of Beachwalk residents include a junior Olympic-size swimming pool and cabana building plus six other pools and cabanas, an outdoor therapy pool, two saunas, volleyball court and barbeque and sunbathing areas. Complete clubhouse facilities are offered in the two "Beachhouses".

An abundance of trees, shrubs, large grassy areas and artistic night-lighted landscaping continue the theme of a picturesque township and full maintenance of the grounds, recreation facilities, master TV antenna system and exteriors of the townhomes is provided by the homeowners association.

Decorator furnished model homes are open daily in the sales information center. Take the San Diego Freeway to Beach Boulevard and drive south five miles on Beach to Pacific Coast Highway. Turn right on PCH to Golden West, then right for one-quarter mile.

The Ch'in Dynasty was the first unified empire in China from 221 to 206 B.C.

Garden units selling

Over $1.7 million in sales have been recorded at Huntington Creek garden homes, according to George Liolios, vice president of sales and marketing for Covington Brothers, Inc., developers of the new residential community.

Creating a unique environment, the builder designed the two and three bedroom homes around a winding creek which runs through the property. Ninety per cent of the one and two story homes face the creek, providing a relaxing, resort-style atmosphere to year round living.

The garden homes, priced from $36,990, are arranged in four different floorplans, and offer innovative interior design as well as the unusual community attractions. Raised entries (in most plans) lead to formal living rooms with wood-burning fireplaces with gas outlets. Some plans feature formal dining rooms, while others have large family-dining rooms. All major areas have deluxe wall-to-wall carpeting.

KITCHENS HAVE been designed for homemaker convenience. Luminous ceilings light the work areas. Natural wood cabinets and large kitchen pantries provide ample storage. Built-in appliances in the Concern Award garden homes include continuous-cleaning eye-level oven, dishwasher and disposer in the double sink. In some of the plans there are breakfast nooks and some have pass-through serving windows to the private patios.

Master bedroom suites are spacious with double door entries (most plans), double wardrobes or walk-in closets and private baths.

Attached double garages have automatic door openers.

Less than two miles from the coast, Huntington Creek Garden Homes are also close to shops and schools. To see them, exit the San Diego Freeway at Beach Boulevard (Highway 39) and drive south to Main Street. Turn west on Main, then right on Ellis to the furnished models

Davis couple serious sellers

Gerry and Susie Davis, husband and wife sales team at Los Coyotes Country Club Homes, have each recorded more than $1.5 million in new home sales at the Buena Park development during the past 12 months.

Their outstanding sales record was easy to achieve, Gerry Davis said. "We believe so strongly in the quality and value of these new homes that we bought one ourselves."

The Bellehurst project reached a total in excess of $2 million in the last seven months to become one of the fastest-selling developments in Southern California, according to Phil Walsh, president of Emblem Development Corp., builders of the large executive homes.

With only eight homes remaining in the current phase, the available selection of models and sites is on a "first come, first served" basis, Walsh said. One and two story and a tri-level plan, with three and four bedrooms, are among the remaining homes priced from $75,500.

All of the spacious Los Coyotes Country Club Homes are on large lots of over 10,000 square feet and the luxury residences offer from 2218 to 3342 square feet of living area. One home features a huge upper level bonus room with optional floor plan that makes a total of seven bedrooms available.

AMONG THE homes' custom-quality appointments are formal dining rooms and breakfast nooks, large family rooms, dramatic living rooms with fireplaces and elegant master suites with private baths that include both tub and separate stall shower. In two plans a second fireplace is included in the master bedroom suite.

Every home features air conditioning, a tiled entry hall, ceramic tile kitchen, three lavish baths, generous patio slab, intercom system and automatic garage door opener, and select plans offer wet bars and high, sloping ceilings in the living room. Convenience-planned kitchens include a full complement of deluxe O'Keefe & Merritt appliances such as cook-top range, double ovens and trash compactor.

Situated in the established, popular Bellehurst community, the new Emblem homes are within walking distance of the private Los Coyotes Country Club's 27-hold golf course that winds throughout the exclusive neighborhood. Tennis courts, a swimming pool and luxurious clubhouse are among the community attractions available to those who wish to join this prestigious club.

Furnished model homes are open daily from 10:30 a.m. to dusk in the sales complex at 8665 Los Coyotes Drive. The development may be easily reached by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Beach Boulevard in Buena Park, then driving north to Los Coyotes Drive, just south of Rosecrans, then up the hill to Los Coyotes Country Club Homes.

DON SCHULTZ, director of product development and sales for Mission Viejo Co., has received a Lifetime Million Dollar Circle Award from the National Association of Homebuilders. With over 1,000 salespeople, sales and rental managers and marketing directors receiving NAHB citations, Schultz was one of only 30 in the sales and marketing field to be honored nationally.

Orange County — an expectant market

An expectant housing supply exists in Orange County which could inject nearly 12,000 new homes into the market, according to a survey completed by Walker & Lee, Inc.

Last year, over 60 developers received approval for 94 proposed developments from city and county planning agencies. These developers only have to acquire a building permit to begin construction and generate 11,951 new homes.

TO INVESTIGATE the 1975 housing market in Orange County, one of the nation's most prolific homebuilding areas for over two decades, W&L the Anaheim based diversified real estate services firm, conducted its survey in 26 cities and the county planning departments.

"We found a potential housing supply of 11,951 new homes waiting to be built," said Howard Englander, W&L director of research and consulting. "These homes represent new projects, not additions to currently active developments."

"It is encouraging to note — with homeshopper traffic increasing, interest rates dropping and the general building industry climate improving — that additional housing units can be made available rather quickly without waiting for government approval.

"SINCE THESE projects are already designed and approved, the lag-time between their start and finish will be greatly reduced. Thus, once the builders are convinced that more people are ready to buy homes, these units can be started, reducing the possibility of a county shortage.

"Another advantage of the current situation is that these developers now have a second chance to re-evaluate their projects in terms of changing conditions and building costs," said Englander. "Thus, they will be able to provide homes which satisfy buyers' constantly changing needs."

Over half of the approved but unbuilt homes, 7,286, are single-family. The remainder are condominiums.

The largest concentration of potential housing is in the unincorporated areas of Orange County, where 3,294 units are approved.

ANAHEIM LEADS the county's cities with a total of 1,863 units "waiting in the wings". Other areas with significant numbers of potentially available projects include Fullerton, 1,328; Orange, 925; and San Juan Capistrano, 811.

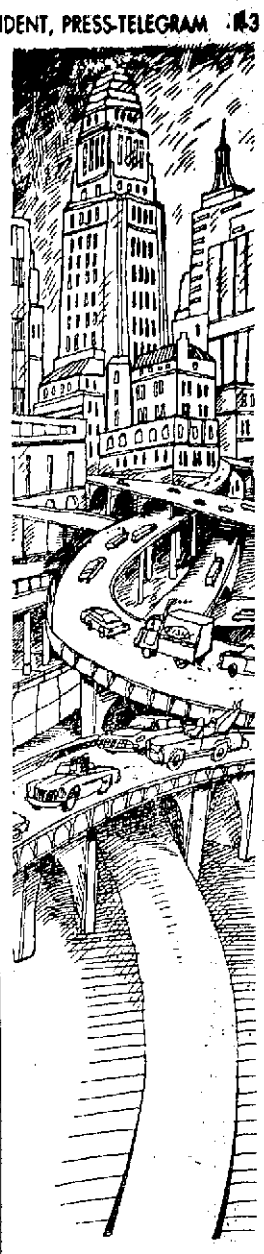

In 1974, the W&L research and consulting department completed over 200 studies in 20 states, including independent research for some of the nation's largest developers. Involved were a variety of themes from time-sharing condominiums in Hawaii to high-rise ownership complexes in Washington, D.C.

Madrid Homes open today

Unit 27 of Madrid Homes, the newest phase of Mission Viejo's most popular residential series, is open today with 31 homes on sale.

"This new unit, set into the hillside immediately west of Marguerite Parkway, is in a prime location," says Grant Sullivan, MV's general sales manager. "With some sites directly overlooking the Casta del Sol Public Golf Course, the homes are just up the hill from the $1.1-million Marguerite Recreation Center and a neighborhood shopping center."

Madrid Homes offer six one-and two-story plans with three to five bedrooms. Ranging in size from 1,775 to 2,830 square feet the homes include family rooms, master suites, and two-or three-car garages. Homeshoppers also can select a variety of floorplan variations, ranging from balconies off the master suite to wall-removing options, enlarging family rooms or creating extra-spacious recreation or hobby rooms.

PRICES RANGE from $50,000 to $74,000 with 8½ per cent conventional financing available.

Distinctive architectural features — such as step-down entries, beamed cathedral ceilings in the living rooms, raised dining areas, winding staircases, and U-shaped kitchens which extend into the backyard — add to the elegance of these homes.

Madrid kitchens have electric ranges, self-cleaning ovens, dishwashers, disposals, pantries, ceramic tile counters, stained hardwood cabinets, and luminous ceilings. Large walk-in closets and separate laundry areas are featured in most models.

The Madrid Homes model complex, open daily from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., may be reached by taking the La Paz Road offramp from the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway, proceeding east to Marguerite Parkway, then turning left on Marguerite and following the signs to the models.

Entry, service area highlight 'Cardiff'

An unusual and highly effective garage-service area and an entry court are two of the features receiving a lot of attention in the two-bedroom, two-bath "Cardiff" Plan at Broadmoor Placentia.

The fully-tiled entry overlooks the living room, with its vaulted, open-beam ceiling and custom fireplace, and the dining room. Sliding glass doors lead from the living room to an outside garden area and the greenbelt beyond.

The Cardiff is one of three single-story floorplans offered at Broadmoor Placentia, a 19-acre townhome project isolated from the hustle and bustle of urban living, yet just a few minutes drive from the Riverside and Orange freeways.

PRICES for the Cardiff start at $39,995, with seven and three quarters per cent financing available.

Broadmoor has placed the Cardiff kitchen between the dining room and service area, which has been plumbed for laundry facilities, and which offers extra space for storage, a work bench or other use suitable to the owner's personal preference. The kitchen features a view onto the entry court.

The Cardiff's master suite has a private bath, while the second bath, situated next to the second bedroom, is easily accessible from the living and dining room, making the home ideal for entertaining.

The roomy master suite also overlooks the rear garden area and the greenspace beyond. The second bedroom has a view of the entry court.

Broadmoor Placentia epitomizes the townhome concept; with security guard gates at the community entrance, large swimming pool, rich architectural exteriors and carefully landscaped grounds, fully maintained through a community association.

SUITABLY this park-like residential neighborhood is situated next to a community park. The Alta Vista Country Club, with its 18-hole golf course is across the street, and memberships are available. Full service shopping is within easy reach.

The Broadmoor "tradition of excellence" is found throughout the homes themselves, as well as throughout the community. Each home is fully air conditioned and special decoraior lighting fixtures complement the tiled entries. Garage door openers are also included on Broadmoor Placentia homes. Baths are highlighted by cultured marble pullman tops, while kitchens offer General Electric eye-level automatic electric ranges and self cleaning ovens, disposals, dishwashers, stained hardwood cabinets and built-in cabinets.

Broadmoor Placentia models are open daily from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., and may be reached by taking either the Orange or Riverside Freeways. From the Orange, take the Yorba Linda Boulevard off-ramp and travel east about 1½ miles to Linda Vista. Turn right and drive one-half block to the community entrance. From the Riverside Freeway, take the Tustin off-ramp and travel north about two and a half miles to the community.

Villa Frontera sells 28 units in 30 days

Buyer approval of the country life style of Villa Frontera Townhouses in East Anaheim and its ideal location within easy driving to work, schools, entertainment and recreation on three nearby freeways has been demonstrated.

There have been record sales of 28 homes in the past 30 days, reports Larry Armour, president of Armour Building Co., developers of the 156-unit community.

This was the best month in the past year and approaches the high marks set when the 82 units in Phase I were sold out in less than three months in early 1974.

FIFTY HOMES have been sold in the 76-unit Phase II. Purchasers are moving into their new homes at the rate of one a day.

Only 26 homes are available now on a first come, first served basis. Immediate occupancy is assured buyers, said Mr. Armour.

Despite increases in costs of materials and labor, prices of Villa Frontera Townhouses have remained at the same level listed on the opening day of Phase II in late 1974.

Prices range from $32,950 to $36,950. Veterans can buy homes at 7¾ per cent interest with no down payment. FHA qualified buyers also have 7¾ per cent interest under new FHA terms.

One of the most impressive attractions which has brought out buyers in record volume is the soon to be built 75 acre park with its 35 acre lake — a fabulous recreation and sports center — adjacent to Villa Frontera.

The recreation-oriented community also has a center with a pool, sun decks and clubhouse for the exclusive use of residents.

Two and three bedroom homes are available. The country living atmosphere with abundant open space is enhanced by the advanced site plan featuring landscaping and walkways between units. Units are clustered on cul-de-sac streets in a garden setting.

Furnished models can be reached by turning off Riverside Freeway at Glassell Street, between the Orange Freeway and Newport Freeway), then west on Frontera Street to the sales office, open from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Chateau's sales moving briskly

In spite of an apparent status quo realty mark, sales are continuing at Rossmoor Chateau, co-developer Bernie Solomon of National-Mills Associates, reports.

"Interest rates, as low as 7.9 per cent, our excellent location and quality product are the reasons cited as reasons for buying," said Solomon.

PRICES RANGE from $45,450 to $59,950 and viewers are reminded that the $45,450 price purchased a spacious, full size two bedroom, two bath luxury unit.

The Chateau is an all-adult condominium home project of National-Mills Associates. Furnished models are open from 10 a.m. 'till dark and are on display at 12400 Montecito Road, adjacent to the Rossmoor Business and Shopping Plaza.

The 70-unit development is valued at $3.5 million. Five different floor plan arrangements are offered in one bedroom with convertible den, two or three bedrooms and 2 bath plans. Units are available on the second, third, and fourth floors of the Regency styled building.

INTERESTED homeseekers are invited to inspect the exclusive community as soon as possible.

To reach Rossmoor Chateau from the San Diego Freeway, take the Los Alamitos Boulevard exit north to Saint Cloud Drive. Then go left to the furnished models at Saint Cloud and Montecito Road.

The development is five minutes from the Old Ranch Golf and Old Ranch Tennis Club.

EXTENSIVE LANDSCAPING and open space at Villa Frontera Townhouses in East Anaheim. All units are clustered in a garden setting. The 156-home community is one of the fastest selling developments of its kind in Orange County. Prices range from $32,950 to $36,950.

"I can get 3 bedrooms, 2 baths with 8% interest and pay only $297 a month."

"And the minute the paint is dry on my new Tiburon townhome, I will.

"Because when I can get a deal on a new home that gives me a low price, a low downpayment, with the balance financed at low interest, and still gives me low monthly payments, I grab it.

"My wife and I have been paying more than $297 a month for rent for years. More than $297 a month, every month, right down the drain. But with rising interest rates and high down payments, we just haven't been able to swing buying a new home. Until now.

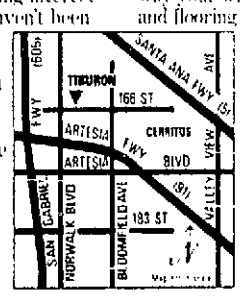

"Now there's a brand new unit at Tiburon Cerritos that's opening up soon. And I'm going to be there when it's completed.

"Because Tiburon has just what my wife and I have been looking for. Big, spacious homes with a family room. (We chose a 3 bedroom, 2 bath home with a huge family room. That way, we have a room for television, I have a study and my wife has a sewing room.)

"The modern kitchen is fully-equipped and designed so that we can eat and run down to Club Tiburon, the recreation center. There's a Junior Olympic-size swimming pool, wading pool, game rooms, and of course, a lounge where we can meet all our friends.

"You're probably a lot like me, and you want to get value for your money. So why don't you visit Tiburon Cerritos right now, before the new unit is built. That way your wife can get her choice of appliances, carpet, and flooring colors. And, even more important, you can get your choice of the best location in the new unit.

"So if you want to move into a great home, better get a move on."

*Typical Financing. Cash sales price $42,490. 5% down payment $2,490. First Trust Deed $40,000. Paid in 354 equal payments of $297 P. & I. at 8% simple annual rate. 8.16% annual percentage rate.

What's Your Problem?

It's never too early for couple to consider future plans

By DON G. CAMPBELL

The world is your oyster, and everything's coming up roses. But, still and all, when you're in, your 20s and 30s, the future stretches out before you as an ominous "no-man's-land" of uncertainties.

And, as grimly overpractical as it seems, you're never too young to begin thinking about how to tackle this problem.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband and I have been married a year and are quite concerned about building a secure and profitable financial future. Our combined income is $32,000 — I earn $15,000 and my husband earns $17,000. Approximately $400 a month is spent on bills and we have been depositing about $550 a month in our savings account. We own no real estate, but rent an apartment at $330 a month. As yet, we have insurance coverage only through our jobs.

We are interested in making some profitable financial investments to supplement our income. Since the stock market is obviously a poor investment during these inflationary times, we were considering a franchise in one of the successful food chains, or investing in real estate.

At our ages — my husband is 30 and I am 24 — what would you suggest for us in the way of investments and insurance? Mrs. L. P. (Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: You're a very frugal and far-sighted young couple, but you've omitted one rather important consideration here — what sort of family plans, if any, do you have? Yes, I'm afraid that it's pretty critical to any sort of long-range planning since you are currently talking about an income of $32,000 that could shrink to $17,000 in very short order. I don't think that it's necessary to elaborate on this point, do you?

Two things for openers: Get yourself some insurance, and the rough guideline here is about three times your gross annual income while there are no children involved, and about five times your income once there are little mouths to feed.

Next, forget the franchise-food business. In those areas where such outlets haven't already been worked to death — and they are getting fewer and farther apart — it is still no good as an out-and-out investment. The only way you can make a go of such a project is by preparing yourself to devote near-full-time to it and, since you are both well employed at the moment, I simply can't see you in this role.

You're getting back on more solid ground when you talk about real estate as an investment but, here again, I think you should go the conventional route by making your first such investment in this field in the form of a single-family residence. Don't buy it as an investment — buy it as a HOME, first, and — if it's ging to appreciate in value, then that's well and good. The important thing is that you're established equity which you can subsequently use to finance a branching out into other — strictly-investment-type — real estate projects. I wouldn't entirely disregard the stock market and or mutual funds at this time simply because prices are depressed and inflation seems completely out of control. You've got a lot of years ahead of you and the market isn't going to stay in the doldrums forever. I think that now is an excellent time to begin a modest, long-range, equity investment program. But, first — the insurance, a home and a continuation of a regular (if more modest) savings program.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

Your frequent advice to the contrary, I think that an investment in rental property is for the birds! A couple of years ago I bought two single-family houses that were under foreclosure and spent a small fortune restoring them to the point where they would be livable.

Since then, it's been one headache after another — one house sat empty for the better part of the first year (but the mortgage payments continued!), and both have been consistently, and seriously damaged by vandalism. I won't bore you with the bookkeeping of this unhappy experience, but it's been all outgo and no income for the whole two years. I think that you're doing a disservice in recommending this as an investment! Mr. W. L. Y. (Tucson, Az.)

ANSWER: I couldn't agree with you more, except for one little thing that you've rather conveniently overlooked — I not only DON'T recommend single-family homes as an investment, I go to considerable lengths to argue AGAINST them, and for the very reasons that you've outlined.

This doesn't mean that a lot of people don't somehow manage to go this route almost indefinitely and remain quite happy with their lot — but it takes a happy blending of circumstances which eludes most of the investors who try it. There's money to be made in rental property, certainly (or there wouldn't be any landlords anywhere), but — as a general rule — it's a losing proposition in the single-family residence field.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I've recently inherited a huge old home (three floors, seven bedrooms and five baths) for which I haven't any earthly use. It's been suggested to me, though, that I might convert it into small apartments and utilize one unit for my own use (I'm 65 and alone in the world). It's quite close to shopping and transportation as well as being near one large industrial plant and an office-building complex. Does this seem practical to you? Mr. O. H. V. (Buffalo, N. Y.)

ANSWER: It sounds extremely practical if you can get past the major hurdle — the necessary zoning to make this all possible. On the surface, though, it sounds like the house is located in a neighborhood that's going through a transitional period — from residential to business — anyway, and so this may not be a big problem. It's entirely possible, in fact, that the rezoning may have already taken place. I'd put a good lawyer on the matter and see what, if anything, is required in this respect.

Campbell welcomes your letters and comments, but can answer only representative questions of general interest. Write him in care of I.P-T, Box 230, Long Beach 90844.

Recreational features at Riviera Huntington

Residents of Riviera Huntington condominiums in Huntington Beach can enjoy a wide range of recreational activities without ever leaving the community.

A spacious rec center and clubhouse is available for parties, card-playing and other indoor activities. Outside are a large heated swimming pool, hot water swirlpool jacuzzi, full-size tennis court and putting greens.

RIVIERA Huntington is also ideally located within easy walking distance of Bolsa Chica State Beach, with numerous boat slips, tennis courts and golf courses also nearby.

Marketing Director Bob Reilly said three floor plans remain available, offering two or three bedrooms, 1½ baths and excellent conventional financing terms. He added that the homes are priced from $32,500 to $38,500.

"Fewer than 30 homes remain," Reilly said, "and when they are sold, increasing costs dictate that there will be no others of this quality available in this area at such low prices."

Many of the homes already sold are now occupied. Those that remain are available for immediate occupancy on approval of credit.

The condominium concept of leisure living insures all residents of Riviera Huntington sufficient time to enjoy their recreational activities. A single monthly fee covers all exterior building maintenance, landscaping and care of the rec facilities.

EACH HOME is equipped with a host of luxury extras, including private patio and enclosed garage, deluxe-equipped all-electric kitchen with self-cleaning oven, shag carpeting throughout, dishwasher, private utility room and plenty of storage space.

The Riviera Huntington sales office and decorated model complex are located at 16771 Bolsa Chica Ave., at Pearce Avenue in Huntington Beach. Take the Bolsa Chica exit off the San Diego Freeway and drive south to the homesite.

All visitors who bring a Riviera Huntington ad or news story to the sales office will receive a complimentary gift from the builder.

Great buys seen in housing market

Despite today's economic conditions, there are some great bargains in the housing market for potential home buyers.

This is due to a large inventory of unsold new homes carried over from last year when mortgage money was unavailable for the average American consumer.

But things are beginning to change. Mortgage money is available.

Interest rates have stabilized and the inflationary pressures on housing costs appear to be leveling off.

IN ADDITION, many builders are willing to sell their existing homes at bargain prices because they can't afford to carry them any longer.

The would-be buyer would do well to take advantage of today's market.

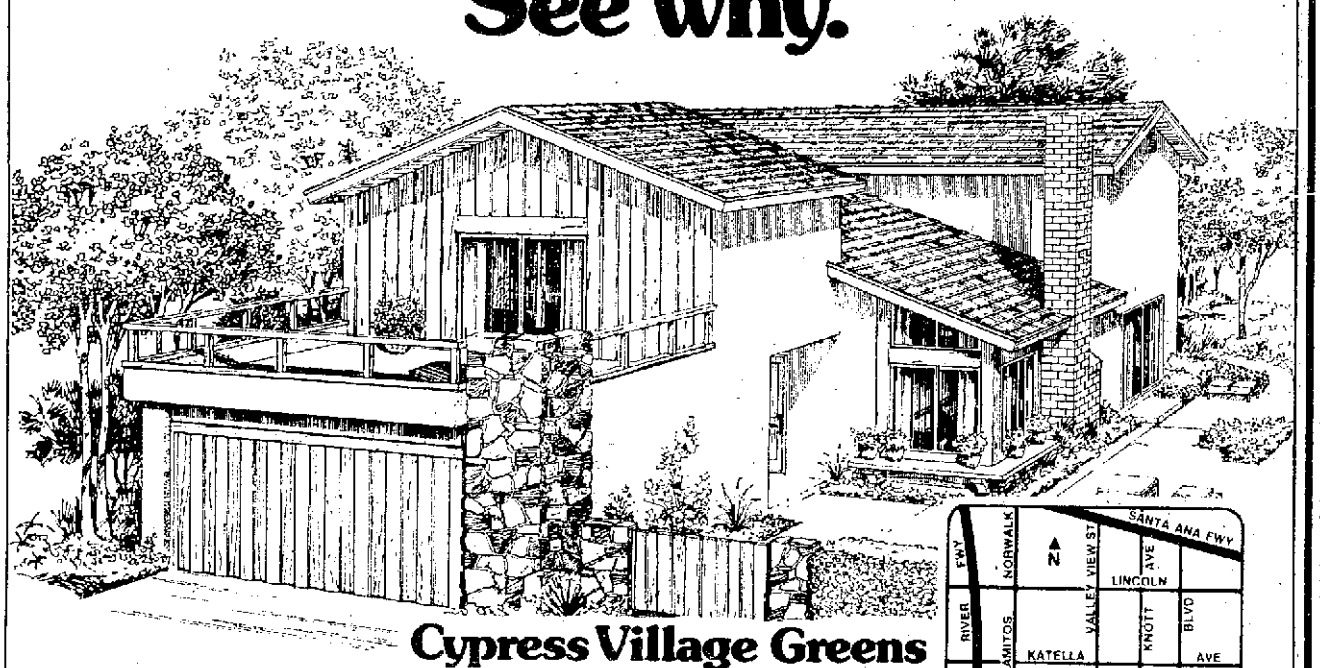

James T. Lynn, newly appointed director of the Office of Management and former secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) said at a recent economic conference in Atlanta:

"The wise person wouldn't wait two, three or four years to buy if he could afford it now. Because even though we get an appreciably better handle on inflation than we've had, it's still going to cost more for that house each year hereafter.

"HOUSING can be a strong factor in building your own financial security. A home is the only thing you can buy today that increases in value as time goes on. A home is a hedge against inflation. "Remember: No matter what happens to the national economy — and we're confident that we will solve the complicated problems confronting us today — you will always need a place to live.

"So you have nothing to lose and everything to gain by buying a new home today. Ask your builder. He can provide financing at probably the lowest rates you've seen in years.

Life care, a bet on longevity

Kenneth Haas does not throw his money around. And he's no gambler. To prove the point he tells about the time he took Las Vegas for $28 by buying a gamblers special of $6 worth of nickels for $5. He did it 28 times and then left town without dropping one nickel into a slot machine.

This same careful Kenneth Haas paid $17,000 in advance and agreed to an indefinite moothly fee for a Life Care program in what must be described as a long odds gamble worthy of the attention of Nick the Greek.

Haas bet he and his wife would outlive the tenure of the 100-month contract. The foundation with which he made the deal bet they wouldn't.

Had they died 10 minutes after they signed the agreement they would have forfeited the $17,000. But as it turns out Haas at age 77 and his wife, who is 75, are well on their way to winning the wager.

With money he earned as a writer, college professor and businessman, Haas bought a Life Care Program at Bixby Hills Towers, 3737 Atlantic Ave. He signed a contract with Retirement Housing Foundation which operates the only Life Care facility in the Long Beach area.

Haas received a two-bedroom apartment for as long as he and his wife are ambulatory. All of his medical expenses, except those involving a pre-existing condition, are paid for life. Should either of them require it they will be moved to another building where round-the-clock nursing care is available. If they become bedridden, the foundation provides a convalescent hospital staffed with trained medical people.

The program also provides meals, maid service and social and recreational programs.

THE PROGRAM PROMISES the ultimate in security for aging people who can afford it. They can terminate their contracts and get their money back, less one per cent a month for the time spent in the apartment. The cash payment, called an accomodation fee, is used up in 100 months. The resident has no equity in the building or the foundation, which is a non-profit corporation and member of the Council of Health and Welfare Services of the United Church of Christ.

The foundation can also terminate the contract and refund the accomodation fee at the same rate if it decides a resident is unsuitable. A resident who is no longer ambulatory can be moved out of his apartment into an intermediate care building.

If Haas were buying the contract today he would pay an accomodation fee ranging from $12,800 to $39,200 depending upon the size of the apartment he wanted and whether or not he was single. Apartments range from 365-square-foot studios to 915-square-foot, two bedroom accomodations large enough for a couple. Apartments on the upper floors of the 14-story building command more money.

Care and service fees range from $360 per month for a single person to $700 for a couple. This fee is subject to periodic increases based on the cost of living index. The resident who pays it receives meals, maid service, and social and recreational programs.

THESE MONTHLY care and service fee increases have brought complaints from residents, most of whom are retired middle income teachers and public servants. The complaints reflect a growing awareness that a new element of risk is emerging for them. They are discovering that the Life Care Program may not always protect them from the vagaries of the economy and they find themselves in a desperate race with rising costs, a race which threatens to make their longevity something less than a gift from the almighty.

This is the position in which Mrs. Fern Beebe, 75, finds herself. She came to Bixby Knolls Towers in 1969, paid $20,400 for a large one-bedroom apartment, and for awhile she paid a care and service fee of $290 a month. Several increases have brought the fee to $420.

Mrs. Beebe's income from social security, investments and a retirement fund left her by her husband amounts to $6,400 a year. This means she is forced to sell stocks and reduce her income-producing potential to help pay costs like her car, clothes, dentist, optometrist and a host of miscellaneous expenses incurred in daily living and not included in the Life Care Program.

THE SUPREME COURT

America's most secret society

By NINA TOTTENBERG
(C) 1975 Special Features, The New York Times Syndicate

There is probably no more secret society in America than the Supreme Court. Its nine Justices are among the most powerful, yet least visible, men in the United States.

It is unheard-of for a Justice to reveal anything specific about the Court's case work; law clerks, too, are sworn to secrecy. The Court's written decisions are supposed to speak for themselves. It is the least accountable branch of Government, and in the common understanding, its Justices are robed symbols of seriousness, wisdom and the majesty of the law.

And yet to those who are familiar with the Court's daily functioning, the Justices are also people — nine men who work terribly hard and are sometimes very smart, men who constantly fight to overcome their own prejudices and backgrounds, men who sometimes win that battle and sometimes lose it, men who agonize, strain and manipulate to reach joint conclusions, and sometimes change their minds. "Judicial decision-making," wrote a former Supreme Court law clerk in a recent Harvard Law Review, "involves, at bottom, a choice between competing values by fallible, pragmatic and at times non-rational men engaged in a highly complex process in a very human setting."

What follows is an attempt to lift the Court's curtain of secrecy a bit so that the Justices and their work may be better understood. It does not pretend to be a definitive picture; rather, it is one reporter's attempt to put together in one place information gleaned from scores of interviews with Supreme Court law clerks, friends of the Justices, law professors, attorneys who practice regularly before the Court, and the Justices themselves.

All of the facts reported here have been verified by at least two of these sources.

THE BASIC event in the Court's decision-making process is a weekly conference, usually scheduled for Friday, at which cases are initially discussed. The Justices arrive punctually at 9:30 a.m. Some, like William Rehnquist and Potter Stewart, are "night people" who look solemn-faced as they fight the morning doldrums. Others, like Justice William Brennan, who rises each morning at 5:30, are cheerful and wide-awake.

The Justices pour themselves coffee from a silver urn. Then they shake hands, as has been the custom since 1888, and sit down to do battle.

The first function of the conference might be called deciding to decide. Each year roughly 5,000 cases come before the Court. The Justices sift through these cases and decide which ones are worthy of their full consideration. Last year, for example, the Justices agreed to hear only 170 cases.

Once on the conference list, a case faces an even bigger hurdle, for it takes the votes of four Justices to grant it review. The votes to grant review are not always routine or trivial, and the arguing over them may grow strenuous, as it did when the Court was asked to rule on whether President Nixon could refuse to permit the use of his tapes in the investigation of his subordinates. When the case came to the Court, the legal question was whether the Justices should leapfrog the appeals process to expedite a crucial question.

Justice Stewart is reported to have argued forcefully that it was up to the judiciary to settle quickly an issue that was so terribly paralyzing the other institutions of government and so deeply affecting the national well-being. Stewart was joined by Justices Lewis Powell and William O. Douglas, and soon they had won over two more of their colleagues, leaving Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Justice Harry Blackmun and Justice Byron White to dissent. (Justice Rehnquist had disqualified himself from the case.)

Once the court agrees to hear a case, it is scheduled for oral arguments some months later. In the interim, lawyers for both sides file lengthy written briefs — usually 60 to 80 pages long — arguing the case. Sometimes as many as 10 or 20 other "friend of the court" briefs are filed by other parties who claim an interest in the case.

Finally, the day for oral argument comes. Each side generally has a half-hour to make its points. The Justices pepper the attorneys with questions. Oral argument is like verbal fencing; at its best, it can be a lawyer's virtuoso performance.

The following Friday, the case is back in conference, this time to be decided tentatively. Beginning with the Chief Justice and then in order of seniority, each Justice voices his views. They argue, cajole, persuade and finally they vote, this time with the junior Justice going first.

Depending on the personalities and mood of the Justices, the conversation can get quite heated. It is said that in the day when Felix Frankfurter and Hugo Black were on the Court, the guards stationed outside the conference room could hear the Justices yelling at each other. The Burger Court, at least on the surface, is more civilized. The grueling meeting lasts all day.

The shifts in votes are usually what most people assume them to be — changes of mind that result from the ongoing efforts of the Justices to apply their best judgment and knowledge of the law to their best understanding of subtle or ambiguous facts. But observers of the Court say that Justices have also been known to change their minds for less elevated reasons. Most recently such criticism has focused on Chief Justice Burger.

Critics of Burger cite his voting behavior in the Court's big busing case — the 1971 Charlotte, N.C. case — in which he wrote the Court's unanimous decision ordering extensive busing to desegregate Southern schools. The first vote in conference was said to have been 6 to 3 against busing. In an unusual move, each Justice went back to his chambers and drafted an opinion.

Justice John Harlan was said to have been the toughest probusing opinion. Then, several Justices had second thoughts and switched their votes. Soon the vote was 6 to 3 for busing, with Burger, Blackmun and Black dissenting. Eventually, the three capitulated — Black being the last holdout. And Burger, who had envisioned himself writing the opinion against busing, ended up writing the opinion for it and incorporating much of the language from the drafts of the more liberal Justices.

Those who know the Chief Justice well contend that he changed his vote for personal and political reasons rather than reasons of legal judgment. At the time, they speculate, Burger did not wish to be a part of a small minority if that stance would cause people to think of him as an automatic supporter of positions favored by then-President Nixon.

These observers point to other examples of Burg-

THE LATE actor Erroll Flynn — while dashing and daring on the screen, he died unglamorously.

Q: I say teen-age boys are safer drivers than girls. Am I right? — Cheryl Connors, Pittsburgh.

A: Not according to Dr. T. Crawford MacAslan of the University of Maryland. He's so critical of male teen-age drivers that he warns: "Sending a boy out in a car is like sending him to war. The parent who would hesitate to do one should hesitate just as much to do the other. The risks and injuries are equivalent."

Q: Could you tell me under what circumstances Errol Flynn met his death? — Mrs. John T. Brickell, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: The flamboyant Flynn died unspectacularly of a heart attack in Vancouver, Canada, October 1959. His death climaxed a spectacular love affair with a teen-ager named Beverly Aadland. The coroner remarked that the 50-year-old body was that of a tired old man — substantiating boss Jack Warner's observation that the star was "one of the living dead" during the filming of the Diana Barrymore biography, "Too Much, Too Soon" (1958), in which Flynn portrayed the late John Barrymore. Buried at Forest Lawn, he lies in an unmarked grave.

Q: You recently printed some comments made by one of Bette Davis's ex-husbands. I remember when she was married to Gary Merrill — and I'm curious. Did he ever comment on their marriage? — Mrs. T. O. McB., Sacramento, Ca.

A: "Ours was a stormy marriage," No. 4 recalls. "But I did last longer than any of her other husbands — 10 turbulent years. I was married once before," reveals actor Merrill, "and that didn't work out either. After I got my divorce from Bette, I decided that marriage was something which I didn't know how to do properly. So I decided not to bother anyone else."

Q: My buddy claims there was once a DC-1½ — back in the days before World War II. I say he must be dreaming. Or was there such a craft? — S. P. Fox, Madison, Wis.

A: There was only one such plane — and there's a legend behind it. It came about during the period of Gen. Claire Chennault's Flying Tigers, in the years of the war between China and Japan, before Pearl Harbor. A DC-3 tore off one of its wings in a crash landing. While it awaited rescue, mechanics discovered the wreck of a DC-1 on the field. Removing a wing, although it was shorter than the one designed for the DC-3, they managed, with wires and know-how, to attach it to the larger craft. From that point on, cheered to a takeoff, the shaky but airwosthy plane was known as the DC-1½ to everyone who had anything to do with the Flying Tigers.

Q: Who are the most popular worldwide personalities on exhibit these days at Madame Toussaud's? —Byron Strong, Houston.

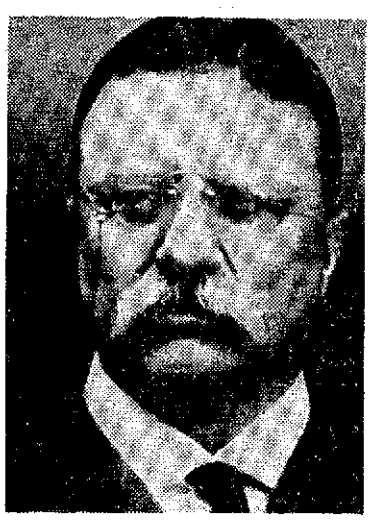

A: The honors are split between John F. Kennedy and Sir Winston Churchill. Runners-up, according to the famous wax museum, include Queen Elizabeth II, Martin Luther King, Madame Du Barry, the Beatles, Napoleon and Shakespeare.

Q: Who was it who first gave the Secret Service the full responsibility for protecting Presidents? —Robert Collins, Orlando, Fla.

A: Theodore Roosevelt in 1901. As Vice President, Roosevelt succeeded McKinley after he was shot in 1901 by the anarchist Leon Czolgosz at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo. Joining a line of admirers shaking hands with the President, the assassin approached McKinley with a bandage around his right hand to conceal a .32 caliber pistol. McKinley died eight days later of gangrene poisoning. A month afterward President Teddy Roosevelt entrained to Auburn Prison, in upper New York state, to witness the execution of the killer.

Believe more women should carry a torch

BETTER PAY and the prospect of advancement brought Pat DiGusto to Long Beach City College's welding department for training. Ms. DiGusto, who formerly was employed in a traditional female occupation, urges other women to consider the skilled trades but admits that most women are still pretty timid when it comes to breaking through previously all-male barriers.

Staff Writer

In a period plagued by economic layoffs, slow housing starts and uncertainties about the future, George Rodriguez stands out like a storybook prophet of glad tidings and great hope.

Times, Rodriguez believes, have never been better for the woman who wants to be a welder.

The jobs, he says, are there for the asking. It's simply a matter of knowing the trade.

"Any contractor who wants a federal job must have an affirmative action plan," said Rodriguez, one of two full-time day instructors in the welding department at Long Beach City College. "And affirmative action means they must hire women.

"On top of that, there's a real demand for welders...Even as the economy is right now — I'd say that a good 85 per cent of our third and fourth semester welding students have night jobs in the welding field.

"The money's good, too," Rodriguez added. "What does a secretary make? Say $450, $500 a month? A beginning welder makes something like $5.75 an hour. Recently, we had an opening for a job that paid $7 an hour.

"Even an average welder can make $14,000 or $15,000 a year. And a welder with field certification can make $14,000 or $15,000 a year. And a welder with field certification can make up to $14 an hour."

RODRIGUEZ' PROBLEM — and presumably the problem of contractors in search of government jobs — is that few women consider welding as a serious, feasible career.

Most, he said, think of welding as both dirty and dangerous. Or they believe it requires exceptional strength or consider it unfeminine.

"In the first place, welding is as safe as you make it. When you take the right precautions, you don't go blind. And under any circumstance, welding doesn't make you sterile, as some people think.

"Also, not all kinds of welding are necessarily dirty, though admittedly it's dirtier than some kinds of work."

Rodriguez continued, "Not all types of welding require exceptional strength. I'd say that with a few exceptions, most women could handle almost every kind of welding task."

Rodriguez also dismissed the myth that welding is a masculine task. "Actually it's a precision, detail kind of work. Patience is the most important thing. Women seem to have more patience than men and often, I think, women make better welders than men."

Despite all the apparent advantages of welding — attractive wages, considerable demand and an opportunity to excel — few women are enrolling in welding programs, Rodriguez said. At present, only four out of more than two hundred students are women and two of those are studying welding as it relates to other trades.

RODRIGUEZ BELIEVES that one problem is that high school counselors are still not encouraging girls to consider the skilled trades. But another major drawback, according to Pat DiGusto, one of the four women students, is that even mature women who know what the score is are reluctant to enroll in a program which they think is dominated by men or where they might get what Ms. DiGusto described as a "bad time."

"You've got to be pretty aggressive and confident to take the big plunge into what you might see as a situation where you'll be the only woman. A lot of women are still pretty apprehensive about that sort of thing.

"But this is where the money is. I think it's important that other women realize that there are already women learning welding and that there are people encouraging them to do so."

Ethel Long, a 21-year-old former garment worker, said she has had nothing but good experiences with her fellow students in the welding department.

Ms. Long, who has been promised a job with American Bridge in Los Angeles once she has mastered MIG (metallic inert gas) welding, said male members of the class "seemed to go out of their way to help me" when she started her training about three weeks ago.

"Ethel ought to be out of here and on the job soon," Rodriguez said. "It shouldn't take more than five weeks to master MIG welding."

Rodriguez had a third woman student who is considering welding as a career. Both she and her husband earned bachelors degrees in liberal arts areas. Later, after surveying their job prospects as English and history graduates, they enrolled in the welding program.

"Nicole had a baby last Friday, but she was in here working until last week," Rodriguez explained. "When the baby gets a little older, she'll be back here to complete her fourth quarter."

PROSPECTIVE WELDERS have several training courses open to them at LBCC's Pacific Coast Campus. One course is the one which Ms. Long is pursuing — to take intensive training in one very basic phase of welding, then return for additional training once she's on the job.

The school also offers an Associate Arts degree in welding (which requires liberal arts courses as well as welding training) and certificate in welding (which sets requirements in welding only). Both are four semester programs.

"As far as I know no women have graduated from the welding program here so I can't yet say that we've had fantastic success placing our women welders," Rodriguez said. "But we did have a couple of women at El Camino College and they're all working on welding jobs."

WILL THE REAL Pat DiGusto unmask? She's happy to — and also happy to say that she's had nothing but help and encouragement from fellow students in LBCC's welding program.

Food is First Class aboard Queen Elizabeth 2

By VIRGINIA HEFFINGTON
IP-T Food Editor

Wealthy or not, it becomes increasingly difficult to find The Good Life. One of the best ways to enjoy luxury living is aboard a modern cruise ship. Especially on the biggest of them all — the Queen Elizabeth 2.

The liner docked briefly at San Pedro last week after completing 68 days of an 80-day world cruise.

For $97,035, four of you could hold forth in one of the ship's two penthouses. (This breaks down to $24,259 if you insist on separate checks. Of course, two is a more popular figure than four — total price stays the same.)

"Economy" rate is $5,400 but you must be able to find another person able to come up with the same cash and willing to share your quarters.

About 1,400 passengers were on board when the ship steamed out of San Pedro, many taking a once-in-a-lifetime cruise and conceiveably spending life savings to do it.

JOHN M. BAINBRIDGE, executive chef, sees to it that the passengers get their money's worth at the dinner (and breakfast and lunch) table. A staff of 136 assists him, not counting the 35 dishwashers "which don't belong to me."

Cooking is done in four kitchens. Two of these, the Queen's Grill and Columbia, are reserved for First Class. Tourists dine in the Britannia. The fourth kitchen is the crew's. Not counted because of their small size are the two kitchens needed for Kosher Jewish cooking.

The bulk of the passengers are American. With this in mind, Bainbridge loaded up with 180,000 pounds of beef in New York. Except for meat from the forequarter needed for Jewish recipes, this was all loin (as in steak), rib (as in prime) and rump (as in pot roast, stew and the All-American hamburger.)

THE SHIP DOESN'T pick up stores in every port. The supply department flew around the world to find what's reliable and available. And what is not.

At San Pedro, the liner took on 10 tons of potatoes, not counting 2½ tons of the baking kind; 1,000 pounds each of celery and butterhead lettuce; 2,000 pounds of iceberg lettuce; 3,500 pounds tomatoes and 400 pounds yellow summer squash.

At the other extreme were 5 pounds of fresh mint and 15 pounds worth of horseradish stick. But the list of orders, large and small, went on and on. Stores were taken aboard most of the 12 hours the ship was in port.

Earlier on the trip, Bainbridge had melon, avocados and celery flown from California to Hong Kong. "Nothing but the best."

He was frustrated in his attempt to buy avocados in Mombasa, a Kenyan port in East Africa. "An Arabian supplier came down with a big basket. They were so nice that I really wanted them. The price was right at 20 cents each. So I asked for 1,500 to be delivered the next day. He assured me he understood English. The next day — no avocados. He explained, 'None in the market this morning, Boss.' This was no problem for him but it was a mess for me. If I'd just known, I could have bought green fruit in Durban (South Africa) and held it."

According to Bainbridge, soft fruits are the biggest problem on board. "You buy mangos and guavas in the 100-degree heat of India and Africa and unless you serve them the same day, they're spoiled. But these countries are catching on fast — it must be American influence — because packing has improved so tremendously. Green grapes flown from Thailand to the ship in Singapore were the best I ever had."

WHEN A SHIP docks at warm American ports like San Pedro, the United States Department of Agriculture seals off most fresh produce because of the danger of bringing ashore pests like the fruit fly. The inconvenience of this is such that pains are taken to avoid it. "I gambled we'd have no trouble on the way from Hawaii. If there'd been bad weather, we'd have run out of some food because only a minimum was taken on in the islands."

Something to be expected on a luxury cruise is caviar. And it's fine Beluga roe from sturgeon caught in the Caspian Sea. Though Russian caviar is more famous, Russia shares the catch with Iran. Passengers are enjoying Iranian malossol (lightly salted) costing $60 a pound. For canapes, it's spooned atop a slice of hard-cooked egg on a round cracker and sprinkled with chopped egg white (cooked, of course.)

To celebrate their stop at Mahe in the Seychelle Islands, Bainbridge invented Pineapple Seychelles. This is fresh pineapple split in half lengthwise, keeping the crown intact. The fruit is hollowed out and cut in chunks then laced with rum and spiced lightly with cinnamon. This is spooned back into the shell, covered with meringue and browned in the oven. "Mahe is one of the few surviving British Islands but will probably be made independent next year." It seemed fitting for a British ship to pay tribute to her.

ACCORDING TO Bainbridge, he would serve more exotics if the passengers would eat them. "They want to hear about them but prefer to eat beef steak."

The chef is making menus now for European cruises later on. "Melon in England is hard to get so we'll pick up enough in New York to last."

He, like the housewife, works on a budget. But he doesn't keep the account. "It's totaled up every four days on the computer and shoved under my door. I quiver and shake when I pick it up but Cunard has never fired a chef for going over the budget." He concluded it was a compliment to Cunard.

He's been with the line almost 33 years, not counting 4 years he and a partner operated a small (36 tables) restaurant near his home in Southhampton. When the partner died, Bainbridge was welcomed back to Cunard.

This was his second trip to California. In 1942, he sailed aboard the first Queen Elizabeth as well as the Queen Mary from San Francisco, carrying one of the first envoys of American troops to Australia. Before leaving San Pedro, he made a nostalgic Queen Mary tour.

HOW sweet it is aboard the Queen Elizabeth 2. Passengers are tempted by elaborate tortes, rich pies, cakes, puff pastries and cookies that taste homemade. Not as challenging to the waistline are dainty pink meringues so fragile they break in your fingers. Executive Chef John M. Bainbridge, left, lavishes praise on his pastry chef.

AT WIT'S END

Motherhood at mercy of cement mixer

Janet, a bride of several months, said to me the other night, "You had your children during the awkward age, didn't you?"

"What age is that?" I asked.

"Too late for prudence and too early for the pill."

"Look Janet, if I've said it once, I've said it a thousand times, the pill is grossly overrated. Statistics will show there are some situations where the pill is totally ineffective and there is nothing in this world that will change it. A woman is flirting with imminent motherhood if she:

1. Lets her Blue Cross lapse
2. Buys one water ski
3. Converts her maternity clothes into a camper
4. Is named executive director of Zero Population
5. Reaches her insurance chart weight
6. Buys a cement mixer."

HOLD IT!" said Janet. "What does a cement mixer have to do with conceiving a child?"

"You little naive fool," I said, "I got a letter just last week from a woman in Scandia, Minn., who had been childless for several years when they decided to buy some land and build their own home. They acquired a cement mixer from a bachelor uncle and started to lay the blocks. The footers weren't even finished when she delivered her first child.

"Their next project was a barn. Again she grabbed the shovel and started to run the mixer when another child arrived. Tempting the gods once more, she resumed her mixing to pour the floor when again she bore a child.

THEY BEGAN to suspect the mixer was just that but had to be sure. They loaned it to neighbors, childless for seven years, who needed a sidewalk around their house. She became pregnant before the concrete dried. In fact, the neighbor on the next farm also became pregnant with her eighth child which they blamed on southerly winds.

"The following January when their garage burned to the ground, they again got out the cement mixer and she again became an expectant mother."

"Then you are telling me that the pill is useless against something like a cement mixer?"

"I am telling you after six children they did what they had to do."

"Got rid of the cement mixer?" said Janet excitedly.

"No, had its electrical cord tied. Doesn't your generation know anything?"

"MY GOD, MY GOD!"

The photographers are grumbling. The big airship is already late; natural light is fading; another big electrical storm is on the way. Will the damn thing never show . . . ?

The Hindenburg drifts slowly toward the mooring mast at Lakehurst, N.J., 97 souls safely tucked away in the passenger gondola and crew stations along the 803-foot length of the airborne cigar. The Hindenburg is ending its 37th passage from Nazi Germany, whose resurgence it symbolizes.

May 6, 1937. Three months since Adolph Hitler declared Germany will no longer be bound by the Versailles Treaty. Two weeks after Generalissimo Francisco Franco declared a one-party state in Spain.

Time narrows down to an instant: 7:30 p.m., May 6, 1937. The Hindenburg hovers 200 feet up, nose approaching the mooring mast. Landing lines drop to rain-soaked ground. Ground crews reach up.

7:30 p.m. Explosion rips open the tail of the world's largest airship. Flames race forward. The tail section touches ground, forcing hydrogen forward and bursting from the nose. Front section settles toward earth. Passengers and crew, some in flames, leap to the ground. Fire completely devours ship. Thirty-six people die. Total elapsed time of destruction: 47 seconds. The age of the dirigible is over.

MURRAY BECKER, Associated Press, moves instinctively with 4X5 Speed Graphic, fingers faster than brain. Slip in slide, remove holder, turn it over, push back into camera, cock shutter, make second shot. Five seconds gone . . . Seven. Changing holders, make third shot as ship groans to earth . . .

"My God! My God!" Murray Becker keeps murmuring aloud as he keeps shooting. He photographs the last of the horror, a passenger "with skin hanging from his arms," being led away. He photographs the last of the great airship, a tangle of steaming metal. Now, he leans back against the rear of the hangar. Now, Murray Becker cries, uncontrollably.

IRA CORN: Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

When partner doubles an opening one no-trump bid is responder obligated to bid?

Business or Takeout
Lincoln, Neb.

Answer: It depends upon system agreements. In general, most players use the double of one no-trump to describe a balanced hand of 16-18 points.

Responder should pass with any strength and should bid with no strength a five- or six-card suit. With no strength and no suit, pass and pray.

A small group of players agree to use the double as a penalty double. In this case the pass is clear-cut.

Dear Mr. Corn:

If opener opens a game-demand two bid and the next player intervenes at the two level, is responder forced to make a negative response with a negative hand?

No Cards
Denver

Answer: No. The responser to a game-demand opening is responsible to keep the bidding open until game is reached. When the opponents keep the bidding open for opener, responder need not bid.

If he does bid, he shows a reasonable hand worth a voluntary positive response.

Dear Mr. Corn:

When does the "statute of limitations" apply to a revoke? I revoked and it was not discovered until the next deal. Was my penalty retroactive?

High Interest
San Francisco

Answer: There is no penalty if attention is first drawn to the revoke after all players have abandoned their hands and permitted their cards to be mixed together.

Dear Mr. Corn:

What was my proper rebid with this hand after a one club opening and a one heart response?

MEDICINE AND YOU

Bloodless technique aids heart surgery

ben zinser

IF PRESENT surgical trends continue, there may be nearly 100,000 open-heart procedures in the United States in 1976.

Most of these will be coronary bypass procedures, which continue to increase. There were two and one-half times as many of these operations in 1971 as in 1967.

The increasing utilization of this operation may impose a prodigious demand upon the blood resources of the United States within the next few years, according to some researchers.

But doctors at the Texas Heart Institute, Houston, think there may be no blood problem.

They cite their own experience in coronary bypass operations on 36 Jehovah's Witnesses. The operations were successfully performed without administration of blood. A special solution is used to prime the heart-lung machine, and no blood is used.

In fact, the bloodless prime technique has been used in more than 8,000 instances, the doctors say in Cardiovascular Diseases, a medical periodical.

SOME PERSONS continue to hoard gasoline, but it is a dangerous practice, a doctor says.

Dr. Duane L. Larson, chief surgeon of the Shrine Burns Institute in Galveston, Tex., says that last summer "was one of the worst we have experienced at the Burns Institute."

The reason, he says, is that there was a "tremendous number of extensive burns to children who spilled gasoline in garages."

The practice of storing gasoline at home became prevalent a year ago when many service stations experienced short supplies.

Fumes from spillage of gasoline, the doctor says, will find their way to an ignition source — often the hidden flame in a hot water heater.

A technical consultant to the National Safety Council in Chicago, Hans Grigo, says there is no absolutely safe way to store gasoline in the home or in a car.

The explosive power of one gallon of gasoline has been compared to the explosive force of 14 sticks of dynamite.

Dr. Larson's comments appear in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

APPARENT ARTHRITIS of emotional origin can be detected by several telltale signs, says Dr. Herbert Kaplan of the University of Colorado school of medicine.

Patients with psychogenic rheumatism are generally unable to localize the pain, and their pain characteristically moves from one part of the body to another.

These patients often describe their pain as "burning" or "tingling." In addition, the pain is often more constantly present than that in true rheumatic disease. It seems, too, to affect the muscles rather than being confined to the joints.

Pain-killing drugs, such as salicylates, and muscle relaxants can occasionally help to relieve pain in these patients, Dr. Kaplan says.

Details appear in Internal Medicine News, a newspaper for physicians.

VITAMIN C taken daily appears to decrease a tendency to fractures in patients with a bone disorder known as osteogenesis imperfecta.

Thirteen patients, 15 years old and younger, were given vitamin C daily, and all had fewer fractures and most reported increased physical activity, more stamina and more energy.

Dosage of the vitamin, also known as ascorbic acid, was calculated at 25 to 50 milligrams per kilogram of body weight, according to a report in the journal Pediatrics.

ALMOST ALL canker sores in children are caused by allergy, says a noted allergist, Dr. Frederic Speer of Shawnee Mission, Kan.

Foods that can cause canker sores include chocolate, apples, citrus fruits, tomatoes, bananas, pecans, walnuts and pineapples. Toothpaste is another cause, he says.

Man or woman, we can all use a personal-possessions organizer like the small cabinet shown here with actress Sivi Alberg. This miniature replica of a Colonial writing desk can be used equally well as a jewelry case for a woman's baubles or a man's cufflinks and such. It has five drawers in the lower part and two above, behind the pull-down door. Each drawer is divided into several compartments to keep your possessions separated. Above all, they're in one place. How many times have you looked for a pair of earrings for instance, and found only one ... usually when you're in a hurry?

If you have a hobby that requires small tools and miscellaneous items, like sewing, for instance, here's a handy and attractive place to keep them. It's ideal for needles, thread, buttons, scissors and the dozens of items needed by homemakers. If you use it for sewing supplies, you'll perhaps want to have the matching mending bench also shown in the picture.

To build them, just trace the pattern on wood, saw out the parts and assemble. Birch plywood was used for building the chest and bench shown, but you may use any of the fancy darker hardwood plywoods now available. Inexpensive, too, when you do it yourself. Just compare the cost with that of a finished jewelry case this size.

To obtain this combination offer of patterns (No. 420422) for the cabinet and mending bench, send $1.25 (includes postage and handling) check or money order to:

An inside look at the Court

er's fighting hard in conference to get a conservative position upheld, only to switch to the other side when he sees he has lost. This occurred, they say, in the Court's unanimous ruling in 1972 that the Government could not wiretap domestic radicals without first obtaining a court-approved warrant — a stunning rebuff to the Nixon Administration. In that case, Burger and Blackmun are said to have originally supported the view that no warrant was necessary, though they eventually switched their votes. And in the abortion case, Burger is said to have fought doggedly for the position that states have the right to prohibit abortions. But when it became clear that a majority would vote the other way, he voted with it.

BURGER HAS attracted further criticism in legal circles and, according to sources close to the Court, generated hostility among the other Justices because of the ways he has chosen to assign opinions.

The power to assign the writing of opinions is tremendously important since the choice of an author often determines whether the opinion will be written on narrow or broad grounds, whether it will be cautiously or sweeping.

WRITING ANY sort of Supreme Court opinion — important or routine — is a long and arduous process. Each Justice runs his chambers differently. One Justice likens the Court to "nine separate law firms." But each Justice has only three law clerks to assist him.

The Justices take their obligation to research opinions so seriously that in one area of law — obscenity — the result led to a lot of snickering both on and off the Court.

The Court has had to deal with the problems of defining obscenity and ruling on its legality since 1957, and it has not yet reached any final conclusions. The subject has become so familiar at the Supreme Court building that a screening room was set up in the basement for the Justices and their clerks to watch the dirty movies submitted as exhibits in obscenity cases.

Justice Douglas never goes to the dirty movies because he thinks all expression — obscene or not — is protected by the First Amendment. And Chief Justice Burger seldom, if ever, goes because he is offended by the stuff. But everyone else shows up from time to time.

Justice Blackmun watches in what is described as "a near catatonic state." Justice Marshall usually laughs his way through it all occasionally nudging a colleague and wisecracking. Justice White rocks back and forth in a straight-backed chair; on leaving, he has been heard to mutter about "filth." Justice Powell, the aristocratic Virginian, was appalled by the first film he saw, "Without Stitch," which is quite mild by today's popular standards. Justice Brennan has gotten used to porn, though it is said that it took him more than a decade to overcome his upbringing on the subject.

THE DIRTY MOVIES have provided some of the Court's most funny, and most private, moments. For example, there was the time that the movie began with a psychiatrist telling the audience about the life of a nymphomaniac named Laura. The psychiatrist's voice continued to narrate while the film showed Laura engaged in various sexual feats. At the end, the psychiatrist came back on the screen.

By this time Justice Marshall was already out of his seat and walking toward the door. The psychiatrist lamented that Laura "is still not cured." Marshall, hand on the door knob, declared, "And neither are you." Then he opened the door, adding, "But I am," and walked out.

Most Justices begin their work on cases during the three-month summer vacation that Congressmen annually complain about. Justice Powell, for example, reads through all the briefs in cases that have already been scheduled for argument in the coming term.

Once Powell is assigned an opinion, either he or his clerk roughs out a draft opinion. Who does the first draft depends on what the workload is in the office at the time. The opinion then goes back and forth between the Justice and his clerk like a shuttlecock, being worked and reworked, drafted and redrafted, until both are satisfied.

Once the opinion is written so that a Justice is satisfied with it, it is circulated to the other Justices, and then the memos begin to fly.

"It can be very difficult to get one Court opinion, even if people agree with the judgment," explains one Justice. "To write a Court opinion you have to sew a big enough umbrella for five guys to get under, and that can require some pretty fancy sewing." It's even harder to write a unanimous opinion as evidenced in the Nixon tapes case.

By the time the tapes case was argued before the Court last July 9, the Justices had all done vast research on the issues at hand. Many had written lengthy memorandums on every conceivable position. Moreover, the Justices had completed all their work for the term and could devote full time to this single case.

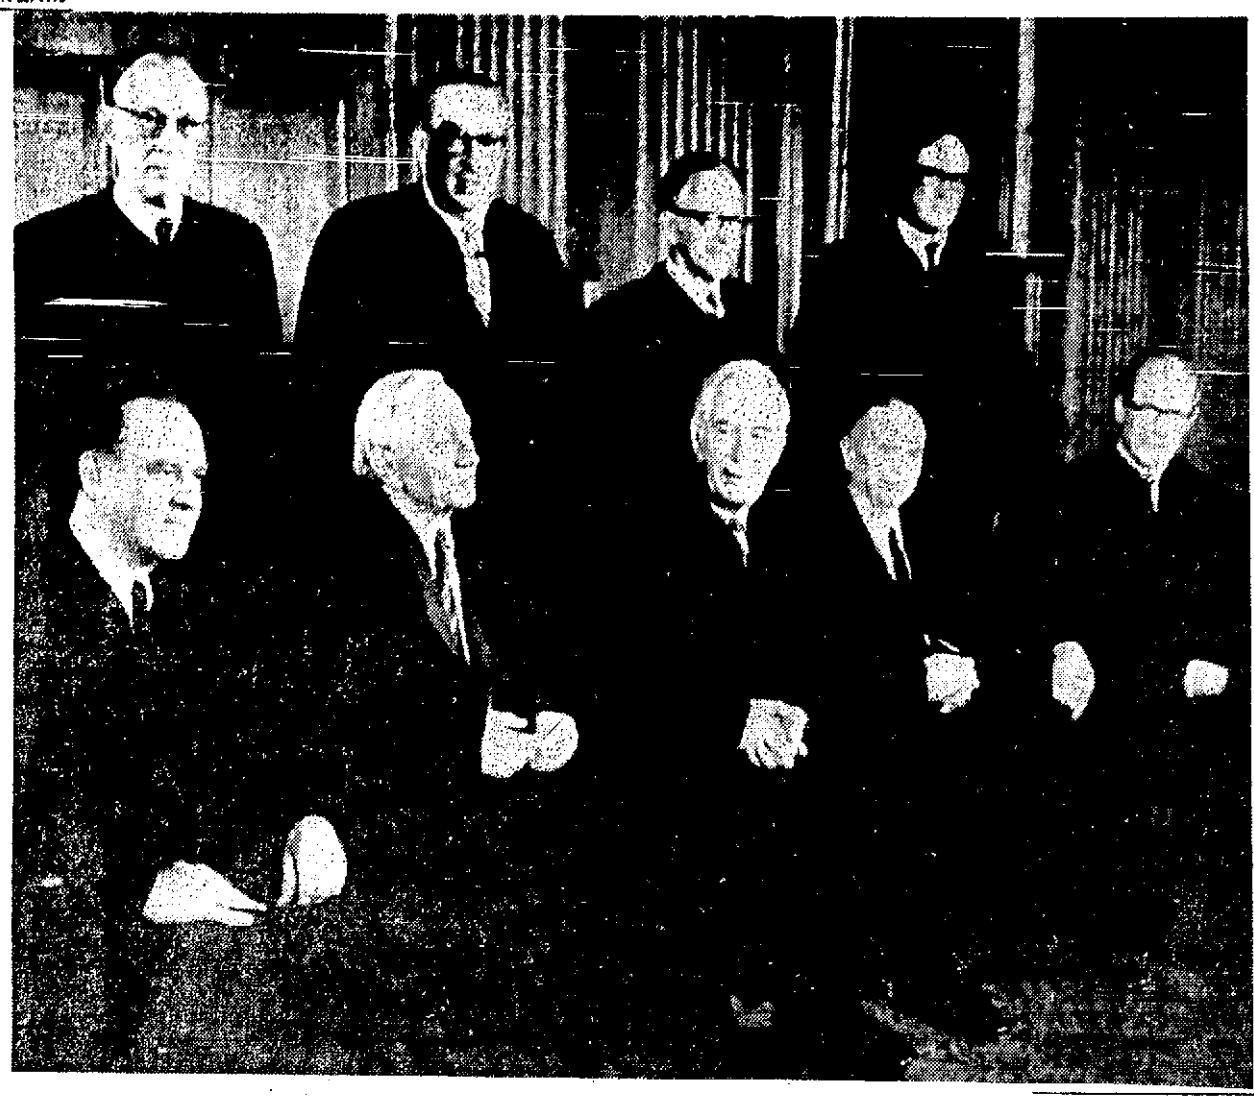

What happens when minor differences cannot be reconciled? As one former law clerk put it, "That's when you fudge it and then the law professors complain that the Court doesn't write clear opinions. Or else you leave out the point altogether. And then the law professors claim that there is a step missing in the Court's logic."

Is the Court's workload too great for nine ordinary men to handle properly? Some believe that it is, and in fact the four Nixon appointees to the Court, led by Chief Justice Burger, have protested lustily that the Court is overworked.

A number of committees, one appointed by Burger, have recommended changes in the Court's structure to limit the number of cases the Court must review.

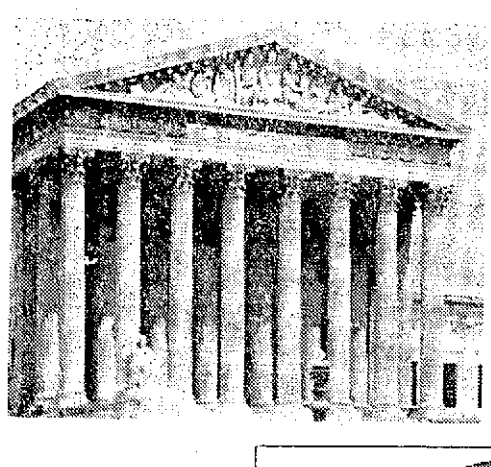

But it is noteworthy that four of the more senior Justices — Douglas, Marshall, Brennan and Stewart — have spoken out against these proposals for change. Indeed, some Justices even object to Burger's hiring of additional administrative staff for the Court. They fear that enlarging the staff may make the Court into another Government bureaucracy.

And if the alternative is for the Justices to cope with a superhuman workload, they declare, that is what the Justices will have to do. "Sure, it's hard and exhausting," remarks one, "but we weren't put here because we're lightweights."

Risks in being old give plan its appeal

Like other Bixby Knolls Towers residents she is not poverty stricken and she is not wealthy. She represents the plight of the middle income aging American who worked and planned for security and who now finds it slipping away.

REV. CLARK HARSHFIELD, chief staff officer and executive director of the foundation, is aware of the difficulty Mrs. Beebe and people like her may be in because it reflects the problems of the entire Life Care Program.

He says if Mrs. Beebe loses her income and is no longer able to pay the monthly fee, the foundation will carry her by providing the difference between what assistance she might receive from welfare and the cost of keeping her the rest of her life.

There is nothing in the contract about this and the foundation has no legal obligation. Harshfield describes the arrangement as a "moral obligation" and he says no one has ever been forced out of the facility because of lack of income.

The cost of caring for people who have been outrun by inflation is offset to some extent, according to Harshfield, by higher accomodation and monthly fees paid by new people coming into the program.

Or as he puts it, "There are charitable motivations on the part of residents coming in and paying these higher fees."

While it is not in the contract language, this charitable motivation is traceable to the first Life Care Programs established by churches at the turn of the century.

The Episcopal Home at Alhambra was the first in Southern California, Harshfield says. Many of the 69 complete care facilities currently operating in the state are based on the teachings of St. Francis whereby the wealthy turn over their assets with the assurance they will be cared for the rest of their lives. Part of that wealth is used to help those less fortunate, according to Harshfield.

California developed special legislation to provide for the licensing and inspection of Life Care facilities and each contract made with a resident is examined by the state health department's continuing care fiscal specialist, Michael P. Bogda Jr.

New contracts are rare at the Long Beach facility. The Life Care Program is virtually sold out and there is little competition in the field, Harshfield says.

Further, he sees little hope of developing other programs in the area because the Department of Housing and Urban Development has refused to approve financing under title 231.

According to Harshfield, HUD approved several loans for retirement housing ten years ago under this provision and of the 26 projects involved, 18 failed, but only two of those were Life Care Programs. Harshfield thinks HUD made a mistake in ruling out Life Care financing on the basis of a one or two per cent failure rate.

In effect, they ruled out help for the broad spectrum of middle-income people who are not eligible for welfare.

AND IT IS THE PLIGHT of these people which makes the usually soft-spoken clergyman angry.

"All of the elderly are caught in a vice. It's vicious. It's terrible. It's nothing short of a national disgrace...what this country's done to its old folks. We have systematically robbed our older people and we've done it now for the last 40 years.

"We have leveled out 25 per cent of our elderly regardless of their heroism in youth or their faithfulness. They have been leveled out on a common plain of $285 to $300 a month...that's all they get...they'll never get anything else."

Yet, the cost of caring for such people has risen dramatically. Harshfield says the cost of living index has risen 50 per cent during the past seven and a half years forcing a 50 per cent increase in monthly fees at Bixby Knolls Towers and a slightly greater hike in the accomodation fee.

Health care costs have gone up 75 to 100 per cent. The cost of providing meals for residents has almost doubled since the facility opened. To complicate the foundation's money problems and heighten its risk, the people in the Life Care Program appear to be healthier and outlive the annuity tables by 25 per cent, Harshfield says.

Most of the Towers 350 residents are in their 70s and 80s. There are 200 who live in apartments, 50 who receive intermediate care and 100 in the convalescent hospital.

Harshfield says they are all guaranteed care for the rest of their lives and the Foundation's net worth of from $5 million to $6 million is behind that promise.

BUT SOMEWHERE between the promises in the brochure and the reality of life at Bixby Knolls Towers things may go awry.

Recently 20 residents signed a list of complaints and mailed them to state health department officials.

In the detailed list residents wonder if the money they are paying into the Life Care Program is being diverted to other foundation enterprises. They point to the Foundation's agreement to build a 1,200-unit, high rise retirement complex on Bunker Hill in downtown Los Angeles.

They complain about neglect and lack of cleaning in the buildings. They are not happy with some of the employes, charging that many do not speak English and are poorly trained. They are most unhappy with the quality of food in the dining rooms, claiming that residents on special diets are poorly served. Finally, they call a recent increase in monthly fees "exorbitant."

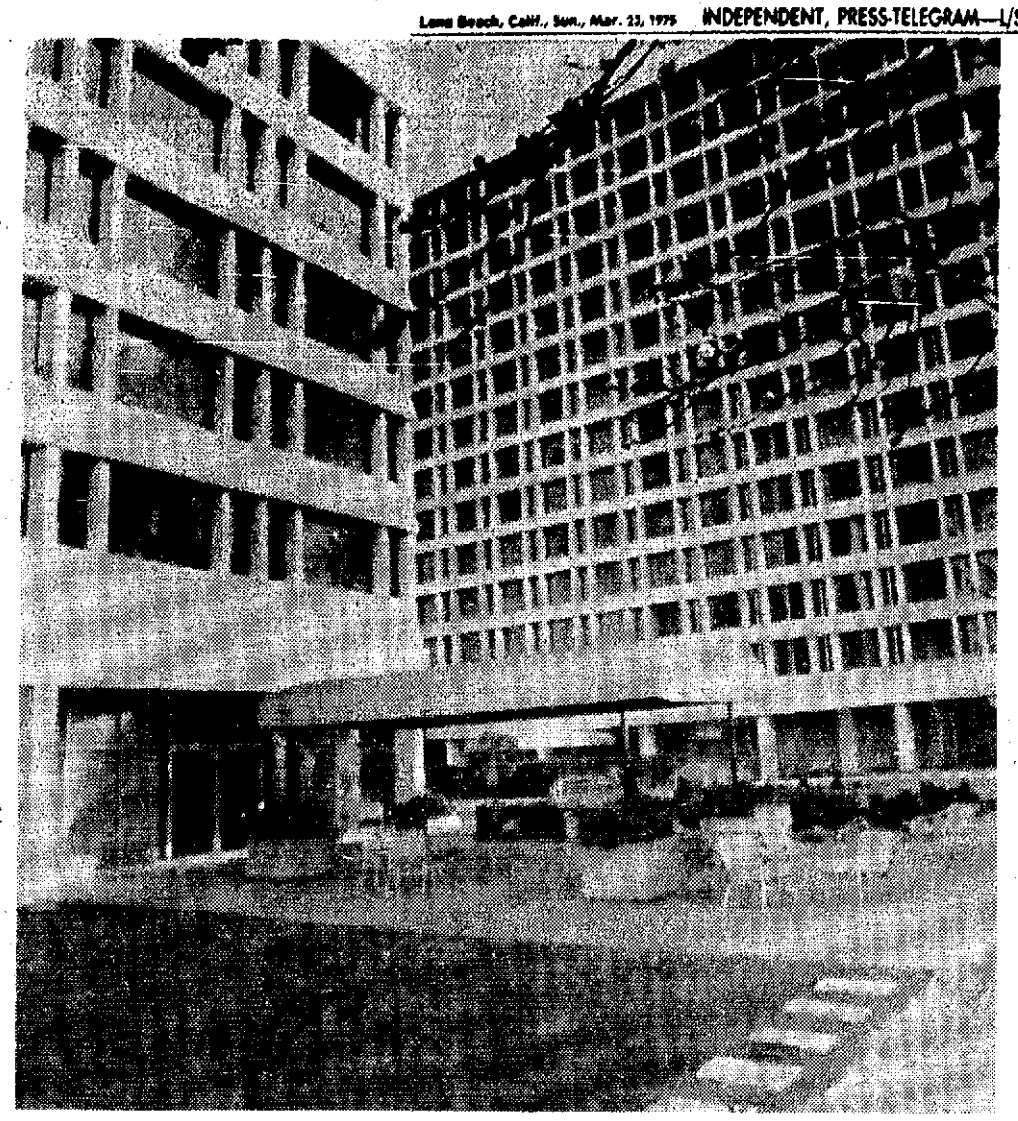

Harshfield says there has been no general decline in the quality of service at Bixby Towers but admits there are problems in the food department.

He also says it is difficult to find qualified employes despite high unemployment rates in this area. He blames the fee increases on inflation.

Perhaps the resident's complaints are valid. Maybe not. Some of them admitted that in spite of their grievances they would again elect to place themselves and their resources at the disposal of Bixby Knolls Towers. And they will do it because there is something they fear more than inflation, more than bad food. That something is loneliness.

Most of the residents are single women in their 70s and 80s who are buying help when they need it...a button pressed in the bathroom to summon aid, a hand in the hallway on the way to dinner, a friend who understands what it is like to be old.

Some of them, like Mrs. Beebe, remember what it was like before. "I became tired of eating a frozen dinner in front of the TV set. My house was in a deteriorating neighborhood and I became a prisoner in my home as night fell. Here one does not have to be lonely if she wants to put out friendship."

BIXBY KNOLLS TOWERS provides Life Care residents with apartments, intermediate care and a convalescent hospital at 3737 Atlantic Ave. For a lump sum payment and a monthly fee, residents are cared for the rest of their lives by the Retirement Housing Foundation of the United Church of Christ.

Creativity with prints rewarded

Ten leading designers and manufacturers have received 1975 "Tommy" awards from the textile and fashion industries for "most innovative use of printed fabrics."

The awards were presented during a gala dinner celebration at the Plaza Hotel in New York.

Winning honors in women's apparel were Giorgio di Sant' Angelo and Crompton for sportswear; James Daugherty and Onondaga for evening wear; Fran Mendez of Leslie Fay and Galley Screen Prints for daytime; Jantzen and DuPont for active sports and swimwear, and Jody Tootique of California and Wamsutta Fabrics for junior styles.

Singled out for their work in loungewear and intimate apparel were Maxime de la Falaise of Swirl and Crantex. Cited in the children's wear category were Ellie Fishman of Don's Korner and FMC. Winners in the men's loungewear category were Lowell Judson of Roytex Robes and Gallery Screen Prints, and in the menswear line, John Karl of Flo Toronto and Crompton.

Gaining recognition in home furnishings was Bill Blass for his Springmaid collection. A special "Retailer of the Year" award was presented to Norman V. Wechsler, president of Saks Fifth Avenue, for creative and continuous promotion and representation of the American printed fashions and fabrics.

"THE NAME Tommy awards," explained Don Edwards, president of the sponsoring American Printed Fabrics Council, "was selected because it symbolizes the art and creativity inherent in the creation of prints. A tommy key is a tool used by craftsmen in producing printed textiles."

The awards wese first presented in 1971 by the Council, whose members include creators and producers of more than two billion linear yards of printed fabric annually. The Council was founded in 1966 for the purpose of telling consumers more about the beauty of prints, helping bring creative talent into the industry and aiding in technological developments.

EVENING elegance for men and women is represented by these Tommy award-winning designs. John Karl created the evening suit in printed velveteen, right, while James Daugherty designed the polyester chiffon print evening gown of filmy floral tiers.

THIS TWO-piece dress designed by Fran Mendez, above, features an art deco gallery print of stylized figures in tones of turquoise, white and peach blend. Printed velveteen was chosen by Giorgio di Sant' Angelo for this evening jumpsuit belted in grosgrain with matching coat. It is a combination of three geometric patterns.

THE TOMMY award itself is a creative grouping of actual tommy keys, each about 12 inches in length, welded into a sculptured abstract and mounted on a marble base.

Weaving: a beautiful art

arts

IN conjunction with the showing of a new collection of Peruvian textiles at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, is the exhibition of some 200 textiles and costumes from around the world. At left is a twill tapestry wool coat from India (Hydrabad) from the late 19th century.

EMBROIDERY, right, is detail from a mantle, dated 1000-1470 A.D. from the north coast of Peru. It is part of a gift to Los Angeles County Museum of Art from the museum's Costume Council.

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Weaving is an ancient skill and often a humble one.

But it can also be an elegant art. It is in this category that a major collection of more than 100 Peruvian textiles belongs.

Assembled during the past 30 years by John Wise, New York dealer-collector, it is a comprehensive survey of the weaving arts of the highlands and coastal areas of Peru from the 5th century B.C. to the 16th century A.D.

Now the collection belongs to Los Angeles County Museum of Art, a gift to the museum from its Costume Council.

"This is an area of the world that was hardly represented in our collection," said Mary Hunt Kahlenberg, the museum's curator of textiles and costumes. "Peruvian textiles long have been considered among the most superb ever produced for the richness of their colors and the variety of their textures. This gift elevates the museum to the position of one of the most important study centers of Peruvian textiles in the country. Almost every weaving technique in the world is represented, as well as some unique to Peru."

THERE ARE MANTLES, ponchos, belts, hats, skirts and turbans for both men and women, made from wool of llamas and alpacas as well as from native brown cotton and feathers used in later periods. Natural dyes from vegetables, shellfish and bark give a great range of shades and colors.

A rare piece in the collection is a gauze weave shirt from the South Coast Inca culture. Made between 1000 and 1470, the brown cotton garment looks sheer and fragile, yet is strongly woven.

Most of the costumes and ceremonial hangings in the collection were associated with burial rites of the Peruvian Indians. Thus they are more elaborate than those for everyday wear and depict symbolic and often highly abstract animal motifs.

The collection is being researched in preparation for a major catalog. The exhibition will continue through July 27 in the Ahmanson Gallery of the museum, 5905 Wilshire Blvd.

LANDMARKS is the subject of a photography contest sponsored by Docents of Los Cerritos Rancho, 4600 Virginia Road, as part of the fun and excitement of an old-fashioned Chautauqua Day. The celebration will coincide with Long Beach Regional Arts Council's annual festival.

As for "Landmarks" — what is or what isn't — that's for the photographer to interpret.

There are, however, some defined rules: 1. Contest is open to camera buffs, all ages. 2. Two categories: black and white, and color. Prints must be 5 by 7 inches and be suitably mounted. 3. Entries must be labeled on back with name, address, telephone number and landmark identification. 4. Deadline is April 25. First prize in each category will be $25; merchandise and gift certificates will be given for second and third places. Photos will be displayed at the Rancho May 11, Chautauqua Day, from 1 to 5 p.m. 5. Photos may be picked up May 14 from 1 to 5 p.m. Enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope for return by mail.

Entries will be judged by Roger Coar of the Independent Press-Telegram; Harvey Tuttle of Tuttle's Camera Shop; and Jasper Nutter, Long Beach custom photographer. Entry blanks may be obtained at all Long Beach libraries and many camera shops.

JAN ADLMANN, director of Long Beach Museum of Art spoke Thursday at the third annual Symposium on Legal Problems in Museum Administration which met at the new federal museum of modern art, the Joseph Hirshhorn in Washington, D.C. Adlmann is one of the few recipients of a Smithsonian grant for this conference which is conducted jointly by the American Bar Association, the American Association of Museums and the Smithsonian Institution.

While still at the symposium Friday in Washington, he spoke at a Long Beach Junior League general meeting in Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. His presentation there was by a videotape specially prepared for the group. This dramatized the museum's increasing use of television as an outreach resource.

LAKEWOOD ARTIST GUILD invites the public to share Darwin Duncan's impression of the desert through his oil paintings at the guild's meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Mayfair Park, South Street and Clark Avenue. Darwin is retired from Orange Coast College where he was an arts instructor, but continues teaching private classes and travels as a lecturer-demonstrator.

Winners of the guild's Spring Membership Show are, in order, Ruth Eyrick, Bernice Houser and Billie Greer. They will represent the guild at Downey Art Museum's Round Robin Exhibitions.

TWO VISITING professors of painting at Long Beach State University will show their work in Galleries A and B through April 6. The two — Paul Wonner and Walter Askin — were honored at a public reception Monday evening. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays. The galleries will be closed Saturdays and holidays, including the Easter recess Monday through March 30. Both artists have distinguished backgrounds in the arts in this country and abroad.

Brendel in sole recital

Pianist Alfred Brendel will give his only Los Angeles recital this season Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Center Pavilion.

Brendel's program for this Los Angeles Philharmonic Celebrity Recital lists works by Mozart, Beethoven and Schubert, three composers with whose music the distinguished pianist has identified himself. Critics have written, "In this music he has few peers and no masters."

Three contrasting sonatas are on the Pavilion recital schedule. They are "Sonata in B Flat" by Mozart, "Sonata in F Minor" (Appassionata) by Beethoven and "Sonata in D" by Schubert.

An international artist who has become a favorite of Philharmonic audiences, Brendel has achieved a pre-eminent position among the world's great pianists through appearances with major orchestras, in recitals, at music festivals and through his extensive catalog of recordings.

BRENDEL also will appear with the Los Angeles Philharmonic under Zubin Mehta Thursday and Friday at 8:30 p.m. and next Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Pavilion. He will play Beethoven's "Concerto No. 1."

At the pre-concert special Friday from 7 to 7:45 p.m., the pianist will perform Beethoven's "Sonata in E Flat." The special is free to ticket holders of the 8:30 p.m. concert.

Auditions are slated

Actors Theater, sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, will hold auditions Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for its June production of "Perfect Pitch." Tryouts are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Bixby Park, 130 Cherry Ave. Monday only, they will be held in the Activity Room. Tuesday and Wednesday, they will be in the Social Hall.

"Perfect Pitch" is a contemporary comedy in two acts. The cast calls for three men and four women of all ages. Jane Desmon, instructor of drama at Long Beach City College, will direct.

MARY LOU FRAZIER
...Rare collector's cognac from France

IT ISN'T TRUE that the Chez Cary's ceremony for serving its Remy Martin collector's cognac is exclusively for millionaires. Some of those who order this rare cognac — at $30 per glass — are people with ordinary incomes who enjoy wining and dining like millionaires for a few hours.

The Chez Cary, 571 S. Main St., Orange, is one of the world's finest restaurants, a haute cuisine establishment which has won countless dining awards. It has de luxe French-style service by captain and waiter teams. Despite its opulence, the Chez is a friendly place with gracious hospitality that makes its guests feel at ease.

Its collector's cognac ceremony is a shining example of the Chez's ability to treat its guests like visiting royalty. The ceremony is a creation of Mary Lou Frazier, the restaurant's general manager; maitre d' J.B. Balesky and Ray Barrientos, beverage director. Because of its haute cuisine reputation, the Chez was able to obtain nine bottles of the special Remy Martin 250th anniversary champagne brandy which costs $275 a bottle.

Remy Martin was founded in France in 1725. Its anniversary brandy is a blending of family heirloom stocks, none less than 50 years old and some more than 100 years old. The United States was allocated 2,000 bottles of the brandy. Each bottle is individually signed and numbered.

The Chez Cary's presentation is elegantly theatrical. The bottle is brought to the table on an ornate, red-velvet-covered cart. The bottle lies in a custom-made wooden case. Its sterling silver cork pull and gleaming shot glasses are beneath a glass dome. With a smile, the captain proffers the bottle and a certificate about its history to the table's host. Then he pours and flames the cognac with dramatic gestures.

Open every night, the Chez isn't necessarily overly expensive. It is a la carte, so you can spend as little or as much as you wish. An elaborate entree with fresh vegetables and no other accompaniments can be less than $10 per person. But to really savor the Chez's refinements one should plan to spend more, ordering its kingly appetizers, soups, salads, imaginative desserts and wonderful wines.

The Chez is about a 25-minute drive from Long Beach via the Garden Grove Freeway. Reservations are necessary. The number is (714) 542-3595.

SADLY, AN ERA is ending. Next month, the Hilltop Star Room and Steak House atop Signal Hill will close its doors, doubtlessly for good.

Band leader Reed Williams, who has owned and operated the Hilltop for the last 12 years, has lost his lease. He plans a new restaurant — to be called Reed Williams' — at 730 E. Broadway, present site of the Victor Hugo. Reed Williams', with dining and dancing, will open around the end of April or early in May.

Known as "the last of the old-time supper clubs," the Hilltop is an authentic nostalgia restaurant and night club, still in mint condition. It first opened in the 1940s. Except for subtle improvements, it has remained relatively unchanged down through the years. Because of the nationwide nostalgia craze, it has been unusually successful in recent years, attracting numerous young adults as well as older patrons who have enjoyed taking their friends to see "something different." The Hilltop's prize location at 2300 E. 23rd St. on the high slope of Signal Hill has given its guests incomparable views stretching from Palos Verdes far into Orange County.

The Hilltop has been so popular that Reed and his wife Maxine planned a complete renovation. They were forced to drop those plans when the owners of the building declined to extend their lease. Long-range plans for the redevelopment of Signal Hill call for high rise condominiums on top of the hill and other condominiums and town houses on the slopes, including the Hilltop's site.

Plans for the closing of the Hilltop have inspired many of its longtime patrons to drop in for "farewell" parties. The supper club's attractions are many. Reed and his trio are renowned for their special arrangements of the big band swing tunes of the '30s and '40s, but they also play the music of today.

The restaurant (closed Mondays) has early bird dinners Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 6 to 7, offering juicy, tender prime rib of beef or choice eastern steak for $3.95 plus a 10 per cent surcharge for inflation. Those dinners are top-notch values, fresh and delectable, including soup du jour or large crisp salad, big baked Idaho potato, coffee and warm rolls with butter. The regular menu, also served from 6 p.m. on, features a variety of the best entrees, $3.95 to $8.25, including luscious sea foods, the king-sized, solid-cut top sirloin steak, lamb chops, broiled chicken, lobster-steak combination and beautiful hot prime rib and steak sandwiches.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Hopes to grow with downtown

It all started in Florida. Following a year in mangagement training at the University of Florida, today's chef of the week, Tom Lansford, joined a hardware department store.

A young woman named Walla, who is now his wife, was the order clerk assigned to him. He says, "Walla's family lived in California and I had always mildred flanary wished to come here, so she finally agreed and we came West."

That was in February, 1950. He immediately joined Imperial Hardware and Paint Store. Now, with 25 years of service, he is its manager.

Lansford was born and educated in Americus, Ga. During his years with Imperial, he was sent to Newport Beach to open a branch there in the Harbor View Center, a development of the Irvine Company. While in Newport, Lansford served as director of the center association for a year and as its president for two years prior to his transfer back to the City of Long Beach.

Lansford says, "I left Newport with a sad heart! After much effort by all concerned, the center became a success. We have many friends there. They are a great bunch of people."

THE LONG BEACH store is the larger one, demanding more from everyone. He says, "We look for good things in the future for it. We are very excited about the redevelopment in the downtown area. Just hope all will get behind the effort to make this the most attractive city anywhere."

He and Walla have two sons. Tom Jr., 23, and his wife, Michele, live in Lakewood. Ross, 20, still lives at home. The Lansfords are active in First Lutheran Church.

As for hobbies, our chef goes in for merchandising, bowling and gardening — the latter producing fresh vegetagles all summer.

Walla adds, "Tom is really a splendid cook. In fact, on his day off, he always prepares the dinner. He does make a mess of the kitchen, however, leaving the clean-up chores for me."

Our chef's favorite dish is fried chicken. He inherited his liking for it from his mother, known for her fine Southern Cooking. He apparently believes that everyone knows how to fry chicken, however, because today he's come up with a recipe for Southern Pecan Pie.

SOUTHERN PECAN PIE

Make pastry for one 9-inch pie crust.

FILLING:

- 3 eggs
- 2/3 cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup dark corn syrup

Mix in 1 cup pecan halves.

Pour into pastry-lined pan. Bake until set and pastry is nicely browned. Cool. Serve slightly warm or cold.

Shop carefully, carpet major purchase

Carpeting and rugs add a new quality and dimension to rooms. And they do a lot more. They provide a major area of color, unifying the total decorating scheme.

The soft floor covering also adds a feeling of warmth and charm to a home, as well as softening footsteps and providig resilient comfort underfoot.

Buying wall-to-wall carpeting, room-fit carpet, or a room-size rug represents a major home furnishing investment as well as aesthetic satisfaction. How can you make the best selection? Here are some guidelines that will help.

With these in mind, do comprison shoping before making your decision. Do not succumb to extravagant advertisements of "bargain" carpeting, particularly if prices quoted are sharply lower than those of merchandisers known to be reputable. But, do not overlook authentic sales at reliable stores. And don't hesitate to ask detailed questions of the carpeting salesman or the store's carpet buyer. Today's carpet market has become quite complex.

THE FIRST consideration is the amount of traffic your carpeting will have to take. Buy the best quality within your budget for the heavy traffic areas — living room, family room, hallway and stairs. Middle grades are suitable for dining room or study, principal bedrooms. Economy grades are satisfactory for a less-used guest bedroom.

Secondly, remember that the surface pile gets the impact of footfalls and must be wear-resistant. Surface pile with the greatest density is best. Brush your hand over it to feel if it is thick, tight and springy. Fold a corner to see how much backing shows.

The surface pile may be made of yarns consisting of a natural or man-made fiber or a combination.

The type of fiber does not guarantee quality, but its basic characteristics contribute to carpet performance.

FOR EXAMPLE, wool has the most complete balance of desirable characteristics. These include excellent resilience, wear and soil resistance, a soft, subtle and warm appearance and the acceptance of deep, beautiful dyes. It is more expensive than carpeting of man-made fibers. But there's nothing more luxurious than walking in your bare feet on wool carpeting.

Nylon is used in amost half the carpets manufactured in the U.S. It is found in a range from expensive living room carpet to inexpensive scatter rugs. Nylon is noted for its abrasion-resistance. Its appearance can be dull or have the brassy glint of man-made fibers.

Soil resistance is poor to excellent, depending upon whether the fiber was engineered to combat soil. Nylon carpet yarns made from short fibers may fuzz and "pill" under hard usage. Continuous filament nylon is preferable. Also look for nylon treated for static-resistance. Take note of detailed information on carpet or rug tag.

POLYESTER is increasing in use as a carpet fiber, accounting for 20 per cent of carpet pile. In quality carpeting, it has a soft feel and good wear-resistance. Its resilience is less than that of nylon so that denser, deeper pile construction is needed to give comparable performance. It also may have a bit of a shiny wink to it.

Acrylic closely resembles wool in abrasion-resistance, color-fastness, softness and warmth, though it is not equal in all characteristics in the same price bracket. Polypropylene, commonly called "olefin," has excellent resistance to water-based stains, moderate resistance to oil-based stains. It is a fiber that must be used in a shallow pile to offset its poor resilience.

READER service: Write for free phamphlet, "Questions you should ask yourself before you buy carpet." It includes information on color and texture selection, types of carpet and rug backing, buying on a budget. Twin towers: a tale of two historic halls

By HERB SHANNON
I,P-T Travel Editor

DEARBORN, Michigan - What you see is what you get in Greenfield Village, Henry Ford's living legacy of Americana. With one or two exceptions such as the towering Independence Hall centerpiece of the 260-acre park museum complex, the buildings you enter and the artifacts they contain are the real things.

Nearly 100 structures of historical distinction dating from colonial times to the recent past have been transported from nearby and distant sites for reassembly here in appropriate settings.

As restored, they would be instantly familiar to those who worked and lived in them: Abraham Lincoln, Noah Webster, Stephen Foster, Robert Frost, Luther Burbank, George Washington Carver, Alfred Steinmetz and a great many more.

WITHIN McGUFFEY'S carefully reconstructed Little Red Schoolhouse, the log cabins, brick workshops and colonial clapboards are priceless relics of their times. What insurance value can be put on irreplaceable objects like the rocking chair in which Lincoln was shot, the tools Wilbur and Orville Wright used to attain their impossible dream and the first crude examples of Thomas Edison's wizardry?

Dominating all these tangible testimonials to great Americans is a replica of the birthplace of the ideas and institutions which shaped their lives. The clock tower of the hallowed premises where the founders of the nation met to sign on the dotted line remains in Philadelphia. The Greenfield Village version is a Dearborn duplicate.

Price was no object when Henry Ford was accumulating his costly pledge of allegiance to the country which elevated him from mechanic to multi-millionaire. It is said he came close to making the city fathers of Philadelphia an offer they couldn't refuse for the original edifice.

BUT WHEN HE wisely shifted gears to plan for a substitute structure, the motor magnate insisted on absolute authenticity. The first blueprints for the Michigan museum masterwork outlined some suggested corrections of colonial architectural oddities. The final reproduction is identical to the original down to the last out-of-context cornice.

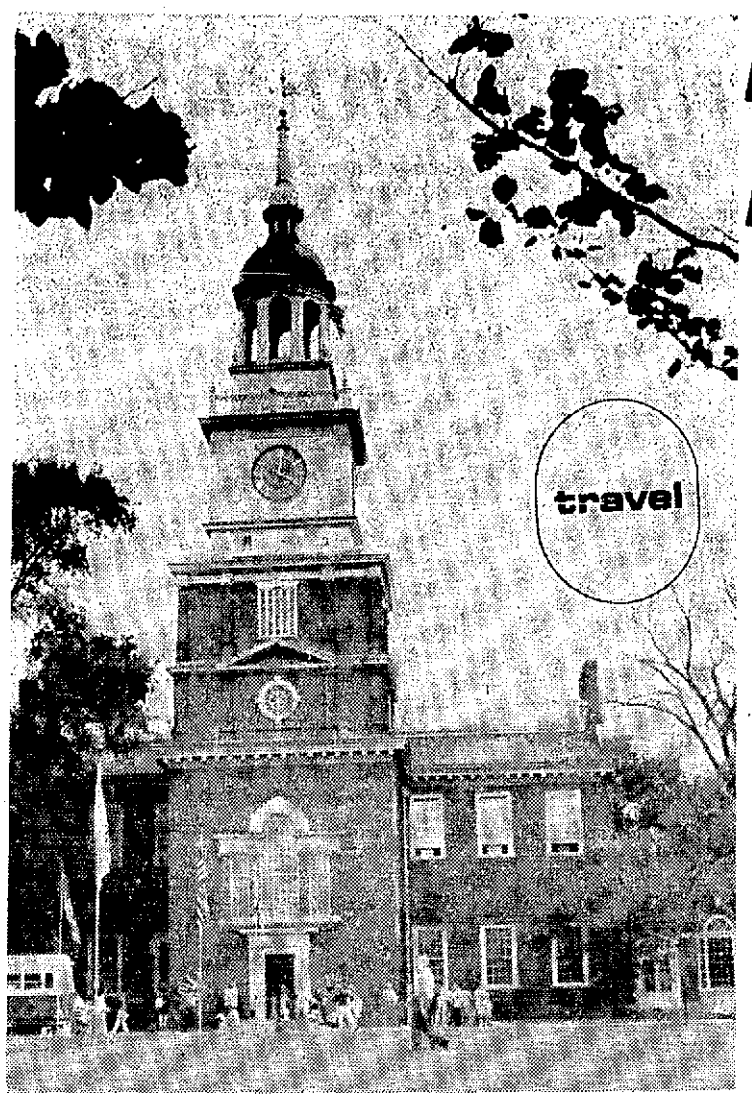

This Bicentennial preview visit via American Airlines' convenient non-stop DC10 flight from Los Angeles to nearby Detroit Metropolitan Airport is neither a sentimental journey nor a nostalgia trip. It is more a matter of making up for lost time.

In 30 years of local residence before departing Dearborn in a California-bound covered wagon, I regrettably never took the opportunity to tour Greenfield Village. Now American's Long Beach-built jumbo jet has made it possible by condensing the two-week trip in a canvas-covered wooden body station wagon to fou fast hours.

I HAVE PASSED through the portals of Dearborn's Independence Hall to view the antique auto models from T to A and the V8 versions I helped build when I was known as Badge No. Z-7778 on the production line. I also have toured the giant Rouge plant nearby to see my former station on the conveyor belt snaking through the cavernous rolling mill, then the world's largest industrial facility.

It has taken two full days to catch up with the changing times, and there are discoveries still to be made in the sprawling facilities which draw nearly two million visitors annually. This year the non-profit Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum have planned a series of special advance Bicentennial events designed for a new record attendance.

The script for the recreation of Revolutionary War preparations has been polished by rehearsals of an 18th century military muster to be held regularly on the green fields of the village museum. Participants dressed in American and British uniforms of the period will demonstrate drills and historic skirmishes with authentic weapons of the time, including the firing of a cannon used in the 1776 insurrection.

CLOCK tower structure forming entrance to Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich., is an exact replica of Independence Hall in Philadelphia, down to the original "mistakes" of colonial architects.

THE FORD MUSEUM also has prepared a traveling exhibition commemmorating the coming Bicentennial. The "Industrial Heritage U.S.A." caravan will tour the country in 26 huge vans to illustrate the changes brought by industrial development in the past 200 years.

One of the 26 major industries participating in the project is McDonnell Douglas Corp., with a display on air transportation ranging from a model of the Wright Brothers boxkite "Flyer" to the modern Douglas Aircraft Co. jetliners produced in Long Beach.

The traveling exhibition will whet tourist appetities for the Bicentennial from coast to coast this year and next except for the months of July and August, when it returns to Greenfield Village as part of the display in Henry Ford Museum.

East readies for Bicentennial crush

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

Bicentennial fever has engulfed the East Coast.

Everywhere from Boston to Washington, D.C. there is construction going on — new office buildings, high rises, torn up streets for subways and refurbishing of Revolutionary monuments.

If your travel plans in 1976 include a trip to the sites and sounds of the Bicentennial celebration, make your reservations early.

Philadelphia, for instance, has trouble accommodating its current population. From a tourist vantage point, I don't know where it will put all the Bicentennial visitors. It took us almost one hour to wend our way through the downtown area at the noon hour during the off season.

Of course, we were lost, but that's a fate most first time visitors encounter. (Maybe all the Bicentennial tourists will come on buses.) Our destination was the famous restaurant near the harbor, Bookbinder's. It lived up to its reputation.

Like most large cities, Philly has one-way streets, which makes navigation more difficult for tourists — its pedestrians compound the problem by walking against green lights. Parking near Independence Square is a problem, too. And, walking from a parking lot, one is likely to come face-to-face with a policeman on horseback, plodding along the side streets.

INDEPENDENCE HALL is where it all began for America and it's worth seeing. It's a national historical park, so admission is free and tours run frequently.

The Liberty Bell is ensconced there, too. There are some interesting facts uncovered about the bell. It was ordered from England by the Pennsylvania Assembly in 1751 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Charter of Privileges, the democratic constitution William Penn granted his colony. It was to toll in the state house.

The bell cracked while being tested and two workmen in Philadelphia recast it. Because the tone was unsatisfactory, the bell was cast a second time. It then served as Pennsylvania's official bell on public occasions until 1835, when according to tradition, it cracked while tolling for the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall. It is this "cracked" bell that is on display. It also spells Pensylvania wrong on the inscription.

The interesting curiosity was to watch the tourists dutifully line up to be photographed by the Liberty Bell and then stand in front of the crack!

The struggle for American independence lasted eight years and except for the period when the British occupied Philadelphia, the war effort and the government were run from Independence Hall (the original buildings are still standing).

After formation of the new government under the Constitution in 1790, the capital was in Philadelphia for 10 years. So, Philadelphia is where it's happening for the Bicentennial in 1976 — I only hope transportation and traffic are more efficent by then.

FARTHER NORTH is Boston with its Bunker Hill monument as tribute to the Revolutionary battle fought there. For a fee, you can go to the top of the tower for a panoramic view of the city. There also are tape recordings to rent.

For a big city, Boston is different — few high rises dot its skyline. Its streets are patterned in squares after the original part of the settlement. It's impossible to drive there because everyone double parks. It's like driving a maze.

The tallest building is the John Hancock headquarters, whose glass windows keep falling out because the glass was not structured to withstand the wind velocity at that heighth. Nearby is the second tallest building, Prudential Center, which offers a truly panoramic view from its Skywalk. There's Boston Commons, Harvard and MIT Universities, the Charles River, Boston University and the Harbor, where the infamous tea party took place.

Boston, at least has a transit system that works. Trains rumble past on raised tracks carrying commuters to and from outlying areas.

Whatever your plans, check for room availability way in advance to avoid disappointment.

DESERT BLOOMS IN BAJA

No tourist boom in Chile

stan delaplane

Santiago, Chile

"There's no outward change here since the military junta took over in September, 1973. The political slogans that used to appear on every vertical piece of wall have been painted over. The city — 3 million people looks unusually clean."

(We got a travel reporter into Chile. He was there during the Allende regime and saw some of the earlier street fighting.

"The weather is 81 degrees. It's the end of summer and beginning of fall. Money exchange is 1800 escudos to $1 U.S. Last time I was here it was an unrealistic 156 escudos to $1.

"Of course nobody exchanged at the official rate. The black market rate was about today's 1800 to $1. You were hustled to change dollars the minute you got into the airport taxi. Hotel clerks followed you right up to your room.

"There still is a black market. About 20 per cent more than the official 1800, but it's very dangerous."

"THE BEST SUITE in the Carrera Sheraton is $25.55. A bottle of Chilean champagne and a bowl of fresh fruit in the room. From the 14th floor we look out on the snow-covered Andes — it's close to ski season.

"Moneda Palace — where Allende was shot or committed suicide depending on which side you're on — looks the same on the outside. But a lot of work on the inside shows it took a beating during the fighting."

"Many new cars on the street. Mostly French Peugeots, Citroens and Italian Fiats all assembled here. A rent car cost me $165 a week. Not too bad since you get a lot of mileage on these small cars.

"Gasoline is 73 cents a gallon — and I just got used to paying $1.50 in Spain, $1.40 in England.

"Restaurants are cheap at this exchange rate. Dinner for two with Chilean wine cost $7.44 at Restaurante Arabe. There's a 10 per cent service charge. Waiters expect 7 per cent more."

"Nobody knows how the coming season will be for the international skiers. Portillo, where I skied two years ago, is only an hour and a half from Santiago. Magnificent ski runs — you can take a whole day to ski between resorts."

"WE DROVE DOWN to Vina del Mar, the big beach resort for Santiago. The place was almost empty. We stayed at the fashionable Hotel Bernardo O'Higgins, and the clerk nearly wept when we check out after two days. Said there was nobody else in the house.

"The two Sheraton hotels in Santiago were doing all right. Sheraton is owned by I.T. and T. which has been under fire as a political arm of the CIA — or vice versa.

"But while I was here, the military government took over the telephone company, also owned by I.T. and T. So who's sorry now? I couldn't find out."

"No doubt but that the stories of military shooting has damaged tourist business.

"Braniff Airlines just about owns the traffic into this part of the world and they're not pushing Chile. Too bad because the price is good for the U.S. dollar.

"CHILE RUNS 2,600 miles in a strip between the Andes and the Pacific. (At one point it's only 56 miles wide.) You get a wide range of climate from desert to a Mediterranean weather.

"The double room at Vina del Mar was $13.35. You get around by hansom cabs almost anywhere for $1. For $5 you could probably buy the horse. Dinner for five at Hotel La Bahia ran $13.88 including the service charge.

"We drove north a half hour to Renaca. Many string and bikini girls on the beach. But the night club and amusement park had only 50 people. It's designed to amuse 5,000 — Ferris wheels and many dance floors.

No military on the streets. The national police — Carabineros — patrol the roads. Bust the speed limit and the carabinero who spots you phones the next post. They have the citation already written out when you arrive.

"I was glad to see them nail two drivers who'd been tail-gating me. You appear in the district where you were caught."

GAL-IVANTING

Exploring Baja is pleasurable

choral pepper

When Herman Cortez, the Spanish conquistador, dallied too long in La Paz in 1535, his wife resorted to a feminine ploy that wives of Baja's visiting fishermen have been using ever since. She dispatched an alarming message to warn him that if he failed to come home at once, the new Viceroy would appoint someone else in his place.

Cortez returned across the Gulf of California immediately and thereby delayed the colonization of this Baja California peninsula until Jesuit missionaries arrived 162 years later.

La Paz today holds little more superficial excitement for visitors than it did then, unless you go there to fish. Cobblestone streets and narrow walks are crowded during daylight hours, chiefly because there is nowhere else to go. Flame trees drop red petals, splashing the air with scent.

IT IS Idaho, Iowa, Indiana, any place where life is contained within the framework of an isolated village. But here the sun shines all year, nights are fanned by sea breezes and prickly pear cactus grows in empty fields.

You can get there by jet from the U.S. or the Mexican mainland. You can arrive there by ferry boat from Mazatlan. You can drive down from the U.S. border in your own passenger car on the new transpeninsular highway.

BUT WHY would anyone want to come here, where there are no night clubs, no fancy shops, no gourmet restaurants?

Well, I'll tell you. It's the people who are the attraction. They have lived so self-sufficiently on this remote peninsula that there isn't anything that they need from you. The hospitality they extend is genuine.

They will not overcharge, short change or steal. You need not hire a boy to watch your car while your back is turned. It is a whole different scene from the Mexican Mainland.

In spite of the seemingly barren land, oases here produce guava, coconuts, papaya, corn and beans. There is always plenty of fish. By sharing what they have and spreading themselves into rancheritas and villages, Baja natives manage to live with dignity on the bounty of land and sea. You find no beggers here.

UNTIL THE Mazatlan Ferry was launched a few years ago, Mexico traditionally neglected Baja. Then, to everybody's astonishment, when it became accessible, Gringos appeared by the hundreds to camp on its long naked beaches and explore its sun-drenched desert.

They cared not that the town's best restaurant was a ramshackle hut with a chalked-up sign announcing Pescado Exquisito. They laughed while they ate the exquisite fish and fell in love with the people.

They even laughed and put up with the shabby La Perla hotel until Los Arcos down the street built a covey of fancy air-conditioned, thatched-roof bungalows around a swimming pool. Then another hotel took shape.

It's never too late to call a Travel Agent.

That big tourist attraction you traveled a thousand miles to see is closed. How could you know?

A Travel Agent would have known. It's his or her business to know things you can't. Like the best values in hotels, transportation and sightseeing.

With an Agent you'll never pay more than the going rate. And since they usually know about special bargains, you'll often pay a lot less.

And it's free. All this service you get usually costs you nothing. Because for the most part a Travel Agent relies on commissions from hotels, airlines, etc. for income.

So if you want to find travel bargains—like the Western bargains in this travel section—Travel Agents know how. They ought to. They're bargains themselves.

Visitors go where wild animals roam

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

ESCONDIDO — Another of those delightful mini-vacations still found so plentifully in Southern California is the San Diego Wild Animal Park (SDWAP), some 100 good-highway miles from Long Beach and 30 northeast of downtown San Diego.

It's a particularly pleasant "safari" by car this time of year, too.

Green grass covers and adorns the gentle Coast Range, rainbow-hued wild flowers blossom on many a rolling hillside. And although San Diego County's back country rapidly is filling with expensive homes, there still is more than a hint of an older, pleasantly rural atmosphere in the growing suburbs around SDWAP's San Pascual Valley location.

We first saw the park on a recent Saturday morning about 105 minutes after leaving Long Beach on the San Diego Freeway. Parkbound motorists turn off this interstate route at Oceanside and drive east on State 78 to Escondido and the park just beyond.

State road markers south of Escondido are less than adequate, however, and after winding through beautiful, unmarked ex-urban countryside, we were surprised — and pleased — to reach our final destination without retracing so much as a city block. A half-dozen signs really would help enormously.

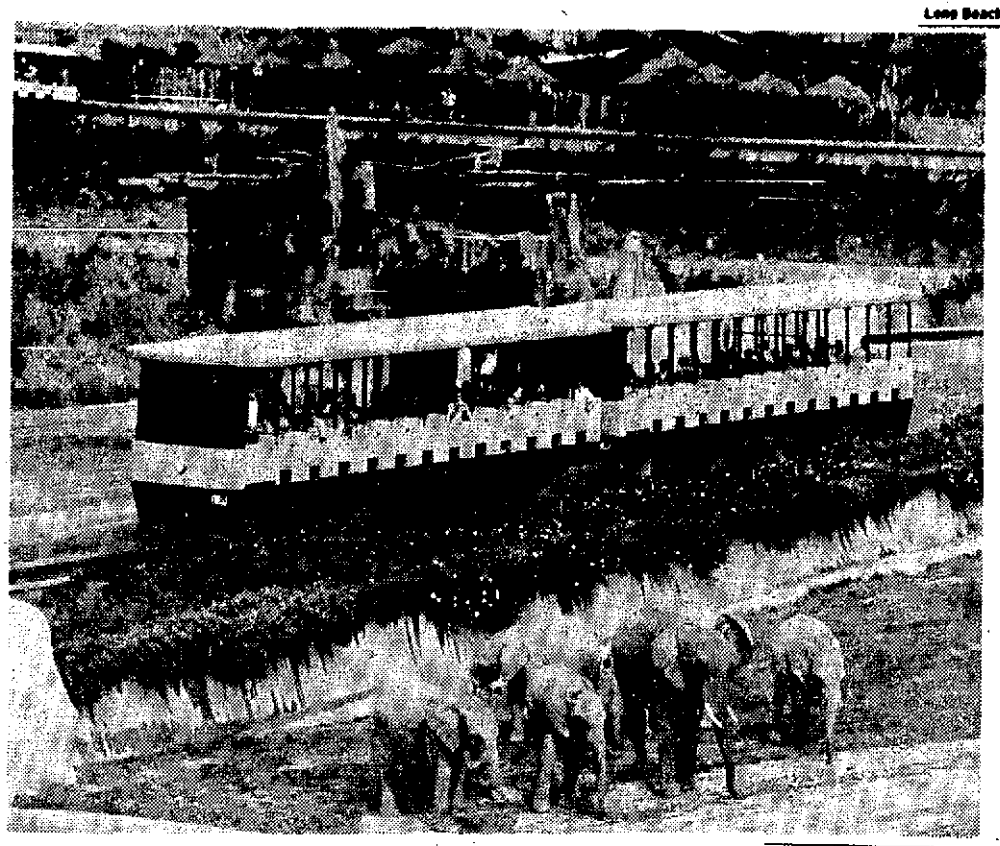

Although we can't vouch for it from first hand experence, perhaps a better approach would be via U.S. 395 from Escondido south to a Rancho Parkway, which, according to one map at least, links highway with park.

THE PARK itself is an 1,800-acre preserve where numerous endangered animal species from Africa, Asia and Australia live in a locale somewhat similar to their home environments. As Hollywood moviemakers discovered so long ago, California — geographically and otherwise — has something for everybody!

There are interesting similarities between this "second campus" of the world famous San Diego Zoo and Lion Country Safari of Orange County. Both display essentially tropical animals leading a more or less natural existence in the "wild" and display caged animals. Each has its eating places and shops, and charges admission.

There are differences. At the close-in attraction, visitors drive through in their own cars, guided by cassette-taped travelogues. In San Diego, on the other hand, a ground-level electric monorail passenger train makes a five-mile loop around the perimeter, "crossing" three continents in about 30 minutes.

A youthful guide on each run of the Wgasa Bush Line starts and stops it at strategic spots where wildebeests, strange birds, lions and a host of other creatures great and small may be observed. (It helps to have field glasses, by the way; these can be rented for $1 a day.) Another plus here is the Kilimanjaro hiking trail, a little more than a mile across terrain strongly resembling the high veldt Kenya country Ernest Hemingway described so well in his short stories.

It's a chance to get physically closer to the animals — who, needless to say, are kept from getting too close to the visitor.

OTHER FEATURES include three-a-day live animal shows with elephants, horses and other critters displayed by a trainer. Youngsters particularly are taken by this offering. There is a Congo River fishing camp, said to be an accurate replica of an original, where a "river" cataracts through a realistic rain jungle.

travel

Port of entry to all this is Nairobi Village, site of the monorail depot and starting point for the African trail. Food service is available there, along with shops, an aviary and various small animal displays.

Although this wild animal park is 30 miles northeast of downtown, it nevertheless is firmly inside San Diego city limits. A shoestring strip links country and city, may someday prevent or curb the excesses of runaway overdevelopment.

San Diego Zoo officials began talking of a wild animal park in 1959, broke ground in 1969, opened SDWAP to the public in 1972. Both the facility in Balboa Park and its younger sister are controlled by the San Diego Zoological Association, which maintains scientific study centers in each.

SDWAP admissions, subject to change: adults, $1.25, under 16, free; aboard the Wgasa Busi Line, adults, $1.75, 12-15 years, $1.25, under 12, 75 cents.

PASSENGERS aboard the Wgasa Bush Line monorail have perfect spot to observe African elephants in natural setting at San Diego Wild Animal Park. The train takes visitors on a five-mile trip through three continents where 160 wild animal species live.

THIS BOOK WILL MAKE YOU WANT TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY.

It's Air Canada's summer travel brochure.

Open it up, and you're transported back to another century. Where the clip-clop of horse's hooves on the cobblestoned streets echoes among the turrets of Québec City, the only walled city in North America.

Turn another page, and you're casually sipping an apéritif at a sidewalk café, while drinking in the sights and sounds of Montréal, the second largest French-speaking city in the world.

Yet another page, and Shazammm! You're blasted back into the 20th century, kicking up your heels and blowing your mind in a hard-driving Toronto discothèque.

It's Canada. And once you're there, you can take our tours anyway you want. Escorted. Semi-escorted. Independent. With car. Without car. By train. By foot. By plane.

You can travel around a lot. A little. Or just groove in one place.

Another thing. Although Canada has a lot of the charm of Europe going for it, it won't cost a lot getting to it.

In fact, for the same price you'd pay just for the round-trip economy peak season airfare to London, you can have a complete two-week vacation in Canada.

So send for the brochure that answers the question, "Isn't there a place I can have a terrific summer vacation without busting my budget?"

Yes, Canada.

THE NEW ETIQUETTE

Cross at the knee, ankle?

maureen reardon

Q. Is it still considered unladylike for women or girls to cross their legs at the knees?

A. Pants and mini-skirts have done a lot to change our ideas about "ladylike" behavior. The mini-skirt craze made women feel comfortable showing a little more leg. The proliferatioo of pants has given women the opportunity to seat themselves comfortably without having to worry about modesty. I don't think anybody quibbles these days about a woman crossing her legs at the knees when she's wearing pants. Only the most traditional types insist that a woman or girl cross her legs at the ankle, even when wearing a dress.

However, there are several ways to cross one's legs at the knees. Women tend to keep their thighs together, unlike men. The exception might be young girls who wear jeans and cross their legs like men in informal circumstances.

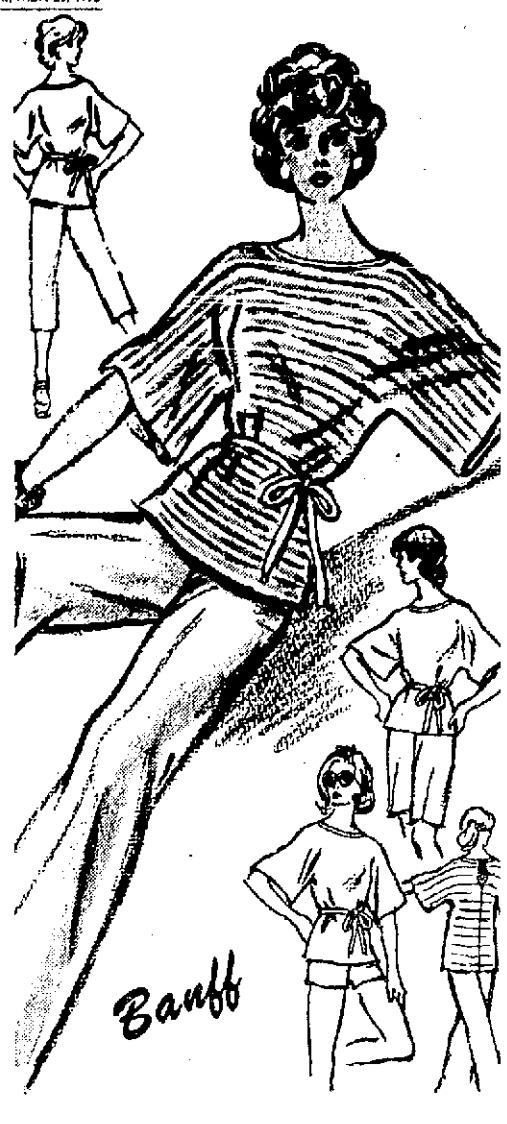

If there is a guideline on leg-crossing, it's this: know who you're with and don't offend them by showing them more than they want to see. Or to put it more precisely, if your underpants show, you're doing it wrong.

Q. I HAVE a real question of etiquette. To me it is a serious one. My husband and I are approaching our 50th wedding anniversary., Is it in good taste to let the guests know not to bring gifts? I would like to place on the invitation "no gifts, please."

It seems to me that some time ago I was informed that this was not in good taste with a reception. Do not publicize my name for we live in a small town. P.S. Our daughter, who will be one of the hostesses, also feels as I do on the gift question. It poses such a problem for the giver and we just do not need anything.

A. I am asked this question frequently in all of its various forms. People want to know if they can say "no gifts, please" on wedding invitations, on birthday invitations, on invitations to housewarmings and baptisms. My answer is always the same. You have the right to say "no gifts, please" whenever you do not wish to receive gifts. And you don't have to feel it's improper. Actually, it's quite considerate.

Can you tell me why it is that most of our happy celebrations require that somebody brings a gift? Think of all the parties you attended last year, and the parties you gave. How many involved the buying or receiving of gifts? Somehow I think that Americans should learn how to express their pleasure at a happy event — like an anniversary — in non-material ways. Gifts are meaningful, only when they're not gifts on demand.

DEAR ABBY

Upgrading teachers' lot

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old school teacher. (Female.) I teach tenth grade students in a public school. I love my work and wouldn't want to do anything else.

I also feel that I am entitled to live the kind of lifestyle I feel is right for me.

Now, my problem: I have fallen in love with a man, and we want to live together. Neither one of us wants to get married right now — or maybe ever.

Do you know of any community that is sufficiently sophisticated to permit their school teachers the freedom to live as they wish?

—NAMELES , PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: No. But that doesn't mean there isn't one. We have come a long way in the last 60 years. As proof, I submit a piece from Quote magazine. I hope you are able to read it without cracking up. I couldn't:

abigail van buren

"Truly, the life style of a school teacher has changed radically in the last 50 or 60 years. For example, a 1915 teacher's magazine listed the following rules of conduct for teachers of that day:

1. You will not marry during the term of your contract.

2. You are not to keep company with men.

3. You must be home between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. unless attending a school function.

4. You may not loiter downtown in ice cream stores.

5. You may not travel beyond the city limits unless you have the permission of the chairman of the board.

6. You may not ride in a carriage or automobile with any man unless he is your father or brother.

7. You may not smoke cigarettes.

8. You may not dress in bright colors.

9. You may under no circumstances dye your hair.

10. You must wear at least two petticoats.

11. Your dresses must not be any shorter than two inch above the ankle.

12. To keep the school room neat and clean; you must: sweep the floor at least once daily; scrub the floor at least once a week with hot, soapy water; clean the blackboards at least once a day; and start the fire at 7 a.m. so the room will be warm by 8 a.m."

DEAR ABBY: This is for "G" in Long Beach, who allowed herself to be photographed in various stages of undress by a total stranger, who subsequently disappeared with all the pictures and some of her money.

The chances are that the photographer was some kook who got his kicks from just watching the girl pose; or he may be keeping the pictures for his own use. It's doubtful that her picture will ever be published in any important girlie magazine, but it might be sold to a cheap underground publication that will print anything.

Unless "G" signed a model's release, authorizing the photographer to use those pictures, he cannot make any commercial use of them. And if he does, and "G" finds out about it, she can sue the pants off him.

—P.R. IN L.A.

DEAR P. R.: "G" was not a professional model, and from her description of the photographer, he wasn't a professional either. The moral of that story was plainly: "Girls who pose without any clothes have their brains in their nose."

'Legendary Curse of Hope Diamond' special to air

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Diamonds are a girl's best friend. Right?

Well, not always.

Take the case of the famous Hope Diamond, which since 1959 has been on display at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

Legend has it that anyone who touches the gem will meet with tragedy. Louis XVI and his queen, Marie Antoinette, had possession of it, and you'll recall they lost their heads completely in the French Revolution.

The diamond's bizarre history is dramatized in this season's third Smithsonian Special from the Du Pont Cavalcade of Television, "The Legendary Curse of the Hope Diamond." It airs on CBS at 10 p.m. Thursday (Channel 2).

The first of the three specials, "Monsters! Mysteries or Myths?," which was telecast in late November, received the highest rating of any documentary in TV history (it was No. 3 in the national Nielsen ratings for the week it aired).

It seems likely that "Curse" also will attract a large audience.

Samantha Eggar and Bradford Dillman portray Evalyn Walsh McLean and her husband, Edward, a wealthy American couple who bought the stone from Parisian jeweler Pierre Cartier for $180,000 and were its last owners until New York jeweler Harry Winston purchased it as part of the McLean estate and later donated it to the Smithsonian.

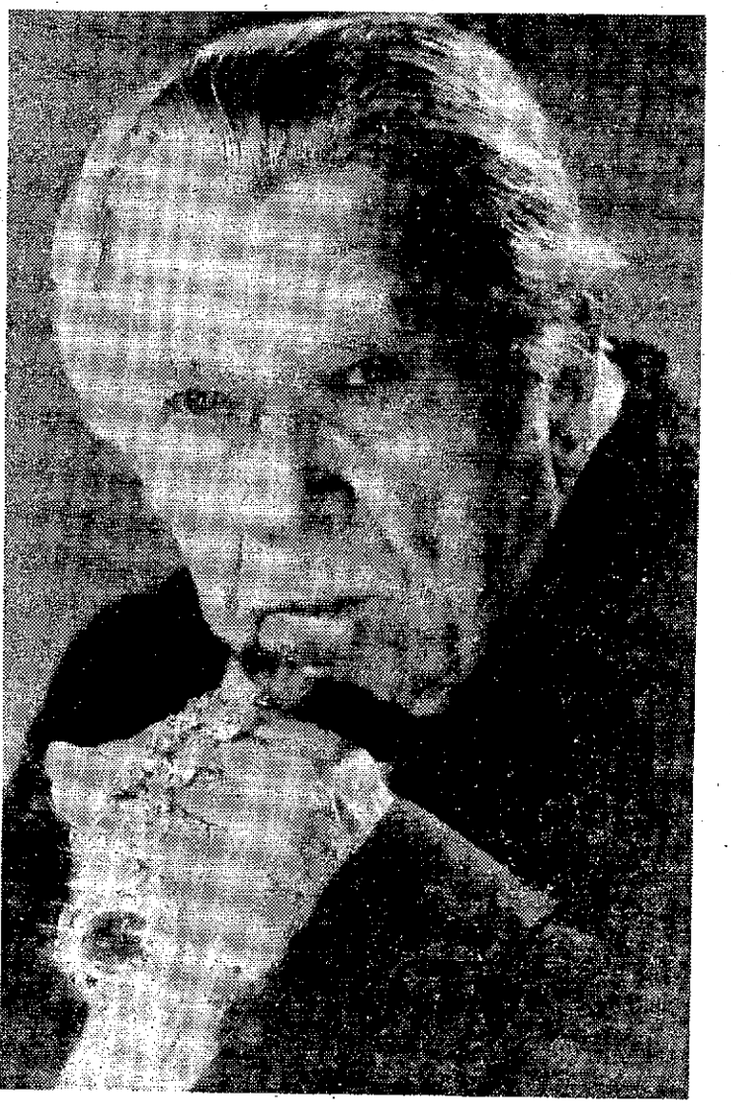

Oscar Homolka also stars as Willem Fals, a Dutch lapidary who is believed to have cut a much larger gem known as the French Blue into the 44.5 carat diamond that became known as The Hope after its sale to Henry Philip Hope, a London banker, for $90,000 in 1830.

Others in the cast include Claudine Longet as Marie Antoinette; Robert Clary as King Louis XVI; Martha Scott as "Mummsie," McLean's mother; Joan Tetzel as Harriet, an aunt of Evalyn McLean, and Henry Wilcoxon as the priest who is asked by one owner to exorcise the diamond.

Rod Serling narrates the special, which was written by George Lefferts and produced and directed by Oscar-winning director Delbert Mann for David L. Wolper Productions.

SAMANTHA EGGAR and Bradford Dillman star as Edward and Evalyn Walsh McLean, who owned the Hope Diamond.

OSCAR HOMOLKA . . . with Hope Diamond replica

HOMOLKA and Miss Tetzel, who is his wife, flew from London to Hollywood about a month ago to appear in the show, and I had the pleasure of talking with them last Tuesday, just a day before they were to start back to England, with a week's stopover in New York to visit relatives of Joan.

They are a delightful couple, both veterans of stage, screen and television, who have been married since 1949. They met in the mid-1940s while appearing on Broadway in "I Remember Mama"; she was portraying the girl who remembered, Katrin, and he was starring as Uncle Chris.

Miss Tetzel, whose picture once graced the cover of Life magazine, is a native of New York City who got started as an actress in radio as a young girl. Homolka, one of the great character actors in motion picture history, is a native of Vienna. He was an actor in Berlin when Hitler rose to power, then left Germany for England and later the United States. His first Hollywood movie was "Ebb Tide" in 1937.

For the past seven years, they have made their home in Sussex, England, and before that in New York and London. In the late'30s and '40s, before his marriage to Joan, Homolka resided in Bel-Air.

Oscar's face is one of the most distinctive in films, and his eyebrows are the bushiest since those of the late John L. Lewis. Looking at the eyebrows as we had lunch in the Kirkeby Center Restaurant, on the 16th floor of the Kirkeby Center building in Westwood, I couldn't help but think that a lot of guys would like to have that much hair on their head.

"WHAT ABOUT the so-called curse?" I asked the two performers. "Is it responsible for the many tragedies that have befallen owners of the Hope Diamond, or have the misfortunes been simply coincidences?"

"The latter, I think," said Homolka with a warm, natural smile that makes him look not nearly so mean and tough as he often appears as a movie "heavy."

"I'm not so sure there's

JOAN TETZEL, wife of Homolka, also appears in TV special.

Hutton makes comeback along with Ellery Queen

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Ellery Queen, one of America's most popular fictional sleuths, is making a comeback on a television special and, suitably enough, so is the actor who plays the role.

Private detective Queen was invented in 1930 by two writers ffrom Brooklyn, Manfred Lee and Frederick Dannay. As early as 1935 the suave, foppish Ellery was the hero of a radio series with Donald Chase in the role.

On television he was played variously by Lee Bowman, George Nader, Lee Phillips and Peter Lawford. Ralph Bellamy played the role in three movies.

FOR WHATEVER reason, the character never gained the popularity visually that he enjoyed in some 40 novels. Ellery Queen mysteries sold better than any others in this country save Erle Stanley Gardner's "Perry Mason" and Agatha Christie's "Hercule Poirot" whodunits.

The source for most of this information is Jim Hutton, who portrays Queen in a two-hour television movie beaming at 8:30 tonight on Channel 4. It is the pilot for a potential NBC series.

REMEMBER Jim Hutton?

Most people don't.

Jim is the handsome young guy (6-foot-4) who starred in 25 movies, four of them with Paula Prentiss in contemporary comedies.

Remember the titles: "Bachelor in Paradise," "The Honeymoon Machine," "The Horizontal Lieutenant," "Where the Boys Are"?

"I was working all the time in the late 1950s and 1960s. I thought it would never end," Hutton said, shaking his head over his naivete. "The last big role I played was in 1966 with Cary Grant in 'Walk, Don't Run.' I thought it would make me a big star."

THE PICTURE bombed and Jim's career dissolved in the fallout.

"I was in shock when everything came to an end," Jim recalled.

"The telephone virtually stopped ringing. I changed agents. Nothing helped.

"When you're down in Hollywood, they like to keep you down. When you're out, you're out. I did a few John Wayne pictures and some television guest shots. But most of the time I was unemployed.

"You can't explain why things fall apart. I know I looked too young for most leading roles. I still look 15 years younger than my age. And I'd been typed in light comedy. A lot of things contributed to my unemployment."

JIM'S PERSONAL life suffered, too. Divorce. Old "friends" disappeared. But he didn't give up on himself. He refused to work at anything but acting.

"It's been a long, hard time," he said. "Knowing what I do now, I wouldn't have been such a blithe spirit in my MGM contract days. I was a friendly puppy. I hid the fact I had a brain.

"Truth is, I had too much success too young. I was bland, vanilla, the boy-next-door on screen, and I carried it into my personal life. I took it all for granted, one picture after another.

"Now I want to succeed. 'Ellery Queen' is a comeback. This two-hour movie is a pilot for a series. But pilots have to buck jungle survival odds. There's no telling what its chances are.

"We've changed Ellery from a fop to a different sort of guy, more vulnerable and slightly bumbling but with a brilliant mind as always."

Jim Hutton paused, his face a study in determination. Perhaps his future as an actor depends on the success of the show. Success means stardom, failure the spectre of the rut of TV guest shots and a long, slow fade.

Shirley Jones adjusting to single life

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Shirley Jones finds life imitating fiction now that she is rearing a brood at home without a man in the house.

As the widowed mother in "The Partridge Family" television series, Shirley made a musical troupe of her clan. She is making different adjustments in divorcing actor Jack Cassidy after 18 years of marriage.

"It's not as pleasant as the fiction of TV," Shirley said the other day. "I'm in the midst of divorcing a vibrant, brillant man. And our three sons are individual thinkers responding differently to the divorce.

"I HAVE to treat each child individually. Now that I've begun to date other men the boys are reacting in their own ways.

"Shaun is 16 and he understands. Patrick is 13 and he resents all men. He talks about living with his father. Ryan, my 9-year-old, is perplexed.

"No matter how friendly you think your divorce may be, it doesn't quite work out that way. The parents naturally vie with each other for the children.

"In the beginning I was devastated by the failure of my marriage and the loss of my man.

"I WAITED a long time before seeking a divorce. But once I act on a decision I recover quickly and go on to something else. The tough part is the limbo of waiting for the divorce to become final."

Shirley, who has been dating comedian Marty Ingels, says Cassidy visits the family home regularly. She is disconcerted when Jack pops in unannounced while Marty is paying court.

The Jones girl, who broke into movies 20 years ago in "Oklahoma!" and won an Oscar for "Elmer Gantry" in 1960, has seldom been so busy professionally.

THREE television movies — "The Family Nobody Wanted," "Winner Take All" and "The Life and Death of Jenny Dolan" — have followed in quick succession. The latter, which hasn't aired yet, stands a chance of becoming a series.

"All the shows are dramas," Shirley said. Then she laughed and added, "My life is a drama. A soap opera. But I'm grateful I've been independent professionally. The work helps.

"It's important that I'm not bitter. Those 18 years I had with Jack were among the best of my life. I'd do it again. Having a love like that is worth it all.

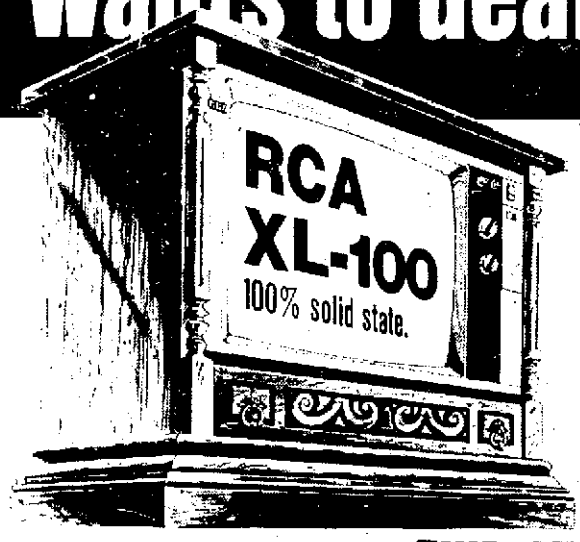

"NOW IT'S time to look to another part of my life. It is like being born again.

A new life for Shirley

Not that I'll ever forget the past.

"There's humor in the situation, too. My relationship with the boys has changed. Now that I'm a bit of a swinger they are looking at me in a new light.

"They are fascinated that men could be interested in their mother. It never occurred to them before.

"Now I'm closer to my sons. They want to take care of me. It's very dear."

SHIRLEY has another close friend, David Cassidy.

David, Jack's son by a previous marriage, co-starred with his stepmother for four years in "The Partridge Family." Accroding to Shirley, young David is closer to her than he is to his father.

"David is a wonderful young man," Shirley concluded. "He is writing a book about what it's like to be a teen-age idol."

Shirley, who influenced David tremendously during the run of their show, will be one of the heroines of her stepson's book. With four young Cassidys pulling for her, Shirley Jones is one of the most fortunate divorcees in town.

CRITIC'S CORNER

By REX REED
(C) 1975 New York News Inc.

Something wonderful is happening to television. It is the warmth, wit, fun, understanding, optimism and hope that has gone into the Addie Mills stories on CBS. The third one pops up as quite a charming event on Wednesday night (Channel 2 at 8:30). It's called "The Easter Promise," and my personal promise is that it will enrich the lives of all who see it.

Addie Mills is a little girl growing up during the Depression-riddled 1940s in the rural community of Clear River, Neb. She is played by a remarkable and quite accomplished young actress named Lisa Lucas. Her father is Jason Robards, her grandmother is Mildred Natwick, and, on "The Easter Promise," there is the additional bonus of a staggeringly sensitive guest appearance by one of the most gifted and underrated actresses of her time, Jean Simmons.

THE ADDIE MILLS specials have gathered bouquets of rave reviews from the most hard-hearted of critics, winning the hearts of children and adults alike. They have spread into the children's book market, and now there's a possibility that if wisdom instead of stupidity prevails at CBS, Addie and her family will become the subjects of a weekly television series.

The woman responsible for the sudden invasion of Addie Mills into the otherwise lugubrious television swamp of plastic robots is Gail Rock, a 34-year-old, liberated ex-film and TV critic who invented the whole thing. Addie is a bright, gregarious child with a mind of her own from small-town Nebraska. Gail is a bright, introverted woman with a mind of her own from small-town Nebraska.

Addie grew up to be Gail, and when you see the TV dramas about Addie's adventures, you don't have to wonder whatever became of her. She's doing just fine. She lives in a cheerful Tudor-style Manhattan apartment with bright carpets, Haitian paintings and walls full of books, many of which are on the Women's Lib movement.

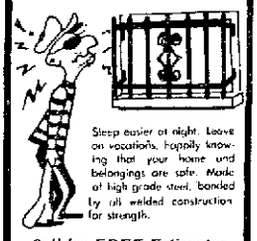

"SOME OF THE events in the stories are fictionalized around my life," says Gail, "but the three people — Addie, her father and her grandmother — and how they relate to each other — that is absolutely true to form. My mother died when I was 18 months old and my father became withdrawn and uncommunicative, but I got used to that."

"The Easter Promise" is the first script Gail has written in its entirety by herself. It's a marvelous show. This time, it's 1947. Addie is 12-years-old and eagerly awaiting the arrival in Clear River of Constance Payne (Jean Simmons), the celebrated Broadway star, who is coming home to sell her old family estate after her mother's funeral in Omaha.

Addie's father, grumpy as ever, remembers her in school as "so stuck-up we used to call her Countess Constance." Addie wants an autograph for her book, but Constance is positively Garboesque, never emerging from the forbidding drapes of her gloomy old house.

ADDIE organizes a delegation of kids and invades her privacy only to discover that her idol is not a famous star, but a broken has-been hiding her cracked dreams and unbearable failures in a gin bottle.

The BIBLE
Says

Question: What about the sabbath?

The O.T. sabbath command is no longer binding upon men because the law of Moses which contained it has been abrogated (Gal. 3:19, 23-25; Rom. 7:4-6, 2 Cor. 3:6-14, Heb. 7:12; Heb. 8:6f). This is why the numerous regulations and prohibitions of the O.T. are not bound upon men today. Under the law of Moses certain meats could not be eaten by Jews, but the New Testament does not contain those old laws (Cf. 1 Tim. 4:3-5). In the same way the old sabbath command is not contained in the New Testament, and is therefore not binding upon men today. Sabbatarians "judge" those who do not keep their sabbath doctrine, but the apostle Paul said, "Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days" (Col. 2:16). The O.T. regulations regarding these things are no longer binding upon men because the law of Moses has been abrogated, and they have not been included in the New Testament.

A reader desires the scripture authorizing worship on Sunday instead of Saturday. Acts 20:7 says, "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them," and 1 Cor. 16:2 says, "Upon the first day of the week let everyone of you lay by him in store." The members of the Studebaker Rd. Church of Christ do what the early Christians did. On the first day of each week we (1) observe the Lord's supper, (2) study God's word, and (3) lay by in store.

The limited space in this weekly column restricts a detailed study of sabbatarian arguments and errors, but if specific questions on the subject are received they will be gladly answered as space is available.

6 Ways We Save You Money!!

1. INVESTMENT—No doubt about it, a room addition is one of the best investments you can make. What else can you buy and the longer you use it the more valuable it becomes.

2. DESIGN SERVICE—I don't care how much you spend on an addition, if the design is poor you can't get the enjoyment you deserve and you will only get a fraction of what you paid for it. At the Alamo we design the room for function, beauty, furniture arrangements and resale value.

3. FURNISHINGS—When you build any addition you are going to need some new furnishings. Alamo is the only contractor to have a complete line of furniture in stock for your selection. Alamo's room addition customers also receive our special "Customer Card" allowing them a full 25% discount on any furniture we have in the store. You may use this card for purchases for other rooms in your home. This service alone will save you hundreds of dollars.

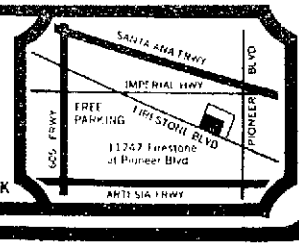

4. NOT TOO BIG — NOT TOO SMALL—Let's assume you want a family room large enough for a sofa, a pair of chairs, a TV set, and a game table. If you buy a room too large you have wasted several hundred dollars. If, on the other hand, you build it too small you no longer can use it for what you had intended. Probably have to give up your game table which was very important to you. Alamo specializes in designing exactly what you need.

5. VOLUME BUYING—Alamo Center is one of the largest remodelers in the country. We don't have to buy in small lts for one customer at a time, we can order in large quantities, obtaining savings that are passed on directly to you.

6. UNFINISHED JOBS—Yes, Alamo will build the shell and leave the inside work for you if you wish. This will save you many hundreds of dollars. In addition, we will sell you all the finish materials you need at "Contractors cost" thereby giving you extra savings.

'Curse of Hope Diamond' airs Thursday night

nothing to the curse," said his wife. "I'm a little superstitious about it. Just check back on all the things that have happened to persons who touched the diamond."

As far as she's concerned, it's all to the good that a replica of the diamond, rather than the real thing, was used in shooting the TV special. At least, she doesn't have to worry about having touched the cursed gem itself.

"Evalyn McLean's mother-in-law and I try the diamond on," she pointed out, motioning with her hands how she slipped the necklace over her head. "It's fabulously beautiful — sapphire blue, you know."

Miss Tetzel noted that both women were dead within a year.

"My part is just a small one, but it's an interesting role," she said. "So many characters are dealt with that it's too bad they didn't make this into a series instead of a special."

THE DIAMOND cutter, played by Homolka, meets death even quicker than Harriet Goelet. He suffers a heart attack right after cutting the stone, which had been obtained by his son (played by Robert Wolders, recent bridegroom of Merle Oberon).

Many who came in contact with the gem before and after the Dutch diamond cutter met tragic ends...

Jean Baptiste Tavernier, a French merchant, is believed to have brought the original stone of 112.5 carats to France from India about 1645. Legend has it that Tavernier stole it from the eye of an idol, Ramn-Sita, and the curse is the god's revenge.

The gem was sold to Louis XIV of France, who had it cut to create several diamonds, the largest of which was 68 carats and became known as the French Blue. He gave it to his mistress, the Marquise de Montespan, who later was accused of Satanism and expelled from court. Within a year after Louis bought the diamond, two of his sons died inexplicably, and the king later suffered an agonizing death from smallpox.

Eventually the diamond passed on to Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. After they were beheaded during the Revolution, it disappeared, presumably stolen by the mob, and little more is known of it until 1830, when a diamond of the same deep-blue color came on the market in London and was bought by Hope.

After the Hope family went bankrupt a couple of generations later, the gem changed hands frequently and the curse seemed to follow it. Lorens Ladue, a star of the Folies Bergere, was stabbed to death by her lover; Simon Montharides, a Greek merchant, drove off a cliff with his entire family; Selim Habib, a Turkish sultan, was drowned off Gibraltar, another owner was stabbed to death, and still another committed suicide.

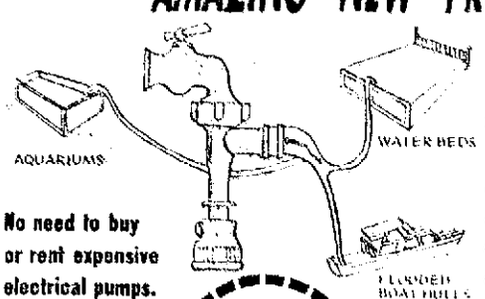

The McLeans acquired the diamond in 1911, and over the years accidental death, suicide and insanity struck the family.

I ASKED Miss Tetzel if she'd accept the Hope Diamond if it were offered to her.

Replied the actress, "I asked Oscar what he thought of the legend, and his reply was: 'I'm not going to buy it for you, so you don't have to worry.'"

Q. Is it true that Nelson Rockefeller has secretly bankrolled Common Cause? Is is true that in return for his financial support, Common Cause took a walk during the Rockefeller Vice Presidential confirmation hearings?—L.R., Washington, D.C.
A. To date, Nelson Rockefeller has contributed three $500 checks to Common Cause. Since its inception in 1970, Common Cause has received approximately $70,000 from the Rockefeller family, the single largest contribution, $55,000, coming from John D. Rockefeller III. Common Cause, according to one of its lobbyists, Fred Wertheimer, "did not support or oppose the Rockefeller nomination but insisted upon full, public financial disclosures."

Q. A few weeks ago when actress Merle Oberon married Dutch actor Robert Wolders, her age was given as 57 and his as 38. I remember Merle Oberon acting in films in the early 1930's. Isn't she in her 70's?—Carl Taylor, Raleigh, N.C.
A. Merle Oberon, remarkably well-preserved, is not yet 70. She is, however, 68, has been married four times, is partly Indian, was once known as Queenie Thompson. She has been married to Alexander Korda (Hungarian), Lucien Ballard (French), Bruno Pagliai (Mexican), and now Robert Wolders.

Q. What's happened to former Sen. J. William Fulbright? Has he gone back to Arkansas?—William Smith, Fayetteville, Ark.
A. J. William Fulbright has joined the Washington, D. C., law firm of Hogan & Hartson in an advisory capacity.

Q. I understand that Andres Segovia, the great guitar player who is 81, is married to a 17-year-old girl. Can this be true?—Don Ricardo Feliz, Miami, Fla.
A. Segovia, 81, is married to Emilia who is 37. He has two sons, Andres, 53, by a former wife, and Carlos 4, by his marriage to Emilia.

EMILIA AND ANDRES SEGOVIA

Q. The word here in Texas is that Big John Connally will never be found guilty of perjury and bribery charges in connection with the milk fund campaign contributions. It's also said that if he is, President Ford will pardon him. Is that why Big John and Gerald Ford were closeted in the Shamrock Hilton Hotel in Houston on Feb. 10, 1975 for 45 minutes?—A.K., Houston, Tex.
A. The White House explanation from press secretary Ron Nessen: "I am told that John Connally and the President are old friends, have known each other for a long time and when the President was here [Houston] he decided to invite John Connally up for a talk. They talked for about 45 minutes, and the subjects were energy and the economy. I am told there were no politics discussed." Nessen's source presumably was President Ford.

Q. Christine Keeler, the English call girl who wrecked the career of British Minister John Profumo in 1963—what's become of her?—Evelyn Lane, Rye, N.Y.
A. After the Profumo scandal, Christine married a crane operator. The marriage lasted three months. Christine then tried strip-teasing. In 1971 she married the director of a metals company. It lasted a year. Christine, 32, lives in Chelsea, plans to raise money to open a discotheque, is considered slightly publicity mad.

Q. Why does President Ford want to send more money to South Vietnam for the next three years? Isn't that pouring good money after bad?—Henry Borden, Denver, Colo.
A. Ford feels the South Vietnamese will go Communist within the next three years unless we finance their continued resistance. Others feel that if we continue to underwrite President Thieu's power in Saigon, we are simply discouraging a negotiated end to a war which has already lasted 25 years.

Q. Emlyn Williams, author of The Corn Is Green, is he a homosexual?—Sarah Potter, Piedmont, Calif.
A. In the second volume of his autobiography, Williams wrote that he had been a homosexual in his youth but outgrew it. He is the father of two sons, one a novelist, the other an actor.

Q. How much did Richard Nixon pay Alvin T. Moscow, former Associated Press reporter, for ghostwriting Six Crises*?—John Laughlin, Staten Island, N.Y.*
A. Alvin T. Moscow, former AP reporter and author of Collision Course—The Andrea Doria Story, did not ghostwrite Six Crises. He merely "helped" in writing the book which consists of Mr. Nixon's words. Nixon hired Moscow, paid him approximately $20,000 for his assistance.

Q. Lana Turner — was she really discovered in Schwab's drugstore in Hollywood, sipping an ice cream soda?—Willie Gilbert, Tucson, Ariz.
A. That's an old publicity lie. Judy Turner was discovered by Solly Baiano of the Warner Bros. casting department. Baiano took her to producer Mervyn LeRoy who changed her name to Lana Turner and placed her under contract.

Q. When a man joins the Central Intelligence Agency, aren't blood and lie detector tests given him to check him out for venereal disease and truthfulness?—Helen Harris, Rutland, Vt.
A. Upon entry CIA employees are given lie detector tests to check their veracity, a physical takes care of venereal disease.

Build it yourself!

With a learn-at-home program as fascinating as home entertainment electronics, reading about it is just not enough!

Simulated TV picture/test pattern.

"Electro-Lab" is a registered trademark of the Bell & Howell Company.

Once you discover something that really fascinates you, no matter what it is, reading about it is just not enough. You want to be involved. You want firsthand experience.

That's exactly how Bell & Howell Schools' exciting learn-at-home program in electronics works. You learn by doing, experimenting, trying it yourself. That's why throughout this unique program you get practical "hands-on" experience with some of today's latest electronics training tools.

Throughout your learning adventure with Bell & Howell Schools, the key word is build.

It doesn't matter if you've never had any training in electronics before. We start you off with the basics and help you work your way up one step at a time. As a matter of fact, with your very first lesson, you receive a special Lab Starter Kit to give you immediate working experience on equipment as you are picking up the fundamentals. It makes the learning process faster and certainly a lot more interesting.

You'll build and work with remarkable educational tools as you explore advances in electronics—"State-of-the-art" equipment that's being used today—and will be used tomorrow. So the skills and knowledge you will acquire will be useful for years to come.

You'll build your own electronics laboratory!

With Bell & Howell's Electro-Lab® electronic training system—theory comes to life. And you'll make it happen! In building each of these modern test instruments you'll get experience in wiring, soldering, assembling. Then you'll use the lab for testing, trouble-shooting and circuit analyzing.

First, the design console. After you assemble it, you'll be able to set up and examine circuits without having to solder them in place.

Next, you'll build a digital multimeter. This important instrument measures voltage, current and resistance, and displays its findings in big, clear numbers like on a digital clock.

Then comes the solid-state "triggered sweep" oscilloscope similar in principle to the kind used in hospitals to monitor heartbeats.

You'll use it to analyze tiny integrated circuits. The triggered sweep feature locks in signals for easier observation.

You'll actually build and work with a new generation colorTV...investigating features you've probably never seen before!

This 25" diagonal color TV has digital features that are likely to appear on all TV's of the future. Features made possible by the applications of digital electronics to home entertainment.

You'll probe into the technology behind all-electronic tuning. And into the digital circuitry of channel numbers that appear on the screen! You'll build-in an on-the-screen digital clock and learn to program a special automatic channel selector that goes directly to the channels of your choice.

You'll also better understand the exceptional color clarity of the Black Matrix picture tube, and gain working knowledge of "state-of-the-art" integrated circuitry and the 100% solid-state chassis.

After building and experimenting with this TV, you'll be equipped with the kinds of skills that could put you ahead in electronics know-how.

Once you've completed this program, your skills in electronic trouble-shooting could lead you in exciting new directions. While we cannot offer assurance of income opportunities you can use your training: to seek out a job in the electronics industry, to upgrade your current job, or as a foundation for advanced programs in electronics.

Building. Learning. Growing. Without missing a day of work or a single paycheck!

Because this is a home study program, you study at your convenience—without being a classroom captive. That means there'll be no conflicts with your job or other interests.

And even though you're on your own, we'll be there to help if you should ever run into a rough spot. Most schools make you mail in all your questions. We have a toll-free line you can call when you have a question that can't wait.

For even more personal attention, Bell & Howell Schools' "help sessions" are held in 50 major cities at various times throughout the year, where you can meet and talk with your instructors and fellow students.

A school's reputation can't be built on what it is going to do.

...but rather on what it has done and is doing right now. That's why Bell & Howell Schools' 43 years of experience in electronics home study is your best guarantee that our "hands-on" learning method really works.

Many thousands of people each year choose Bell & Howell Schools' home learning programs to start or further their electronics education. Discover this fascinating program in home entertainment electronics for yourself.

Mail in the postage-paid card for more details!

George Wallace Jr. with his father and stepmother, Cornelia Wallace, in the Governor's office. George campaigned for his father in 1972 but is more interested in music than in politics. He describes the father-son relationship in a new book, "The Wallaces of Alabama."

Governor Wallace's Son Speaks Out

by Charles Peterson

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

The sons of famous fathers invariably carry a heavy load through life—namesake recognition and the generational comparison that goes with it.

The sons of fathers who are both famous and controversial carry even heavier loads. Early in life they are faced with the options of supporting their fathers, disagreeing with their fathers, and eventually becoming their own men.

George Wallace Jr., 23, whose father is certainly one of the most controversial politicians in the country, writes of these father-son relationships in a new book, The Wallaces of Alabama, out this month.

In truth, young George tape-recorded for 30 hours, and the book was put together by James Gregory, now a reporter for the National Enquirer. They split a $10,000 advance, and Governor Wallace contributed a moving and revealing introduction.

". . . I now view things in a different perspective," Governor Wallace writes. "Before I was shot, I worried about things that seem trivial today, compared to the problem I now have of not being able to walk—not being a normal person, a normal person. . . .

"I have adapted and accepted it . . . but if I could walk the next minute and be whole again, I would have no problem in the world, no worry in the world."

Health comes first

The Governor points out that relative to the loss of health, most problems are small, particularly those of young men like his son, who wants to become a successful musician.

"So if George worries about his musical career now," the Governor ponders, "if he worries about whether he's going to make it or not, it's really nothing to worry about.

"Because if you don't make it, so what? It's not the end of the world. There are other ways. And as he grows older he will understand and realize that more."

George Wallace Jr., 5 foot 8, brown-eyed, sandy-colored hair, a thin, muscular 130 pounds, majors in history and minors in political science at Huntingdon College, a small school in Montgomery, Ala. A guitarist who writes his own music and lyrics, George is torn between music and the law. "If I don't make it in music," he says, "I'd like to fall back on the law. It's the lawyers who've got the power to change things. But my first love is music. "In any event," he adds, "whatever I do I've got to be aware of the political consequences"—especially when you're the son of a father who three times has sought the U.S. Presidency and is beefing up his troops for a fourth try.

Like many children of public figures, George Wallace Jr. is reticent, shy, removed, and somewhat suspicious. Are people interested in him for himself or as a means of getting to his father?

"George is a quiet fellow," reveals Ronnie Wise, his childhood buddy who attends the University of Alabama Law School. "He keeps pretty much to himself. When he was growing up and both his mother and daddy were Governors of Alabama, he was always trying, without success I'd say, to escape from the political fishbowl. Even though he loves and respects his daddy deeply, I think he would have preferred to have been named Mike or Bill or John, but not George Wallace Jr."

Janice Culbertson, a young painter who's been George's girlfriend for five years, agrees. "George," she explains, "is basically reserved and philosophical. He just likes to write songs and read and play his guitar. There's nothing extrovertive or feisty about him."

Music probably is young George's escape mechanism from a life of public exposure. It's not easy for any young man to recognize that his father has become a national target for hatred. It's not easy to master self-control and acquire a thick skin in the face of such signs as "If You Liked Hitler, You'll Love Wallace."

Young George remembers a typical incident in high school. "It happened at a party. An Air Force man was there, and he'd had a little too much to drink. And he found out who I was. I went out to the kitchen to get something, and when I came back I passed by his chair. Suddenly he called Dad a dirty name.

Knocked him down

"I just turned around and knocked him out of his chair. The chair turned over with a clatter and he was on the floor. He jumped up and we went outside on the balcony to have it out. He knocked me down. When I got up and knocked him down, they had to pull me off him, because he was almost unconscious by then."

The man who bought George his first guitar was Col. E.C. Dothard, a former Wallace security agent and now Alabama's Director of Public Safety. It was a $29 Silvertone model, and two black prison trusties taught him how to use it. Gradually young George picked up a variety of tunes which he played for his mother.

In the spring of 1973 George Jr. signed a one-year contract with MGM Records in Nashville, then came out to Los Angeles on a recording stint. He moved in with Don Ovens, a promotion man, who fondly recalls, "George lived with me for four months in my bachelor's pad in Nichols Canyon, and I used to have Hank Haldeman, Bob Haldeman's son, come up and play the guitar with George, and they're dam good.

"At this point," Ovens declares, "George's writing is very personal, very subjective. He composes along the lines of Jim Croce and John Denver—in highly subjective observations. As far as performance goes, however, he's got a long way to go." To date he's recorded four singles which have been released: "Why Don't They Understand," "There Will Never Be Anyone Else But You," "Railroad Steamboat River and Canal," and "Things I've Never Known About."

His own views now

Quick to defend his father on almost all points, young George insists that he has reached the point in life where he doesn't mind giving his own views.

"Until a year ago, when reporters asked me questions, I would always try to answer them in a way which would help my father," George admits. "I don't do that anymore."

Little George poses soberly with the Curley Brooks Band. Now 23, he attends college, is torn between music and law. George writes his own songs and has recorded four. His girlfriend sees him as "basically reserved."

On the Vietnam war, for example: "To be honest with you I don't think we should have been there as long as we were. We should have gotten in all the way or gotten out, not let it drain our economy, which is what it did."

On marijuana: "I think it should be left up to the individual. It's his life and his body."

On sex: "If a couple wants sexual relations before marriage, that's up to them, but sex just for sex's sake is not for me. It calls for love."

On being George Wallace's son: "I hope people will sort of drop that and start judging me on my own. I would never do anything to disagree with my father politically, but philosophically we see things out of different eyes, and I don't mind expressing my true feelings in my writings. There's a lot of injustice in the world that calls for exposure."

1970: Top row, Peggy Sue Wallace (since married), George Jr., the Governor and his son-in-law, Jim Parsons. Second row: Jim Snively, Mrs. Cornelia Snively, whom Wallace wed in 1971, and Bobbi Jo Parsons holding her baby son Jimbo. On the floor is Cornelia's second son, Josh, and alongside Josh is Lee Wallace.

On George Wallace: "He has changed. He is growing. Not only after the accident, but he was growing before. He is not a racist, he was a segregationist because he thought that's what the people of Alabama wanted, that it was the law, that the races should not attend the same schools. It's a hard pill for the people of Boston to swallow right now, but we swallowed it years ago. My father never was a racist, and is certainly no segregationist."

On George Wallace as President: "He would make a tremendous President. He has all the qualities of leadership and far more knowledge than people think. His physical condition should not hold him back."

On assassination try

On the attempted assassination of his father: "I believe as he does that it was the work of more than one man, that Arthur Bremer didn't do it alone. Bremer pulled the trigger but there were others behind him. We don't have any evidence, but to my way of thinking it must have been a conspiracy. Certain people wanted George Wallace out of things."

On his book: "It wasn't really my idea. I was out in California on a recording session and was approached by one of the MGM publicity people, a girl named Nola Leone. She suggested I collaborate with Jim Gregory. I took him down home with me, and he tape-recorded a lot of the family. After Jim wrote the book from the tapes, I understand it was turned down by half a dozen publishers. But finally one of them, Follett of Chicago, agreed to publish it. I think there's a first printing of 20,000 copies at $10 each and then a limited edition of 500 copies signed by my father for $25 each. We sure hope it sells."

In treating a young patient, inspiring confidence, as above, is important. There are, of course, a host of factors involved in evaluating a physician.

How Good Is Your Doctor?

by Dr. Marshall Goldberg

Educational Chief of Medicine at Hurley Hospital, Flint, Mich.

FLINT, MICH.

Who still believes in the harassed, hard-working family doctor now making $60,000 a year? Has that vast reservoir of trust and goodwill the public once held for the Dr. Kildares among us finally dried up?

Of course not. Surveys show that medicine still remains the most respected of professions. Nevertheless, it must be admitted, that a small number of doctors are sick, senile, or unethical.

So it's a problem: How can a private citizen keep out of the clutches of the medical quacks and incompetents?

The best way to get a good doctor is to find out who the doctors' doctors are. So here's one approach: Soon after moving to a new town, a man's son falls ill. He goes to the nearest doctor's office, waits his turn to be seen, and then says: "Doc, I got a sick kid, but I don't want you to see him. Here's the ten dollars for this visit; just tell me who takes care of your kids?"

If you happen to live in a city with a medical school or a large teaching hospital, try phoning the chief resident in the specialty you need. Or try catching him alone in the hospital cafeteria. Virtually all such specialists-to-be, having not yet faced the harsh realities of private practice, are idealistic, savvy, and thoroughly down on bad doctors.

But is all this snooping around really necessary? Why not a doctor directory —a pick 'em yourself consumer's guide for patients that, in addition to name, address, and office hours of a particular doctor, might include his medical school and postgraduate hospital training, whether he is certified in his specialty, whether he holds any academic positions at a medical school or hospital (not all good doctors are good teachers, but almost all good teachers are good doctors) and finally what are his standard fees.

What fees mean

The question of publicizing fees remains a touchy point with some doctors. But what can you tell about a doctor by his fees? Most doctors, especially the specialists I know charge $25 to $50 for a first appointment. But that's just for the stripped-down model. What about the extras?

Each potential patient should know beforehand what the routine work-up of a particular doctor consists of—whether it includes a pelvic and Pap smear, a complete blood count, urinalysis, battery of blood chemistries, such as sugar and cholesterol determinations, chest X-ray, electrocardiogram, etc.—and what each costs.

Most, if not all, of these diagnostic tests are well worth having at least once. In fact, some, like the Pap smear and sigmoidoscopic exam, are just about the best safeguards there are against dying of certain common and potentially curable cancers. A patient, by the way, should also ascertain at the time of the initial visit what portion of the expense will be picked up by his insurance company.

Exposing "bad" doctors

If only a small number of doctors are "bad," why can't we simply get rid of them? Doubtless we could if 1) doctors were not licensed for life and 2) in less than half of the 50 states can a medical license currently be challenged for professional incompetence. Many solutions, such as professional standards review organizations or tying relicensure to the requirement that each doctor attend a certain number of continuing education courses per year, have been proposed to meet this pressing problem. But in my opinion there is a less expensive, less bureaucracy-ridden and surer way; namely—periodic reexamination and recertification of all physicians every five to seven years to insure a minimum standard of competency among them.

But until that time when all the proof you need that your doctor is able and up-to-date is the recertification certificate hanging on his wall, what can you do to make reasonably sure you're in good hands?

A good work-up

Let's start with the initial work-up. The good doctor considers the whole patient. He starts by doing a thorough history and physical examination. A good history, one in which the patient's main complaint is carefully analyzed and a check list of about a hundred health-related questions asked, takes around 20-25 minutes: the companion physical about the same. Thus, the initial work-up by a primary physician averages 40 to 60 minutes. I certainly wouldn't quibble with the doctor who is so superbly organized that he can do one in less than 40 minutes, but I take strong issue with the one who is content to treat just symptoms and never bothers to do an initial work-up.

Second, a good doctor is never so busy that he can't take time to explain a patient's condition to him and the rationale for his treatment.

Third, a good doctor is never afraid to admit that he either does not know what is wrong with a patient, or else does not feel he is the man to treat it.

So much for what a good doctor does; what he doesn't do is harm. He doesn't push unnecessary pills, shots, operations or X-rays. But before any of you nod too vigorously at this last criticism, let me hasten to shift part of the blame for these abuses onto your shoulders.

Patients' demands

Twenty years ago, a patient used to say to me, in effect, "Here's my money, keep me alive." No longer! Now they say, "Here's my money, keep me alive and keep me happy." An exaggeration? Hardly. It's reliably estimated that 10-15 percent of all admissions to general hospitals these days are for drug-induced diseases.

So watch out for the overly accommodating "doctor-drug pusher." Don't be too insistent on getting your money's worth each time you visit him. Most doctors like me must keep to a schedule that allows 10 to 15 minutes for each follow-up visit. How then do we deal with the individual who is not so much sick as lonely and over-talkative. Kick him out? We have a slicker way: reach for the prescription pad. But all too often what the patient gets is some needless and potentially dangerous drug. I readily admit that I use my prescription pad too—only most of the time I write for a lab test, not a pill. A copout, doctor? You bet. But no patient of mine has ever died from having a superfluous serum cholesterol or blood sugar drawn.

Good doctors don't do unnecessary surgery. Since our country now has an overabundance of surgeons, in relation to estimated need, there is probably a good deal of unnecessary surgery going on. The only advice I can give when, say, a woman is told she needs her thyroid or gall bladder removed is: get a second opinion.

Sound like a lot of extra expense and trouble? It is. But so is what follows botched-up surgery—for those who survive it.

Busy psychiatrists

Who heads the list of being the hardest type of good doctor to find? The psychiatrist wins hand-down. The reason is simple: Almost all the really top-notch psychiatrists I know are no longer accepting new patients. They are too busy treating doctors who have been driven to distraction by the public's love-hate attitude toward them or plunged into full-bloom paranoia by self-appointed experts like me.

What, they ask, ever happened to omerta: the rule of silence that forbade any doctor from criticizing the profession in public. It certainly had its day, its uses, serving us well when we neither knew or could do too much. But then, as eventually all good things in life, do, it went—along with house calls.

"We're looking for people to write children's books."

If you ever wanted to write and be published this is your opportunity.

by Francis Gemme

Francis Gemme, a Founder of the Institute of Children's Literature, is the President and Publisher of Gallery House and a consultant to Young Reader's Press.

We need writers. There are over 200 publishers of books for children and more than 400 magazines, all of which have a need for writers.

We know that many people could help to fill this need for children's writers if they could only get started. Are you one of those people? Do you have the urge to write and the ambition to work at it but are unable to get professional training? Are you tied to your home or job? Perhaps you lack confidence in your ability?

Have you ever read a children's story and said, "I can do better than that"? Have you ever deplored the lack of good new literature for young readers? Do you love children? Do you want to do something important with your life? Do you want the personal satisfaction and the rewards that come with writing for children? That very attitude may be the clue to you that you can do it, for the desire to write must come first.

Stories only you can write.

Once you learn to use the basic writing techniques, writing for children is easier than you think. Your personal experiences, fantasies, personality traits, and hobbies all lend themselves to good subjects. Many of these subjects have been written about — plainly and simply — and have been published. You probably have within yourself many children's stories that only you can write.

A new kind of school.

The Institute of Children's Literature was founded to encourage more and better writing for young readers. Top writers and publishers have worked together to create a professional course to teach you to write for young children and for teenagers. They include people like Lee Wyndham, a teacher and author of forty-eight books, including How To Write for Children and Teenagers, Hardie Gramatky, author and illustrator of many famous children's books like Little Toot, and John Ledes, President of Astor Honor Books and author of many award-winning children's books. In total, these professional writers have published hundreds and hundreds of books and magazine articles for young readers. They know how to write — how to teach — and how to help you publish.

Learning to write and to sell.

The early success of this course has been repeated many times by people like yourself who knew in their hearts that they could write in a way that would enrich children's reading experiences.

This course will train you step-by-step from the writing of the opening sentence through the selling of a finished manuscript. Yes, you will have completed a manuscript suitable for publication when you finish this course.

Your own instructor.

Because writing is a very personal experience, we believe that the teaching of writing must also be personalized. That is why, in addition to writing materials, textbooks, instruction, and assignments, you will receive personal guidance on every lesson from your own instructor.

The instructor chosen for you will be a professional writer who will remain with you throughout the course. He will show you how to use your personal feelings, experiences, imagination, and interests to write for children — in your spare time at home.

Work at your own pace.

A writing course is most effective when you can work at the time you feel most like working. With this course, there is no bell to end the class and no interruptions from other students. You and your instructor can work together at the pace most suitable for you. This flexible schedule allows more time for each student than is possible in a classroom situation.

You mail your completed work to your instructor who carefully reads and edits each assignment. He then writes you a long personal letter explaining in detail his corrections and makes specific recommendations. You receive professional advice and guidance while you work where you want — when you want.

The rewards.

Although many writers of children's books earn $15,000 to $20,000 and more a year, the benefits of a career in writing also include the challenge, the excitement, and the great satisfaction of doing something important with your life. When you complete this course, you will be a qualified writer with a future. And what a future!

The market is unlimited. Editors and publishers of children's literature are crying out for talented writers.

This year, more than 30 million children's books will be published, producing total sales of over 170 million dollars! And over 400 periodicals for children with a combined circulation of over 80,000,000 will be published. Books and magazine articles for children are frequently adapted for television and for the movies. In addition, there are twenty-four children's book clubs and a rapidly expanding children's paperback market.

Writing is truly satisfying only when your work is published and, for writers of children's literature, it has never been easier to find a publisher.

Will you take the first step?

You may be a teacher, be taking care of a home, or be a concerned grandparent. You may not even believe that you have the necessary background to become a successful writer. But, as an author, you will be judged solely on your ability to write — not on your age, sex, education, or previous writing experience.

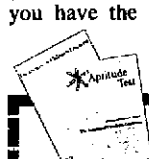

For example, female authors appear on the best sellers list as frequently as do male authors and, in the field of children's literature, there are as many female editors as there are male editors.

Free test.

To find qualified men and women with an aptitude for writing, the Faculty and Consultants of of the Institute have prepared a special Aptitude Test. It is offered free of charge and will be graded at no charge to you by members of our staff.

If you want to be a writer, send in the coupon below for this free test and for a free brochure which fully describes the Institute, our course, our faculty, the current publishing market for children's literature, and your new future. If you demonstrate an aptitude for writing, you will be eligible to enroll. Of course, there is no obligation.

The Wiz Kid

"The Wiz is a Wow!" read the New York City billboards advertising "The Wiz," Broadway's hit all-black musical version of "The Wizard of Oz." And the star who is wowing critics and audiences alike is a 15-year-old bundle of talent and energy by the name of Stephanie Mills.

Night after night, Stephanie's dazzling performance in the lead role of Dorothy—the role that launched Judy Garland's career when she was 16—results in thunderous standing ovations.

"My parents tell me I sang even before I could talk," says the round-faced, somewhat chunky, 4-foot-9 singer-actress—one of six children of a Brooklyn construction worker and his beauty-shop owner wife—who began her career at age 3 in a Baptist church choir. "All I know is that I always wanted to be a singer. Even when I wanted to be a doctor—I wanted to be a singing doctor."

Answering a newspaper ad at age 9, Stephanie landed a small part in the musical "Maggie Flynn." That was followed by a tour with the Isley Brothers, a part with Broadway star Ben Vereen in an educational TV film and a brief stint at Harlem's famous Apollo Theater.

Then came "The Wiz," and today, when she's not on stage, or granting interviews to reporters, or signing autographs for admiring fans—"lots of young boys wait around after the show"—Stephanie divides her time offstage between school, which she attends in the mornings, and her home-life in Brooklyn.

"People ask me how it feels to be a star," she says. "But I don't think of myself that way. I'm just doing what I want to do. I'm just doing my job."

Food Day

Thursday, April 17, is Food Day—the brainchild of Dr. Michael Jacobson, director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

The purpose of Food Day is to alert the public to key problems related to food supply.

Some of the suggested activities for primary and secondary schools include: a supermarket visit to familiarize students with different types of foods; the construction of a world food bulletin board so students can visualize news media coverage of food problems; a record of all foods eaten in a 24-hour period, and the formation of a stomach defense league to acquaint students with food problems.

On the university level, teach-ins are planned which will cover the world food situation, agribusiness, and the role of commodity markets. The University of Michigan is planning a week-long teach-in on food-related problems.

At San Jose City College in California, students are planning an urban gardening symposium.

In Louisville, Ky., the local Consumer Affairs Office has urged restaurants to serve only nutritious food at inexpensive prices.

For more information on Food Day, contact the Food Day Office at 1785 Massachusetts Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Parade's All-American High School Basketball Team

by Haskell Cohen

The success of Moses Malone in the American Basketball Association is no surprise to PARADE magazine. Last year Malone, then a 6-foot-11 senior center at Petersburg High School in Virginia, was named to PARADE's All-American High School Basketball Team, with the comment that his ability equaled that of Bill Walton, a college senior.

Malone certainly isn't the first PARADE pick to make it into the pros. The list of previous PARADE All-Americans includes Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks, Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks, Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels, Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz, Spencer Haywood of the Seattle Super Sonics, Wes Unseld of the Washington Bullets and George McGinnis of the Indiana Pacers.

And the list of current college stars who have been on the PARADE first team in recent years is headed by Notre Dame great Adrian Dantley.

This year's team, selected by college coaches and scouts with the help of newspaper writers and high school coaches from coast to coast, will undoubtedly add additional names to the list and it's possible that at least one member will follow Malone from the high school ranks into the pros without the traditional stop at the college level.

California foursome

The nation's major colleges have been spending a lot of money reviewing and communicating with this year's crop of high school stars of whom four of the top 10 come from California and two from metropolitan New York.

College recruiters have paid special attention to games played by Verbum Dei High School in Los Angeles since that team has a pair of players many colleges rate No. 1 at their positions—center Dave Greenwood and guard Roy Hamilton.

"Combine those two players with any other average players in the country and you'll reach the NCAA finals four straight years," said one coach.

One of the most awesome centers resides at the northern end of California in a community known as Elk Grove. Bill Cartwright measures a half inch over seven feet, and he can hit from the outside just as easily as from in close.

The teams were not picked on the basis of position. They were picked solely on basketball ability which will be on display when many of them play in the fifth annual Seamco Basketball Classic at Kutsher's Country Club in Monticello, N.Y. The benefit game, scheduled for the Memorial Day weekend, will be held to raise funds for the American Cancer Society.

Wide representation

Jackie's Horoscope states her only possible fate was wealth and fame

By Tom Kennedy

Jackie Onassis, possibly the most famous woman alive today. On July 28, 1929, she entered this world as all of us do, a helpless little baby. But Jackie was not destined to be an ordinary individual. Astrologers examining her natal horoscope clearly agree, her only possible fate would be wealth and fame. Now at age 45 this prediction has become more than true. Let's take a look at her natal chart and see why.

Jackie's Cancer lays in the cusp of her eighth house. This indicates that she will marry a man connected with water. Her first husband, the late President Kennedy, was a PT boat captain in World War II and also enjoyed sailing. And of course her current husband, Aristotle Onassis, is a superwealthy shipping magnate.

Her Sagittarian rising sign shows that she prefers foreign countries and people. Her husband, Aristotle, is Greek. And Jackie is known for her jet-setting image.

Finally, the planets Jupiter and Venus symbolize money. The fact that these two planets fall in her seventh house, the house of partners, indicates that she will have a wealthy husband. John Kennedy and Aristotle were both wealthy.

ASTROLOGY AFFECTS US ALL

Jackie Onassis is not the only person affected by astrology. Because you were born, you yourself have a unique natal horoscope, different from all others. I'll show you what it can mean to you by using celebrities for my examples.

Your natal horoscope can help you discover your hidden talents, and give you the confidence to use them. When you think of Marilyn Monroe, you probably picture the standard "dumb blonde" sex symbol. Her horoscope shows that nothing could be farther from the truth. She had the potential to be a tremendous actress and she knew it. Marilyn hated her sex symbol image.

Jean Dixon heeded the advice of her horoscope, and was rewarded with success. Her natal chart showed strong psychic and E.S.P. abilities. She cultivated her talents and is considered the leading psychic of our time.

Your horoscope can advance your career and bring you wealth. A comparison of Robert Redford's natal chart to Paul Newman's shows these two stars to be very compatible. In real life they are very close friends. Their horoscopes also showed that a joint venture would be extremely profitable. BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID and the STING, certainly bear this out. On the other hand, the timing of the movie, THE GREAT GATSBY, and the movement of Robert Redford's planets were in conflict. But he went ahead and made the movie against the advice of his horoscope. Box office results were certainly a lot less than expected.

Your horoscope can bring you love, romance, and improve your life. Henry Kissinger's horoscope showed that if he was confident enough, women would overlook his appearance. He used his sex appeal, and dated some of the most beautiful women in the world. His horoscope predicted his marriage to Nancy Maginnes. What is more amazing, his chart told him that if he stabilized his life through marriage, he would be more successful in his Middle East negotiations.

Tommy Smothers is an avid believer in Astrology. He compared his horoscope with his future wife's before proposing. He then got married at exactly 11:58 PM, following the exact instructions of his astrologer.

Sometimes a small change can make a big difference. In Telly Savalas's case, he used his head. His natal horoscope attributes his charisma to his head. He shaved his head for the movie, THE GREATEST STORY EVER TOLD. His TV stardom in Kojak followed sometime later.

Your horoscope can help you stay in good health. Here is a story from a recent newspaper article in the Miami Herald's Sunday magazine. Mary Kelly credits astrology with saving her from an operation on her legs that would have left her crippled. "My doctor decided an operation was needed, and told me to check into the hospital Friday for the procedure on Monday. I consulted my astrologer. She told me to have the operation changed to Wednesday. I did this, and on Tuesday the doctor suddenly discovered a blood clot was causing the trouble. Had he performed the operation, as any doctor would have on Friday's symptoms, I probably would never have walked again."

THE TRUTH ABOUT ASTROLOGY

How does your natal horoscope work? An astrologer will chart the positions of the sun, moon, and eight planets as they appear above your place of birth at your exact time of birth. The placements and angular relationships of these bodies make up your natal chart. This means that someone born at the exact same time as you, but in a different city, will have a different chart.

The written interpretation and analysis of your natal chart is called your natal horoscope. Astrology is not fortune telling and your horoscope does not cause things to happen to you. Your horoscope analyzes your personality, and then tells you what things are most likely to happen to you. But remember, your free will can override events in your life, if you put your mind to it. In Jackie's case, she wisely chose to let fate run it's course.

As you've seen from the examples I've given you, some of the most famous people used their horoscope to reach success; but in other instances ignored it and faced failure. There are thousands of different ways to achieve wealth, love, success and happiness.

A good example is Euell Gibbons, the naturalist, whose interest is plants. He has published several books and appeared on the Johnny Carson show. Many people consider him odd. But his career has bought him happiness and wealth.

Each and everyone of us is good at something no matter how odd one's talents may seem to others. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. So why beat your brains out on an area that you're not talented in, when an equal amount of time spent on something you're good at would put you much further ahead. Not only will you get ahead, but you'll be relaxed and happy while you're doing it.

Your horoscope will give you an indepth analysis of your personality. It will point out your strengths and show you how to utilize them. It will also discuss your weaker areas, and allow you to compensate for them.

Because your natal horoscope is such a sophisticated analysis of your personality, it will probe your subconscious mind and seek out your hidden talents. These are the areas where you thought you had talent (writing, E.S.P., sex appeal, public relations, athletics, etc.) but were afraid to try. If you've been waiting for someone to give you a little push, let your horoscope be that someone. It will give you the confidence to start using your hidden talents.

Summed up, your natal horoscope will discuss your personality, lovelife, career, finances, and health. It will help you understand and accept yourself for what you are. It will then show you where your talents lie and set you on a course of self-improvement, self-fulfillment, and true happiness.

As the old saying goes, "You only live once." Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided, like Robert Redford with the GREAT GATSBY? Don't you owe it to yourself and to your loved ones to sieze every precious moment of your life and make the best of it. Why not give yourself every advantage with the added edge of your personal natal horoscope.

Millions of words have been written about Jackie. But you won't really know her until you've read about her horoscope.

Limited Time Only Research Project

How to get your Personal Natal Horoscope for only a copying cost

Send me your exact time and place of birth, I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have a duplicate copy of your horoscope for only $3.00 to cover the cost to make your copy plus 50¢ postage and handling. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process FREE - because of the fact we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of 9 pages and 3,000 words and will provide you all of the following benefits: (Note: This is our new improved horoscope.)

- Your horoscope will help you understand and accept yourself. It will analyze your personality and explain your strengths and talents in detail. It will also point out your shortcomings and advise you on how to improve.
- Everyone of us has hidden talents just waiting to be tapped. Your horoscope will discuss your hidden talents (sex appeal, E.S.P., writing, athletics, public relations, etc.) and show you how to cash in on them.
- Your horoscope will give you an indepth analysis of your love life. Personally tailored advice on how to enjoy a more fulfilling sex life will be offered. You'll be told who you're compatible with and why and shown how to find romance. Once you find it, your horoscope will help you keep it burning hot.
- Your horoscope will instill confidence in you by showing you what you're good at. It will place you in the proper frame of mind to begin a program of all around self-improvement.
- The types of jobs and careers that you are best suited for will be listed. You'll be told which careers will bring you success and happiness and which jobs to avoid.
- Your financial future will be covered. Your attitude towards money and the best ways for you to make money will be discussed.
- Areas of your body which may pose health problems are pointed out. Tips on dieting are also offered.
- Your martial and family relationships are analyzed with emphasis on getting along with your mate, your children and your relatives.

There's no need to worry about finding out about an unavoidable coming disaster through your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

When casting your horoscope, we conform to the strictest scientific principles. First the longitude and latitude of your birth will be charted down to the hundredth of a degree. Then any time changes due to World War II will be taken into consideration. Finally your longitude and latitude and exact time of birth will be key punched into our gigantic IBM 370 computer, which contains over 24 million bits of authenticated astrological information. No two horoscopes produced by our computer are ever alike. Your horoscope will carry your name on every page and will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone. So you can be sure that your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in paperbacks.

A similar horoscope could cost up to $250 if done by an astrologer. But THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH to this offer. I need this information for my astrological research. I'm looking for certain planet configurations from the people who mail in birth information. (People who fit this group can receive extra bonuses by filling out a research questionnaire.)

This research project has appeared in BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS, PARADE, FAMILY WEEKLY, SUNDAY MAGAZINE, LADY'S HOME JOURNAL, REDBOOK, McCALLS, WOMAN'S DAY, and other publications. The response has been tremendous with over 500,000 people now enjoying their natal horoscope. But that's what's so frustrating. We may never be able to run this article again. Inflation has pushed our computer, advertising, postage, and printing costs almost to the point of no return.

So for a limited time, we're gathering all the names we possibly can to finish our research project. If you'd like to help us with our research and take advantage of this special offer by ordering natal horoscopes for yourself, for your family or your friends, simply do this: Send me the name, address, time, day, month, year and place of birth for each person on a piece of paper along with the $3.00 copying cost and 50¢ postage for each horoscope. (If you don't know your exact time of birth we'll use 12:00 noon.) If you have Mastercharge, Bank Americard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. Name of your credit card B. Credit card number C. Card Expiration date.

Mail your orders to the AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, Research Division, Dept. C3, 4965 West Tusc., Canton, Ohio 44708.

Your natal horoscope is covered by a one year - 365 day - full money back guarantee. If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, President, the American Astrological Association. Telephone me at (216) 478-2171. To avoid disappointment, why not order your horoscope right now, before you forget. Thanks.

The Fuss Over Queen Elizabeth's Money

by Jay Bender

LONDON.

When Prime Minister Wilson of Britain recently asked the House of Commons to raise Queen Elizabeth II's annual living allowance approximately $1 million a year he revived a running controversy in England—just how large is the Queen's personal fortune?

Many Britons have speculated over its exact size, with estimates running as low as $4.8 million in U.S. money (2 million pounds sterling), and as high as $175 or $200 million. One recent British newspaper article guessed she might be the richest woman in the world.

Despite the veil of official secrecy, PARADE, after a thorough check, is able to divulge that the 48-year-old Queen is worth $39.7 million, give or take a few hundred thousand.

Much of this is in land—acres and acres of it. Her holdings at Balmoral in Scotland and Sandringham in Norfolk (including an enormous 365-room mansion) add up to a $21.5 million value even in today's depressed property market.

Then there's her personal jewelry—aside from the Crown Jewels which she doesn't own but merely holds in trust for her successor. Her private collection of baubles, many of them personal gifts from sultans, rajahs, caliphs, shahs and similar heads of state, is worth a minimum of $9 million. One single item, a gift from an African-diamond-mine owner, is a flawless gem weighing 24 carats—the largest pink diamond ever discovered.

Securities, too

Her land and her jewels together bring the Queen's monetary worth to a total of $30.5 million. To that should be added $4.8 million in securities (her holdings include Shell and ICI, British Petroleum, Unilever, Courtaulds Ltd. and other blue chips); $2 million in furniture, gold and silver plate, rare books, crystal and china, sculpture, tapestry, art and various heirlooms, and $2.4 million in a stable of 22 racehorses.

Add the figures together, and they reach $39.7—much of it, not so incidentally, subject to preferential tax treatment, including exemption from death duties and many other levies.

Of course, the Queen also has at her disposal properties, palaces and various furnishings that she uses freely without actually owning them. She also has a huge staff including no fewer than 318 footmen and one Royal Swankeeper. But employees no longer work merely for the status of serving the monarch. The Buckingham Palace staff even has its own union shop steward.

Well-to-do queen: Elizabeth II's personal jewels are only a part of her substantial fortune.

But the Queen's expenses keep going up, just like her subjects', in these inflationary times. A tea for 2000 guests one weekend last summer came to over $4500. Food for the household ran $106,000 one recent year. Princess Anne's fairy-tale wedding cost a fancy $225,000.

In theory, an annual government cash grant known as the Civil List is supposed to cover the care and feeding of Queen Elizabeth and her family. Actually, the allowance was insufficient until it was raised from $1.15 million to $2.35 million in 1972, following several royal complaints. The newest raise would add another 43 percent to the total, bringing it to $3.36 million.

Presumably such an increased government allowance will be enough to keep the Royal Family solvent. There's no way of telling how Queen Elizabeth ranks among the world's wealthiest women, including such richies as Queen Juliana of Holland, the dowager Begum Aga Khan, Doris Duke and Jacqueline Onassis —all of whom decline to reveal the size of their estates. But she apparently isn't yet down to her last tiara.

my favorite jokes

by George Schultz

EDITOR'S NOTE: Comedian and emcee George Schultz has had his own club, Pip's, in Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, for 12 years. Pip's offers a forum for new talent, and over the years such comedians as Stanley Myron Handelman, David Frye, Joan Rivers, Robert Klein and David Brenner have had a place to work off the rough edges.

Our Save $1 4-Pack comes in Regular L'eggs Pantyhose, Queen-size and All Sheer. And remember, Our L'eggs fit your legs.

One of the comedians Schultz started out with is Rodney Dangerfield, who went to Pip's to help George celebrate the club's 12th anniversary. He made the following speech: "The owner here, a dear friend of mine, a wonderful guy, asked me to come help celebrate Pip's anniversary. He opened this place 12 years ago today and brought filth and disease to Sheepshead Bay." George said, "Rodney, thank you very much," then told the audience: "Next week we're having a professional comedian."

Here are some of George Schultz's current favorites:

I had a weird experience with my last in-flight movie. The picture was so popular I had to wait in the rain for an hour before I got in.

The last time I was in Germany I had to visit the dentist. It wasn't the drilling that bothered me, but the marching.

I don't like to say that New York air is getting worse, but I know a sky diver who bailed out over Manhattan and bruised his nose on the smog.

MARATHON CHAMP CHRISTA VAHLENSIECK

STAMINA AND WOMEN

Women runners have rarely been encouraged to enter long-distance races. They've been considered too weak, too short of stamina. The first women runners who tried to enter the famed Boston Marathon (26 miles, 385 yards) registered under male names in order to compete.

In 1967, for example, aware of the ban which prohibited females from entering the marathon, one woman registered her initials on a Boston Marathon entry application. In order to avoid being spotted she asked a male friend to pick up her entry number in the men's locker room.

When she appeared at the starting line, Johnny Semple, a coordinator for the marathon, ripped off her entry number for "breaking the rules."

Last year 40 women entered the Boston Marathon, and this year comes word from Germany that women are physiologically better equipped for marathon-running than men.

According to Dr. Ernst Van Aaken of Waldniel, Germany, "Women are born with greater natural stamina. Men, on the other hand, will always throw further, jump higher and run faster for short stretches. Forty percent of a man's body weight is muscle. In women, muscle amounts to only 23 percent. Instead of this, they have more hypodermal fatty tissue and that is the source of energy for hours-long exertion."

At a recent marathon in West Germany some weeks ago, 25-year-old Christa Vahlensieck broke a world marathon record, running the course in 2 hours, 42 minutes, and 38 seconds. Christa runs about 60 miles a week, says of her male competitors: "They are vain creatures. They would rather sprint than be passed by a woman. As a result they waste their reserve energy and after six or eight miles I pass them anyway."

MILITARY FRINGE BENEFITS: BEAUTY OPERATIONS

According to Rep. Les Aspin (D., Wis.) and one of the most frequent Congressional critics of wasteful military spending, military surgeons are performing hundreds of operations each year to provide officers' wives with larger bosoms and wrinkle-free faces.

The plastic surgery which costs between $1000 and $3000 to civilians, costs the wives of the top military brass about $4 a day for meals in government hospitals. The surgery is free.

In 1973, according to Aspin, almost 800 facelifts and breast enlargements were performed by military surgeons at taxpayers' expense.

These operations represented about 5 percent of all Army, 6 percent of all Navy, and 9 percent of all Air Force plastic surgery. In 1973 the Air Force performed 178 bust enlargements and 133 face lifts, the Army 206 bust enlargements and 78 face lifts, and the Navy 114 bust enlargements and 68 face lifts.

The Defense Department is researching this information in an effort to determine how many, if any, of these cosmetic operations were performed on the wives of enlisted personnel.

LONGEST LIFE-SPAN IN SWEDEN

It's now official. Swedes live longest. The U.N. Demographic Yearbook says that a boy born in Sweden can expect to live 71.97 years. A girl can expect to live more than five years longer, 77.41 years.

In the U.S., according to the U.N. figures, a male can expect to live 67.4 years and a female 75.2 years.

Next to the Swedes in longevity come the Norwegians, the Dutch, the Icelanders and the Danes, in that order.

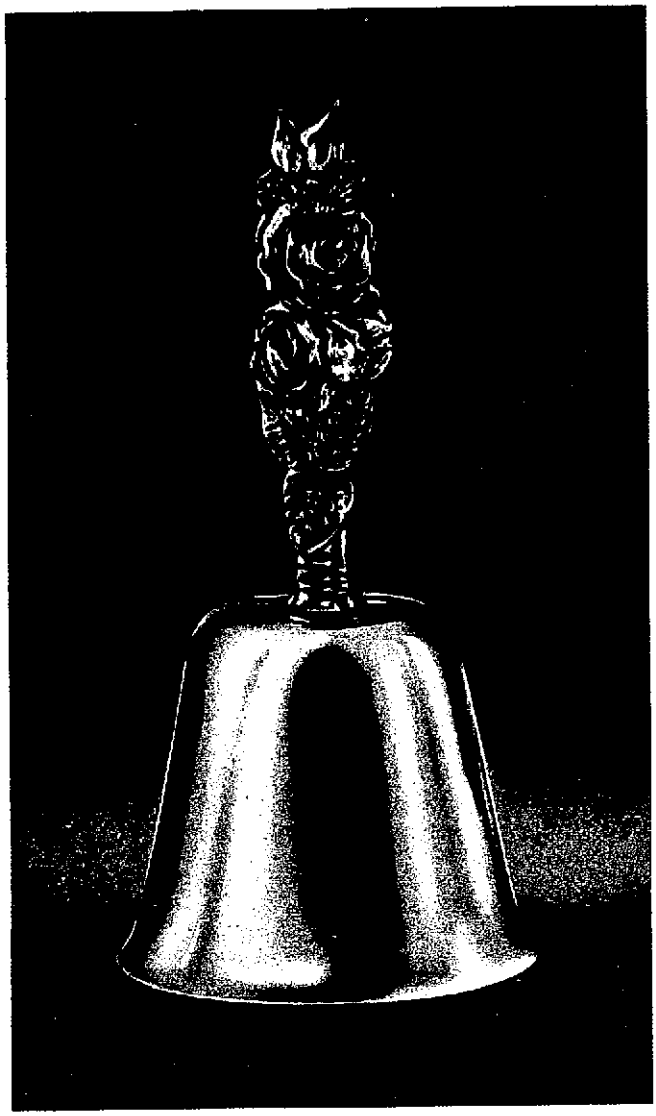

Life expectancy for a boy and girl in Norway is 71.09 and 76.83 years. In the Netherlands, it's 70.8 and 76.8 years. It's 70.7 and 76.3 years in Iceland, and 70.7 and 75.9 in Denmark.

In the Soviet Union the life expectancy for a boy and a girl is 65 and 74. In Great Britain it's 69 and 75, and in France it's 68.6 and 76.

Although the Israelis have been through four wars since that nation was founded, they, like the Scandinavians, have a high life expectancy: 70.14 years for males and 72.83 for females.

In practically all nations the female lives longer than the male.

INVESTIGATIONAL FALLOUT

One of the major dangers in exposing the operations of our Central Intelligence Agency is that friendly foreign nations will be fearful of domiciling CIA agents despite their U.S. embassy cover.

A few weeks ago, Tom Litterick, a member of the British Parliament, demanded that "America's top spy in Great Britain should be kicked out of the country."

He named Cord Meyer, well-known as the CIA station chief in London. "Meyer and his staff," he declared, "should be put on a plane out of Britain and told never to come back. I am gravely worried about greatly increased CIA activities in Britain. I believe we are in danger of facing the same infiltration of our institutions and our public life -- and the deliberate damaging of our economy -- that has happened to other countries because of the CIA."

Some months ago Time magazine was prepared to publish a list of CIA station chiefs based in various U.S. embassies in Europe, but a CIA bigwig phoned Time, explained that a great deal of harm and trouble would be done to the agency if Time blew the cover of its station chiefs. Time desisted.

REPRODUCE OR ELSE

There are still a few countries in the world where governments encourage people to procreate.

Take Burma. Its 63-year-old president, Ne Win, has forbidden family planning, contraceptives and abortion. "In the next 25 years, our population of 30 million will have to double," says Win, "because our country's need for security demands it." Burma is located between India and China, the two most populous nations in the world.

LOWEST PAY IN FRENCH ARMY

Morale in the French army, particularly among the conscripts, is so low that drafted soldiers could not be relied upon to defend the country in an emergency. So declared Gen. Alain de Boissieu, son-in-law of the late Charles de Gaulle, in a recent trial of three soldiers tried for incitement to mutiny.

The French conscript is paid about $12 a month in contrast to the American private who is paid $342 a month. French soldiers, who recently staged a protest in the German city of Karlsruhe, are asking for a minimum salary of $60 a month.

POPE PAUL VI

MICHELE SINDONA

THE VATICAN TAKES A FINANCIAL BATH

Last year the Vatican lost some $60 million in foreign exchange speculations and the Sindona (Franklin National) bank scandal. As a result, the Italian government has reportedly requested extradition from the U.S. of Michele Sindona, the former Vatican financial adviser. (Sindona lives with his family at the luxurious Hotel Pierre in New York City and denies any wrongdoing.) Also, Pope Paul has vetoed the Vatican's 1975 budget, ordering a drastic reduction in all expenses.

In 1969 the Pope decided to sell his church's controlling interest in Società Generale Immobiliare, a conglomerate which owned among other properties, the Hilton Hotel in Rome, the Montreal Stock Exchange, the Pan-American Building in Paris, and the sprawling Watergate complex in Washington, D.C. The Pope assigned the secret sale to a Sicilian financier, Michele Sindona, 53, who once drove U.S. Army trucks in Sicily.

In 1947 Sindona moved to Milan where he met Monsignor Giovanni Montini, who was later to become the present Pope. Sindona entered the banking business, endeared himself to the church authorities, helped raise the funds for the Casa Della Madonnina, an old people's home.

When the Pope took over in Rome in 1963 he found the Vatican's finances -- an estimated $2 billion with a stock portfolio of $500 million -- not exactly to his liking. He brought in new personnel to put his financial house in order: Cardinal Vagnozzi from Washington, Cardinal Hoeffner from Cologne and a 48-year-old priest from Chicago, Paul Marcinkus, known to Italians as "Il Gorilla." Marcinkus rose to become a bishop and president of the Vatican bank, which is called the Institute for Religious Works. The Pope also brought in his old friend, Michele Sindona, who by then had purchased the Banca Privata Finanziaria and established connections with other leading banks throughout the world.

On orders from the Vatican, Sindona began selling off stock in Società Generale Immobiliare, to a bank in Luxembourg, to another bank in Paris, and then a large chunk to an Austrian refugee, Charles Bluhdorn, who himself had established the Gulf and Western conglomerate in the U.S.

Soon, Sindona was recognized as a leading financial adviser to the Vatican, a financial genius, if you will. Buoyant and optimistic, he moved into the American market. In 1972 he bought a controlling interest in the Franklin National Bank in New York, offered Maurice Stans, Nixon's money-raiser, a cool million in a campaign contribution, provided Stans keep it secret. By then secret campaign contributions had been outlawed, Sindona was a foreigner, and Stans couldn't accept the deal.

Last year Sindona's Franklin National Bank was rescued from insolvency by the U.S. government, and Securities and Exchange Commission investigators realized that Sindona was a little more than a speculative crapshooter. How had the Vatican ever gotten itself involved with him in the Banca Unione, the Banca Privata Italiana, and so many of his other wild foreign exchange speculations?

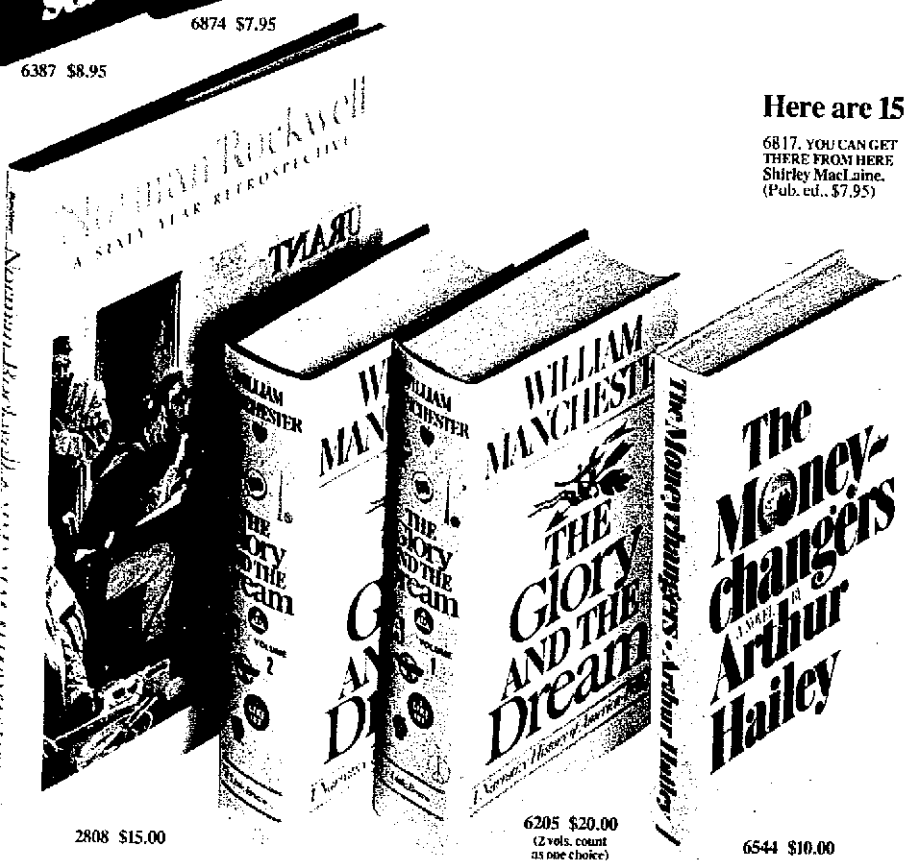

The Vatican, of course, will say nothing. But the little Sicilian is on the run, and the church is reportedly out some $60 million.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

HEAVY GOLD ELECTROPLATE (HGE) - - this mounting uses karat gold (either white or yellow) that is electrically bonded to the mounting after it is formed and the gold, by government standard, is 14 times thicker than the designation "gold electroplate".

STERLING SILVER (SS) — the mounting is 92.5% pure silver, 7.5% other metals for strength, and to eliminate tarnishing is lightly plated with precious rhodium.

CARAT (CT) - - a measure of weight for a diamond—However, Gemfires are given approximate carat values based on size (not weight). In other words, a 1 carat Gemfire is approximately the same size as a 1 carat diamond.
